

PICTORIAL REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

The panda, of the Himalayas, the only old world relative of the American racoon, is a new attraction at the Washington Zoo.

This strange craft, which its French designer calls a hydroaéroscaphe, holds the world's record for water craft with a speed of 63 miles an hour.

Miss Ivy Hawke, a nineteen-year-old English girl, training for an attempt to swim the English Channel.

The Clemenceau cane, a walking stick similar to that carried by the Tiger of France, is now the rage with the fair sex of Paris.

The designer of this costume, recently seen in Paris, must have had a touch of spring fever.

San Francisco has found a new game—automobile pushball. Three autos comprise a team and the game is said to be more exciting than polo.

One of the Chicago fire halls has a canine mascot, and Felix never misses a fire.

Senorita Clotilda Vega, delegate for Nicaragua and Senorita Rubi Gutierrez, delegate from Paraguay to the recent conference of women at Baltimore.

The Kagee, a very rare bird, recently acquired by the London Zoo, sports a wonderful crest.

Miss Sallie Kilne, a twenty-year-old New York girl, has a way with burglars. The other day she found one in her home. For an hour she lectured him on the error of his ways, then led him to the door and shook hands with him.

Thousands were rendered homeless when the Mississippi went on the rampage. Here is a remarkable photograph of the river surging through a break in the levee near New Orleans.

A hen of Oakley, Ohio, has "adopted" four terrier pups and puts up a great fight when the mother attempts to come near them.

Who said the war spirit is dead in Germany? The military display at the funeral of Count Von Falkenhayne, former chief of staff.

Pearl Thomas, a Toledo, Ohio, manicurist, aspires to be a U.S. senator and has started her campaign. Included in her platform is a demand for light wines and beer.

That youth is not always served was demonstrated when Harry Page, over sixty and with only one eye, rode his sixteen-year-old mount, Gold Flute, to victory in a steeplechase at the United Hunt's meeting at Belmont Park.
