Baseball. Mullin and Stange Sign. Officials of the Detroit baseball club announce that George Mullin and Oscar Stange, pitcher and catcher, of the Detroit American league team, have renewed their contracts for the 1911 season.

Water Set to Coombs. Jack Coombs, the famous baseball pitcher, was given a surprise the other evening at his home in Kennebunk by 50 or more residents of the town. Not only was given a rousing reception on his return home, but incidentally received a handsome silver water set appropriately engraved.

The following is engraved on the pitcher: "Presented to John Coombs by his fellow townsmen in acknowledgment of his athletic victory of 1910."

"Kennebunk, Oct. 31." Coombs, a year or more ago, purchased the Walter Day farm on the Alewife road in Kennebunk, which has been stocked, and is considered one of the finest farms in the country. His father and mother, three brothers and his sister live on the farm.

The Ring. Tommy Burns in Business. Tommy Burns the pugilist who was one time champion of the world, is making a stay of uncertain duration in Calgary, and has allowed it to become known that he has opened up a retail furnishing establishment in that city.

Wrestling. Anderson is Coming. Montreal, Nov. 5.—(Special)—Definite word has been received from Sam Anderson, world's champion middleweight wrestler. He will come to Montreal, and writes J. J. Sayre that he can be here on Nov. 12.

Hay's Hair Health Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Natural Color and Beauty. Better Yet—BUY LONGER SHEETS If you happen to have sheets that are too short and pull from the foot of the bed, sew three buttons on the foot of the mattress and make three strong buttons in the lower end of the sheets to correspond with the buttons, then button down and you will have no further trouble.—November Farm Journal.

THE WELLAND CANAL ROUTE

The dark line indicates the route for the proposed new ship canal, which has been surveyed by government engineers. On the right, the course of the existing canal is marked. The cost of the work would be about $30,000,000.

AMUSEMENTS FOR OURSELVES AND OTHERS THE NICKEL. On Monday, the Nickel Theatre will enter upon another new stage in presenting two more singers, Miss Isabel Foley and Bert Mason. Both are excellent vocalists and their offerings will be novelties.

OUT-DOOR WORKERS AND ZAM-BUK. How It Proves a Boon to Them in Winter. All out-door workers will find Zam-Buk a boon. For cold sores, frost bites, chapped places, etc., it is a speedy cure.

CECIL HAS GOOD SHOW. Visit the Cecil Theatre on Friday and Saturday and see a programme of four great pictures, and hear two good singers, "Government Rations" is a very strong western drama, showing life among the Indians, one of those pictures now so popular.

THE LILLIPUTIANS. Another large and well pleased audience greeted the Lilliputian Opera Company in the Opera House last evening when Sam Taylor and Miss Dunphy were heard again in the matinee this afternoon.

Mrs. Lena McKenzie. Miss Lena McKenzie, second daughter of A. G. McKenzie, of Dundas, died last night at her home, aged 22 years.

Duncan McDonald. Duncan McDonald of Dundas, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Thompson, Dalhousie Junction, on Wednesday. He was ninety-five years of age and came to the Restigouche from Scotland when a boy.

Mrs. Sadie Brundage. Mrs. Sadie Elizabeth Brundage died yesterday at the residence of her parents, 136 Broad street. Deceased had been ill for some time and is survived by two sons, two daughters and three sisters, besides her parents. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brundage. Deceased was the mother of the late whose death as the result of being accidentally shot at the Dominion Exhibition aroused so much sympathy. The funeral will take place Monday afternoon, the services at the house being at 2.30.

BETTER YET—BUY LONGER SHEETS. A man, woman and eleven children became the center of attraction at the union station in Paragould, Ark., Monday, as they were preparing to board an outgoing train. The father held a hard ticket in his hand, and he pulled out a memorandum lined up his property in a row and called their respective names, each child answering "here" when his name was called. He then marched them to the train.

BALL PLAYERS' SALARIES DOUBLED IN TEN YEARS

The Pay Roll Shows the Advancement in the Game—Some of the Big Men of the Diamond and the Salaries They are Paid.

Probably nothing better illustrates the advancement of baseball than the manner in which salaries have increased in the major leagues, and, comparatively, in the southern and all other minor circuits. Ten years ago, for instance, no player in the world was receiving more than $5,000 and but one, Jimmie Collins, then the kingpin of the Boston outfit, drew that amount. Had some one then prophesied that within a decade Honus Wagner would be receiving a $7,500 increase in salary the world would have raised a collection to send the prophet to the "bug house."

