

DUNDARAVE

community is more closely knit; for, while cliques and parties may continue to cherish old illusions, the individuals who compose them are unable to remain in ignorance of the fact that their opponents love children and roses just as sincerely as wiser men. We build our faith in the future of West

Vancouver upon neighborliness; here, there will be no question of partizan policies nor of private greed, for the welfare of each citizen depends upon a desire to preserve and to enhance the pleasantness of homes.

R. P. MATHESON.