ABOUT APPEALS.

In New York a controversy has been raging over the important question whether angels should be represented in art as of the male or female gender. This controversy arose over the objections raised to a pair of angel figures which had been wrought by a sculptor for the new Episcopal cathedral. The sculptor represented his angels as females. Numerous objections were raised. It was held by his critics that the angels should be of the male persuasion. So the sculptor, in a fit of rage, destroyed his work.

The controversy has extended to this country. We observe with regret that our friend Mr. Smiff, of the Bobaycon Independent, takes it for granted that nothing can be said in favor of the masculinity of angels. Always gallant, he hastens to champion the cause of the gentler sex; but his generosity of motive cannot justify such flippancy as this:

Who ever heard of a male angel? A New York sculptor being employed to cut a couple of angels for a cathedral, as a matter of course made them feminine. By some strange freak the clerical critics insisted on the angels being made masculine. The sculptor smashed his angels to pieces. That was his mistake. He should have smashed the critics. An angel with a mustache of the up-side-down German Billy variety, would look like—well, wouldn't it now?

But why should Mr. Smiff and so many others assume that it must be inartistic to represent an angel as a male? Let an appeal be taken from one class of artist to another. It is true that the conventional angel is represented as a beautiful female. That was the type that was conceived by the early artists, and it has been imitated all down the centuries. But in such a matter as this is not the imagination of a poet as likely to "shadow forth the forms of things unseen" with artistic truthfulness as the imagination of a painter or sculptor? And what is the verdict of the poetic imagination? We know that the poet Otway has said,

"Oh woman, lovely woman, Angels are painted far to look like you."

But that is merely a statement of fact. Otway doesn't tell us what is his own conception of an angelic personality. But Milton does not hesitate. In his great epic many angels are described, and there is not a female angel among them. They are all of them, angels and arch-angels, males, and fine manly fellows at that, who can fight sturdily as well as discuss theology like a doctor of divinity. Let us see how these Miltonic angels looked as "bodied forth" by the imagination of the blind old bard. Here is his description of Raphael, the "affable archangel," who was the guest of honor at the vegetarian banquet prepared by Eve in Eden:

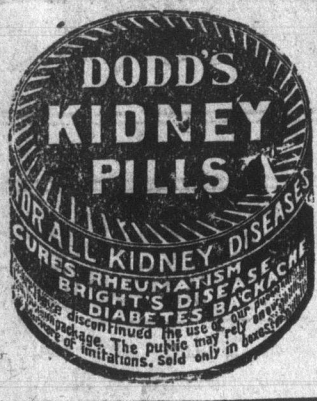

A seraph wing'd: six wings he wore,
to shade
His lineaments divine; the pair that glad Each shoulder broad came mantling o'er his breast
With regal ornament; the middle pair Girt like a starry zone his waist, and round Skirted his loins and thighs with downy gold.
And colors dipt in heaven; the third his feet
Shadow'd from either heel with feather'd mail,
Sky-tintured grain. Like Maia's son he stood,
And shook his plumes, that heav'nly
fragrance fill'd
The circuit wide.

And here is the pen-picture of the redoubtable Michael, who vanquished Satan in a hard-fought duel:

Over his lucid arms
A military vest of purple flow'd.
His starry helm unbuckled shov'd him prime In manhood where youth ended; by his side,
As in a glistening zodiac, hung his sword.
Satan's dire dread, and in his hand
the spear.

And when the arch-fiend himself disguised himself as an angel of light, this is the form he took:

In his face Youth smiled celestial, and to every limb Suitable grace diffused, so well he feigned:
Under a coronet his flowing hair
In curls on either cheek played;
wings he wore
Of many a colored plume, sprinkled with gold;
His habit fit for speed, succinct, and held

Before his decent steps a silver wand.

In the absence of scientific evidence on the subject we are willing to back Milton's imagination against that of any painter or sculptor of them all.

PRINCE CHARLIE TO BE KING.

May Decline if Republican Sentiment in Norway Is Too Strong.

Christiania, Oct. 17.—King Oscar's official refusal of the offer of the Norwegian throne for a Prince of the house of Bernadotte is expected to-day, when the Government will immediately ask the Storting to authorize an invitation to Prince Charles of Denmark to become King. It is said the reply will be favorable, and that immediately on its receipt the Storting will proceed to his election.

The Republicans are making desperate efforts to secure a plebiscite. Last night they published a manifesto protesting against the election of a King and favoring a Republican form of Government. It is understood that the Republicans now control 20 votes in the Storting, and it is feared that Prince Charles will decline if the Republican minority is sufficiently strong to be worthy of consideration.

In Government circles, however, it is declared that the question will be settled before the end of the present week.

They Part Forever.
Stockholm, Oct. 17.—The union between Norway and Sweden, which has existed since 1814, has been dissolved, both Houses of the Riksdag having passed the Government bill repealing the act of union.

It Is All Wrong 'And Man Is The Only Creature That Does It.

The complete emptiness of the stomach during sleep adds greatly to the amount of emaciation, sleeplessness and general weakness so often met with. There is a perpetual change of tissues in the body, sleeping or waking, and the supply of nourishment ought to be somewhat continuous and food taken just before retiring, adds more tissue than is destroyed, and increased weight and vigor is the result. Dr. W. T. Catlett says: "All animals except man eat before sleep and there is no reason in Nature why man should form the exception to the rule."

If people who are thin, nervous and sleepless would take a light lunch of bread and milk or oatmeal and cream and at the same time take a safe, harmless stomach remedy like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in order to aid the stomach in digesting it, the result will be a surprising increase in weight, strength and general vigor. The only drawback has been that thin, nervous, dyspeptic people cannot digest and assimilate wholesome food at night or any other time. But now it is absolutely necessary to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they will digest the food, no matter how weak the stomach may be, nourishing the body and resting the stomach at the same time.

Dr. Stevenson says: "I depend entirely upon Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in treating indigestion, because it is not a quack nostrum, and I know just what they contain, a combination of vegetable essences, pure pepsin, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they will digest the food, no matter how weak the stomach may be, nourishing the body and resting the stomach at the same time."

JOHN WELSH, Clerk.

Compromising a Tenor.

Czar Nicholas I. used to walk the streets of St. Petersburg alone wrapped in a large grey cloak. It was forbidden to speak to him, but the czar sometimes forgot that a subject could not obey the prohibition if the emperor addressed him.

Once the czar met in a park the tenor singer of the Italian opera and exchanged a few words with him. The moment the czar was out of sight the police arrested the tenor. That evening the czar attended the opera, where, after a long delay, the manager announced that the tenor could not be found. Nicholas guessed what had happened and sent an aid-de-camp to release the singer.

A few days after the czar again met the tenor and began with an apology: "I was very sorry."

"May I implore your majesty," the Italian exclaimed, "not to speak to me? Your majesty will compromise me with the police."

Measures.

A gallon is exactly ten pounds of distilled water, so when housewives say "a pint's a pound the world around" they are mistaken.

The Imperial standard yard, which is the same as our own, is the distance between two fine lines on a bar of bronze, measured at 62 degrees F. The bar is kept mounted on eight rollers in a special steel safe in London.

The standard pound is kept in a silver gilt box contained in a bronze box, the top of which is securely screwed down and the whole placed in a special compartment of the same safe.

The German metric system took the place of more than twenty local measures. The Hesse-Darmstadt foot was less than ten inches, the Schwarzbürg-Rudolstadt foot more than fifteen.