The following table of star players is interesting: American League Boston—Stahl, $5,500; Criger, $5,800; Young, $5,000; Collins, $5,000. Baltimore—Dolan, $2,500; Williams, $2,800; McGinnis, $3,000. Chicago—Jones, $2,700; Merets, $2,700; Griffith, $4,000; Callahan, $3,300; W. Sullivan, $2,800. Cleveland—Scott, $2,700; Bradley, $2,500; McCarty, $2,500. Detroit—Gleason, $2,200; Barrett, $3,000. Milwaukee—Garvin, $2,000; Hawley, $3,000. Philadelphia—Lajoie, $4,000; Cross, $3,000; Frasinger, $2,000; Bernhard, $2,500. Washington—Carrick, $2,700; Mercer, $3,000.

National League Boston—Long, $5,000; Demontreville, $2,400; Tenney and Lowe, $2,500; Dusen, $3,200; Nicholas, $2,700; Willis, $2,600. Brooklyn—Kelleher, Keeler, $3,000; Dahlen, Farrell, McGuire, McJames, $3,000; Hughes, $2,500. Cincinnati—Harley, $3,900 and a bonus Beckley, $2,400; Ransie, $2,600. New York—Davis, $3,000; Beolow, $2,500. Philadelphia—McFarland, $2,850; Douglas, $2,700; Thomas, $2,700; Flick, $3,000; Delahanty, $3,500. Pittsburgh—Clarke, $3,300; Wagner, $2,800. St. Louis—Burkett, $3,200; Heidrick, Wallace and Donovan, $2,800; Padden, $3,700. Nap Lajoie, then a member of the Athletics, drawing only $4,000, is now considered so valuable by his Cleveland owners that he is insured for $90,000. Cross and Fraser, others of that aggregation, have drifted into the minors. Cross played in the south some years ago. Fraser has been outlawed because he has persistently refused to report to New Orleans. Bill Bernhard, now Nashville's manager, was then a star twirler of the McGillicuddy tribe and drew $2,500 more than he now receives, it is probable.

Of the stars of the Boston Americans, Stahl is dead. Young and Criger composed the star battery of that period, and both are still in the majors, though not exactly in the first ranks. Collins is no longer heralded as the highest paid baseball player in America, and his name is seldom on the tongue of fanom. Mike Dolan, then with Baltimore at a salary of $2,500 in a vaudeville and has made worlds of money. McKinstry, the star twirler of that aggregation, is now managing a club in the Eastern League—Newark—and pitching excellently. Barrett, a star outfielder, was offered to Montgomery some seasons ago and never reported. He is in the minors. Bradley is still with Cleveland, though his salary is much larger than $2,600. Demontreville, then with Boston of the National League drew $2,400. He is now with New Orleans of the Southern League. Dineen of the Boston club is now an umpire. Kelley, then of Brooklyn, later manager of Cincinnati, is now manager of the Toronto club. McGuire of the same team is managing Cleveland, but is too old to catch. Keeler, considered the most expert batsman in the world has been released by New York, but will probably get in the game again, as several major clubs are after him. He is very wealthy in real estate and business houses in New York and Brooklyn.

Amos Ruess, then one of the greatest pitchers who ever stood upon a mound is out of the game as is Jake Beckley, both of whom were with Cincinnati. Davis, Connie Mack's field general, was then a $3,000 star with New York. Bill Douglas, who played with Little Rock and Birmingham, was then catching for Philadelphia, along with Thomas, McGinnis, DeLoach and Elmer Flick, the latter now with Cleveland of the American League. Ten years ago Pittsburgh had two stars, Clarke and Wagner, the former drawing $3,000 and the latter $2,800. Now Clarke is managing the world champion of Pittsburgh and drawing so much money that no adding machine can figure the amount. Wagner, in the world's series last fall established himself as the greatest living exponent of the game. He is now receiving $10,000 for his season's work.

It causes one to wonder what the increase in another decade will be. Ten years from now will $10,000 be the average and $25,000 the limit? If top price marks have been reached, then the step will be backward. No one believes baseball is at the turning point of its popularity.

KOREA'S REAL NAME

Most of the newspapers and many of their readers have denounced the Japanese not only for annexing Korea, but for changing its very name. It is only fair to the Japanese, who have tried to deal very gently with Korean susceptibilities, to point out that they have done nothing of the sort. In the treaty of annexation Korea is called (ho-seu), which has been the name of the country for the last five hundred years or more. Surely every writer and newspaper reporter who has travelled in the East has referred to Korea, with a graceful literary touch, as the Land of the Morning Calm, which is a poetical translation of Chosen. How comes it that the no one in the editorial rooms recognized the title in the treaty? The name Korea is one of those strange bastard titles that Europeans have given to Eastern countries whose language they could not read or speak. The ordinary Chinese name for the people of Chosen is Kowli, which in vulgar parlance becomes Kori (K) and is interchangeable in all the Far Eastern languages. Travellers from the west found the word Kori in common use and dubbed the country Korea.—From "Notes and Pictures" in the November Metropolitan Magazine.

A man hopes for the best until he gets it—then he hopes for something better.
