

"What is ballast, father?" said Joseph, as he was reading a book about ships and shipping.

"Ballast, my boy," replied his father, "is that which they put into a ship when she is empty, in order to weigh her, and make her sail steadily. Without ballast, she would be turned over by the high winds or heavy seas."

"And what do they use for ballast, papa?"

"In whatever port the ship may happen to be, the captain tries to get a cargo of goods which may be likely to sell well in the port the ship is going to, and in that case the cargo is called the ballast; but when the captain cannot get a cargo of goods, he is obliged to fill the hold, or bottom part of the ship, with stones, or gravel, or anything else that he can get, that may be heavy enough for this purpose. Joseph, my boys are speaking on this subject. Joseph, my thoughts go another way. I am ready to say that I hope, as you go on your voyage, you will all care to carry ballast, and that of the right kind."

"Carry ballast, father? Why I am not a ship; nor yet am I going on a voyage, that I know of."

"No; but do you never hear of the 'voyage of life,' Joseph?"

"O, yes! I have heard you mean that the 'life is sailing on it,' and men and women are the ships sailing on it."

"Yes Joseph, and boys and girls, too. I hope you have got ballast on board."

"Well, father, I can understand that; but what do I mean by the ballast of life?"

"Knowledge, my boy. Knowledge is the ballast of the soul. Do you think you can go through this world without knowledge?"

"I suppose not, father, any better than a ship can cross the sea without ballast."

"Just so. But take care you take the right sort of ballast. Suppose, now, a ship should be laden with nothing heavier than trusses of straw. Do you think it would sail with safety?"

"Well, I suppose that, straw being so light, the ship would not be much safer than if it had nothing at all on board. But just tell me what you call a good cargo."

"Well, then, suppose you were to read nothing but story-books, suppose you were to store your mind with no other knowledge than what you read with no other knowledge than that that be a good cargo for your ship?"

"I suppose, father, that would be like the cargo of straw. I should think that a good cargo of English grammar, arithmetic, geography, and history, would be the best sort of cargo to load my ship with."

"A very good cargo, Joseph; but not all that would be wanted. Suppose I may add Greek, Latin and French; and also science."

"Very good. But, Joseph, your cargo would be wanting unless you had something that you have not mentioned. Where is your voyage on the sea of life to end?"

"In eternity, father."

"Yes, Joseph, we are all journeying to eternity. As you read your Bible, and read the twenty-sixth of the seventeenth chapter of John."

Joseph read: "And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

"Now, Joseph, you can tell me what knowledge will make your cargo complete. What is it?"

"The knowledge of Jesus Christ, father."

"Yes, my boy; grammar and arithmetic, science and languages, are more or less necessary for your comfort and usefulness on the voyage of life; but you will not have a successful voyage unless you have as ballast the knowledge of Jesus Christ. Where do you get it?"

"From the Bible, father."

"Quite right, Joseph, I am glad, indeed, that you are doing your best to take in a good store of knowledge that shall help you to be useful on your voyage; but, above all, grace to give you the love, and pray for the aid of the Holy Spirit to help you to gain more and more, each day that you live, of that knowledge which is 'able to make you wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus.'"

WOMAN

Place her and she fosters her as a tender plant, and she is a thing of fancy, whimsicalness and sometimes folly—annoyed by a dew-drop, fretted by the touch of a butterfly's wing and ready to faint at the rustle of a bee; the zephyrs are too rough, the showers too heavy and she is overpowered by the perfume of a rose-bud. Her natural calamity comes, romantic affections, enkindled by the gaze of her heart, and mark her down, how her heart trembles itself—how strong in her purpose. Place her in the heat of a battle—give her a child, a bird—anything she loves or pities, to protect—and see her in a relative instance, raising her white arms as a shield, as her own blood crimson her upturned forehead, praying for life to protect the helpless.

Place her in the dark places of earth, awaken her energies to action, and her breath becomes a healing, her presence a blessing—She disputes, inch by inch, the stride of the stalking pestilence, when man, the strong and brave, shrinks away, pale and affrighted. Misfortune haunts her not; she wears away the life of a slave, and she is free. Place her in the timidity than to her bride. In prosperity she is a bud full of colors, waiting but for the wind of adversity to scatter them abroad—pure gold, valuable, but untried in the furnace. In short woman is a miracle—a mystery, the centre from which radiates the great charm of existence.

DISCIPLINE IN CHILDHOOD.

