CALEDONIA SPRINGS.

THE favorable opinion I formerly entertained of the waters of the Caledonia Springs is more than confirmed, as well from the benefits personally derived from their use, as from what I observed of their effects on others. The water should be drank in moderate quantities before breakfast, and persevered in for some weeks at least.

FOR PUBLIC CONSIDERATION.

IN no instance has prevalent infatuation been productive of more deplorable consequences, than the blind concession that the members of the medical profession alone are competent to administer remedies for disease. The general consequence which is given to this preposterous pretension of an interested class, is one of the most prolific sources of disease, suffering, and early death. How many thousands of persons there are, at this moment surrendering their constitutions to the incursions of almost every variety of human malady, from their reluctance to incur the expense of consulting a physician, and from their silly prejudice against the most simple medicine, unless sanctioned by the mystic authority of a pretensionally learned prescription! If they could see that prescription in plain English, they would find, in a vast majority of cases that it would do nothing in the world but a little rhabarb, or some or jalap, or aloes, mixed with sugar and water, and mixed with a little peppermint, or some other general drug; and a simple cathartic like this is generally efficacious. But the druggist keeps the prescription, and when the patient gets ill again he has again to consult the physician, instead of procuring himself, at a mere fraction of the original expense, the wonderful remedy which had relieved him. It is that a majority of the population of every civilized country suffer disease to work its insidious way into their system, because the relief they derive from medical aid is at once expensive, transitory, and inefficient of access; and thus is exemplified the memorable confession of an eminent physician, that "Prescriptions in the Roman language indirectly killed more than all the Roman armies."

A medicine so compounded that it will cleanse the alimentary canal of all its feculent accumulations and incumbrances, give a new and invigorating action to all the viscera that contribute to the digestive functions, and by promoting the insensible perspiration, relieve the whole system of febrile and inflammatory symptoms, will necessarily prove a great blessing to mankind, if rendered at a price which places it within the reach of all classes. If it have an extensive sale it cannot fail to work more cures, and to do far more general good, than all the members of the medical profession combined can possibly accomplish within the comparatively narrow limits of their private practice. Such a medicine has been in MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS and PHENIX BITTERS, the efficacy of which are established throughout the United States, and have been testified by thousands of individuals whom they have relieved and cured. It is in vain that the interested denouncers of popular medicines attempt to exclude these in their indiscriminate approbation. Facts beat them down, and they are vanquished by their own prejudices. Could the most eminent and successful physician that ever lived collect so many testimonials of remarkable cures, and of so extensive an alleviation of suffering, under an almost endless variety of human diseases, as have been so successfully presented to the proprietors of the LIFE PILLS and PHENIX BITTERS during the last two years? He believes not, and would be glad to put the question to the test.

The pre-eminence reputation of these medicines being firmly established upon the basis of innumerable facts, it only remains necessary to inform persons who are unacquainted with them of some among the multitudes of cases, and of the results which have repeatedly proved successful, and in which, therefore, it may confidently be presumed they will succeed hereafter: 1. Dyspepsia, both chronic and casual, under the worst symptoms of restlessness and pain, flatulency head-ache, nausea, loss of appetite, heart-burn, costiveness, bilious salivaceous general debility and wasting away of the body. 2. Diarrhoea, whether feculent, mucous, serous, interstuous, bilious, or tubular. 3. Jaundice, both of the lary and spasmodic, hepatic, infectious, and of the dark green variety. 4. Helminthiasis, in both the large and anal, and of every variety, from the large tape and joint worm to the insect larvae of the stomach and rectum. 5. Piles, of the blood, the bleeding, the white, and the caruncular varieties. 6. Costiveness, whether arising from constipation or obstruction, and of howsoever long standing. 7. Colic, the spastic, the painter's, the constipated, the constructive, and flatulent. 8. Coughs, the common or humid cough, and the whooping cough. 9. Asthma, the serous or dry, and common or humid. 10. The Rheumatism, acute and chronic, together with the dropsy, or gout. 11. Marasmus, whether as general atrophy or loss of flesh, or pulmonary decline and consumption, if taken before cavities have been formed in the lungs. 12. Scrophulous, and rapidly efficacious even in the singular case of Scrophulous. 13. Hypochondriasis, and all other nervous affections. 14. Spasmodic Palpitation, of the heart and of the arteries. 15. Head-ache. It is evident, therefore, that these medicines are composed of ingredients which act upon the system universally, and not mere adole preparations. They act without causing pain, or producing any prostration of nervous energy, but, on the contrary, strengthen, invigorate and calve, from the first day's experience of their operation, until the period of convalescence. Directions for an accompany them.

All post paid letters will receive immediate attention.
