Lemieux's Brilliant Eulogy of Laurier

The following are some extracts from Hon. Mr. Lemieux's brilliant eulogy of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, delivered in parliament on Feb. 25:

Hon. Mr. Lemieux: Mr. Speaker, the Shadow of Death has stalked through this chamber; a chair stands vacant. As we gaze upon the flowers strewn about us, which, by the hand of some kindly spirit, have been placed here to cheer the hearts of those who have gathered here to do our duty, we understand the baffling brevity of this life span, and how vainly we meditations of olden times, is sleeping his last sleep.

The mellow voice which for so long enthralled this assembly and stirred the enthusiasm of all who heard it, is silent. The trumpet's silver voice is still. The warbler's song is hushed.

The last survivor of a great generation, he whose imposing stature, whose eagle eye and whose white plume recalled those noblemen of the eighteenth century, such as we meet them still in meditations of olden times, is sleeping his last sleep.

An illustrious ancestor has passed away. Let us incline our heads with respect in the presence of this grave; it's closing writes "finis" to a whole epoch of our history.

Death is a law and not a punishment. No one better understood this profound truth than the eminent statesman whose loss we mourn. He had long since made his preparations for the voyage from Time into Eternity. Without bitterness the old gladiator saw himself disarmed as he was about to descend once more into the arena. His spirit passed gently, serenely, as though amidst the dazzling shadows of life's falling night the Faith of his forefathers had already revealed the gleam of dawn, presage of Eternal Day.

Speaking here in the name of my colleagues of the old French province who counted him her most distinguished son, and whose idol he became, it does the heart good to recall that throughout his entire career he was ever faithful to his origin and to the finest traditions of his race.

"I love," he was wont to say, "I love France who gave us birth, I love England who gave us liberty, but the first place in my heart belongs to Canada, my country, my native land."

Sprung from a vanquished people, but a people who, in their turn had themselves made the conquest of Liberty, his dream was to unite the two races on the only rational basis: equality of rights, mutual respect and tolerance. His political vision moved him to seal away the pact entered into by Lafontaine and Baldwin in days gone by and so bring fresh strength to the work of the Fathers of Confederation.

Were I called upon to define the outstanding qualities of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a statesman, I would say that his moderation was a driving power in itself, his gift of expeditious shining light, and that, with this master of one, sound judgment and common sense, outweighed his very eloquence.

His worthy manner of living, his thorough honesty, his perfect equanimity through the worst trials, his devouring intellectual activities, his unimpeachable righteousness, his home life imbued with such charm and beauty, his loyalty to friends, his discreet charity, but, above all, his eloquence exerted in behalf of the down-trodden, all these recall in many respects some distinctive characteristics of Gladstone and Lincoln.

We shall no longer have before our eyes those refined and aristocratic features of Laurier, whose most amiable smile went to the plebeian, the needy, the humble, the lowly and the feeble; but his memory will remain in the hearts of those who were privileged to know him, as one of the finest products of human-kind in the last century.

We, his followers, his admirers, find solace in the thought that he died in the way he had wished to die. As the Norman knights of old, it was clothed in his armor that he appeared before the Supreme Judge. Death, the soother of all suffering, was to him like the declining hours of a beautiful day.

Before closing his eyes to things terrestrial, he had the supreme joy of seeing the Allies victorious. Enamored of freedom and justice, he witnessed the downfall in Europe of autocracy and its instrument, militarism, and the founding on their ruins of the League of Nations. As of yore at Inverness and at Sebastopol, he saw our two great mother countries clasp hands and joining their forces on the battlefield, and ours rushing with a light heart to meet together a glorious death and take their full share of sacrifice and victory.

Yes, he was granted that supreme consolation of seeing France, which was branded as frivolous, because she was cheerful, standing before the whole world as an example of endurance and fortitude, and show herself to the oppressed what she had ever been, the shield of civilization, the champion of right. He beheld England, that country deemed cold and self-seeking, set out all her sails, spend lavishly of her wealth, call to arms all her children to rescue the world from oppression.