Young people who have been habitually gratified in all their desires, will infallibly take it more amiss when the feelings or happiness of others require that they should be denied, than those who have been practically trained to the habit of subduing and restraining them; and consequently will, in general, sacrifice the happiness of others to their own selfish indulgence. To what else is the selfishness of princes and other great people to be attributed? Is it vain to say that the selfish principles of avarice and beneficence by mere exhortation and reasoning? Nothing but the practical habit of overcoming our selfishness and of familiarly encountering privations and discomforts on account of others, will ever enable us to do it when required. And, therefore, as firmly persuaded that the habit of indulgence and softness and hardness of heart, and that nothing but pretty severe discipline and control can lay the foundation of a magnanimous character.—Lord Jeffrey.

HOW TO FORGIVE A RIVAL.—Resolve that you will love and wish well to the man who has fallen out with you, and who has fallen out with you. Go to him and get acquainted with him, yet you and he are both true men you will not find it difficult to like him. It is perhaps asking too much of human nature to ask you to do all this in the case of the man who has carried off the "woman you loved; but as regards anything else, do it all. Go to your rival, and say, "I find myself I had been you, it will do good, good both to him and yourself. Let it not be that envy, that growing ill, shall be suffered in your heart for one minute."

LORD BATHAM rebuked a dishonest Chancellor of the Exchequer by finishing a quotation the latter had commenced, The debate turned upon some grant of money for the encouragement of art, which was opposed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who finished his speech against Lord Batham by saying,—"Why was not this obedient sold and the money given to the poor?"

Chatham rose, and said,—"Why did not the noble lord complete the quotation, the application being so striking? As he has said, 'I will finish the money for him!' This Judas said, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and carried the bag!"

BIGAMY.—A young couple were sitting together in a romantic spot, with birds and flowers about them, when the following dialogue ensued:—"My dear, if the sacrifice of my life would please thee, most gladly would I lay it at thy feet."

"Oh, sir, you are too kind! But it just reminds me that I wish you'd stop just talking about it!"

"Can't think of it. It's a habit to which I am wedded."

"Very well, sir, for since this is the way you lay down your life for me, and as you are already wedded to tobacco, I'll take good care you are never wedded to me, so it would be bigamy."

Great diffidence was experienced in furnishing the Pennsylvania troops with shoes at the commencement of the three months' service. Those that were furnished were generally much too large for the wearers. This fact occasioned much merriment and some inconvenience. A raw recruit in Colonel O'Connell's regiment was being put through the squad drill, when the following colloquy took place:—

Sergeant.—"Why don't you mind the orders there Patrick Kelly? There ye've bin standin' like a spalpeen ever since ye come out, and niver a once fessed to the right or left! Shure an' I'll arrist ye D'ye mind?"

Private.—"Ye're mistaken altogether, sergeant. Shure an' ye've bin lookin' at me shoes. Divil a bit can I turn them around!"

At Rock Island, Illinois we have a friend of the drawer who writes:—"In company with an old friend, Lawyer C., started on a hunting excursion. Rock River lay in our route, spanned by a double track bridge. We of course took the right, and did not perceive (not quite daylight yet,) a team approaching from the opposite direction on the same track.

"'Halloo, there!' shouted my indignant friend. 'What did you take this track for?'"

"And," was the reply, 'what does yer Honor find fault wid me for? Didn't I take the same track ye did yourself?'"

"That was Irish beyond a doubt, and admitted of no answer."

Two families were dug out of the snow in Maine, recently, and those who were engaged in the task of disintombing them, were under the necessity of finding the chimney! This fact is enough for the most ardent gentlemen of course—dearable and reliable gentlemen vouch for almost anything now-a-days.

A singular accident happened a few days since in Oswego, N.Y. Mr. and Mrs. Mahony with their three children, had retired, when suddenly the floor on three sides of the room gave way, and they made an abrupt descent into the cellar, together with all the articles of household furniture and so forth. Although the cellar was not that deep, nobody was seriously injured. Mr. Mahony received a blow in the chest from the stove, and one of the children was slightly bruised.

SHEEP IN CALIFORNIA.—A correspondent of the Pacific Sentinel estimates the number of sheep in California at 2,000,000 and an average amount of fleece on each of three pounds, giving an annual wool crop of 6,000,000 pounds, with a rapidly increasing tendency.

We have a commerce with the Canadian or "British North American Provinces" averaging from the last half a dozen years over forty millions of dollars. Notwithstanding our recently expelled troops, almost all trade of England, this trade has scarcely been interrupted in the least part; as the fact thus established is, that the Canada and the United States are bound to each other by the most intimate and strongest ties of interest, and no diplomatic device of intrigue can separate them.—New York Times.

THE undersigned, having examined and tested the quality of Lake Huron Grindstones brought into this neighborhood by Mr. A. L. Kinch of Ramsey can confidently recommend them to be used for all purposes.
They are every way superior to the Boreas stones in constant use, and being put at a very low figure, make them the most every farmer's mechanic. None should be without one. They are to be seen at the Railway Station in village.
