

at Camargo in reference to the battle said to be going on between Gen Taylor and Santa Anna. The main object of the place of Camargo, where we have a vast amount of arms, is to arm 1500 fighting men for the place, including all classes. They are well armed, and the place is strongly fortified, so that it will not probably be taken.

There is reason to believe that a train of 120 wagons which left Camargo about the 16th or 17th ult., for Monterey, was captured on the 24th, between General and Santa Anna, together with the escort that accompanied it. It is also feared that Col. Morgan's regiment of Ohio volunteers, who were stationed at Fort Conque, and perily at Main, have been captured or killed.

The Washington correspondent of the N. York Journal of Commerce, writing from Washington, March 23rd, says:—The Cabinet were in session today, and it is said that they are thrown into a state of alarm and agitation by the intelligence from the seat of war.

The battles between Santa Anna and Gen Taylor are stated to have taken place on the 21st and 22d of February, but as the communication between Monterey and Camargo had been cut off, all the information that has been received is on Mexican authority. The Washington Union says that nothing official has been received on the subject.

Though in common with the whole community, we feel the most anxious solicitude for the army, we have great confidence that General Taylor will make good his defence, particularly as we believe it will be found to be the fact, that he has the whole of Santa Anna's force in his front, and that there is nothing in his rear, that can give him trouble in the way of retreat.

It is, however, fearful odds that he has to contend with, and whatever may be the result, no citizen or blame of any kind can rest with him.—N. O. Bulletin, 15th.

We are indebted to a commercial house for the following extract of a letter received on Saturday. MATAMORAS, March 14, 1847.—We have very bad news today from Santa Anna, reached here through three expresses sent by Captain Montgomery, that Gen. Taylor had fallen back on Saltillo, before Santa Anna, who had 25,000 men with him, and a light going on at Saltillo, that Santa Anna was in possession of Marine, between Monterey and Camargo, with 8,000 cavalry, and had captured 125 wagons and 180 pack mules—the former government property—the latter, the late property of the contractors.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Holt, of Franklin, Conn., is now in the 9th year of his age, seventy years of age, he was installed Pastor over the Church at that place.

From the N. O. Commercial Times, March 15. LATEST FROM PRAZOS. The following letter, dated the 7th instant, which was perfunctorily furnished us by a gentleman late last evening, throws some light on the still obscure and uncertain intelligence from the seat of war.

Gen. Taylor—This place, during the past few days, having on the scene of unusual excitement, caused by the disastrous news from Monterey, respecting the perilous position of General Taylor and his division of the army at Saltillo, I will endeavor to give a short summary of the best intelligence obtained from Camargo. It appears positively certain that General Taylor was attacked by Santa Anna, on the 21st inst. Early in the forenoon, Santa Anna, with 25,000 men in person, and that he was unable to maintain his position, had returned to Saltillo, covering the wagon train, and, being without any connection with the army, in which he had been with several loss on his part. The last express from Monterey, the assistant quarter-master at Monterey, to Captain G. H. Crossman, assistant quarter-master at Camargo, left the latter place on the 29th inst. being the last communication received from Monterey. From that period all communication has been cut off by the enemy's forces occupying Marine and other small towns and villages between Monterey and Camargo. The last official news from Camargo received for Monterey, on the 24th, after destroying all the stores and military property which he could not carry with him. Rumor says, however, that he had fallen in an engagement with the enemy, near Marine, and his command cut to pieces. This, however, there is not a certain intelligence.