The alliance of these two great powers, sealed by the purest of blood, was especially dear to his heart. To him it appeared like the rainbow which breaks through the clouds, and which is described in the Holy Writ as a messenger of peace, a presage of better days to all men of good will.

Oh Laurier, should there remain something to be done towards the fulfillment of that triumph of harmony and good will which you have so persistently striven to bring about, then those younger Canadians whose teacher you were will in turn take up the work and carry it to its full completion. They will pride themselves in following in your footsteps along the rugged and endless path of duty which you have opened and pointed out to them.

Farewell. Close to your resting place, amid maples and poplars, adorned by the coming spring with luxuriant foliage, we shall, many of us, congregate to pray in the tongue of your ancestors. The field wherein you lie, whose tender embrace you received, will be light to you. For it is part of that native land whose history is three centuries old and whose motherly womb will some day cover our meanness with its vastness and shroud our nothingness with its perennity. Adieu.

RECENT DEATHS

Otis H. Warr.

Digby, N. S., March 10.—(Special)—Otis H. Warr, for upwards of thirty years one of the leading wholesale and retail dealers in confectionery in western Nova Scotia, died this afternoon after an illness of but a few hours, of ptomaine poisoning caused, it is thought, by eating canned goods which had been left in the can.

Mrs. Robert Milligan.

The death of Mrs. Robert Milligan occurred last evening at her residence, 128 Hazen street. Mrs. Milligan was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1858, coming to St. John when eighteen years of age, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Welsh.

In 1880 she married Robert Milligan, of this city, who died in 1900. Six children survive: Rev. Geo. S. Milligan, M. A., now in Belgium with the Royal Canadian Dragoons; Mrs. Thomas Willet, of Amherst (N. S.); Mrs. G. W. Campbell, Mrs. T. H. Somerville and Misses Jessie and Ethel. One brother, Samuel Welsh, and three sisters, Mrs. E. L. Brass, Misses Helen and Christina Welsh, reside in New York.

RECENT WEDDINGS

Emalie-Brown.

A wedding of interest took place yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Smith, 208 Duke street, when Rev. J. A. MacKeligan united in marriage Sergt. James G. Emalie of the original 12th Battalion and Miss Kathryn Langan Brown of Boston. Following a wedding luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Emalie left on the Montreal train for a wedding tour.

Anderson-Snodgrass.

In St. John's Presbyterian church, Moncton, the pastor, Rev. T. Porter Drummond, united in marriage Major J. E. Anderson, commanding officer of No. 213 Field Company, Royal Engineers, and Miss Allison Snodgrass of Letuke, New Zealand. Miss Snodgrass came many miles for the ceremony, as also did Major Anderson. They left on a wedding trip to upper Canada. They will live in England.

WHAT OF THE NATIONAL HEALTH?

(Ottawa Journal.)

Previous to the present year, two great epidemics of influenza ravaged the world, one in 1892, the other in 1889. Each of these was followed by a less virulent but still extensive and distressing recurrence of the disease the following year. According to this, we shall have the influenza back here next year. The possibility is disturbing. And it suggests that Canada may be wise to take up at once the question whether a Dominion Ministry of Health is a desirability.

UNITY.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

Of all waste effort the most useless, just now, is the endeavor to show that this or that influence, person, or activity "won the war." The subject may tempt one to conversation, but it is a saving of time and effort to remember the fable of the man and the bundle of sticks, with the moral, "In union there is strength."

Exclusiveness the Watchword of This Apparel Shop

TO the refined sense of the fastidious, a Suit, Frock, or Gown, loses much of its charm when it has been the object of repetition and duplication.

It is more or less of a social embarrassment to encounter at every turn a replica of the gown one has selected as her own particular expression.

"Talking amounts to less than nothing, save just to the degree it is turned into action."

Every day we prove our claim to exclusiveness by the apparel shown in OUR READY-TO-WEAR DEPARTMENT. The assemblage is very large, affording great latitude for individual selection.

Try us. No trouble to show you some of the lovely new garments.
