Give Sick, Bilious Child
"California Fig Syrup"

"California Syrup of Figs" is the best "laxative physic" to give to a sick, feverish child who is bilious or constipated. Directions for babies and children on bottle. "The love its fruity taste. Beware! Say "California" or you may not get the genuine recommended by physicians for over thirty years. Don't risk injuring your child's tender stomach, liver and bowels by accepting an imitation fig syrup. Insist upon "California."

Weekly Political Letter

Politically, the capital is as dull as ditch water. Ministers are busy in their offices and in Council preparing for the work of the session. There is a feverish haste in and around the Parliament buildings, getting everything ready for the opening on the 14th. The Hon. Mr. McCurdy has announced that they are practically completed, everything but the entrance hall and the Court of Honour. The Senate Chamber, which is a thing of beauty and will remain a joy forever to the occupants of the second chamber, is ready. So also is the new restaurant and the entrance to the Library. Much has been done also to improve the members' rooms, so that Parliament may really begin to feel itself at home this session. Last session the accommodation was largely temporary, with a good deal of quiet kicking. Members of Parliament are not always reasonable, even in things outside of politics.

It has been recognized the world over that the capital buildings should be representative of the people in art and cultural development. They must be dignified and imposing. They are built to last and usually constitute a monument to which the citizens look to with pride. It has been the creed of Socialists that art, in architecture, sculpture, painting and even music, should be nation possession and not private, and in that respect the Ottawa building cannot be objected to by the most radical. It will be conceded by everyone qualified to judge that externally and internally the new buildings fulfill all their requirements of good taste, as well as of usefulness and, barring earthquakes or bombardment, they will stand as good as today four or five hundred years from now and be venerated as the ancient structures of Great Britain are venerated.

The only thing of real interest politically is the bye-election in West Peterboro. The contest is in full swing and the electors there have had a feast of good speaking practically on all sides. As to the result, it would not be safe to bet a shilling. With five candidates in the field, and the electorate in an uncertain state of mind and many divers influences at work anything may happen. One thing is certain the Government has not lost an inch, but is steadily gaining ground. With five candidates in the field, if each polled its full complement of votes to which he might reasonably be entitled considering the various elements to which appeals are made, it would be difficult to venture a prediction. It is a curious feature of the campaign that four out of the five candidates are strong for protection. The farmer candidate has thrown aside the A. F. O. banner and is marching under the National Progressive Party flag, something very significant in itself, and he alone with Crerar as his leader, is sounding the free trade note.

What is very sure is that whoever shall be elected, the result will be meaningless as to reflecting the public opinion of the constituency as a whole, with this exception, the return of the Government would be a substantial victory inasmuch as it is a fight of four to one, and would mean that the Government's pronouncement on the tariff is the real issue and that its policy on that question is alone to be taken seriously. But with, so far as the city is concerned, a practical unanimity as to protection and the interjection of the religious issue, nothing will be decisive when it is all over. It means at the most that one of the five candidates will draw the sessional indemnity.

It is not known definitely here whether Mr. Crerar will go into the riding. Mackenzie King is going back again this week, although it is said that the net result of his last visit was a boost for Mr. Burnham, inasmuch as he gave that gentleman credit for making the issue and declared that had it not been for the out and out Conservatism of the ex-member, the Liberals would have supported him as a protest against the Government.

Sir Henry Drayton made a splendid impression. His frank discussion of the issues, and clear, business-like way of presenting his case was greatly admired. He is sure to make friends of his audience, even if he should not make converts.

Mr. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, has been doing great work. His definite challenge to the opponents of the government to come forward with proofs of their vague charges and innuendoes met with no response. He is one of the most incisive and clear cut speakers on the hustings and he has been driving home blow after blow which silence, if they do not convince opposition.

Three Million Dollar Action Against Ford

Chicago, Feb. 1—The complaint in a $3,000,000 damage suit against Henry Ford and his paper, the Dearborn Independent, was filed in circuit court today by Morris Gest, theatrical producer, who alleged that an article in the Independent on January 21, 1921, contained "libellous, slanderous and false statements" concerning Mr. Gest and certain stage productions he has handled. The article mentioned in suit was said to have attacked "Aphrodite" and "Mecca," in particular, terming them "the most saucious spectacles ever shown in America."

Other Suit Coming
Gest's attorney here announced it had been planned to file similar suits in Detroit today. The article which was alleged to have been libellous was quoted in the complaint. It asserted that the American stage was "under the influence of a group of former boot-blacks, newsboys, ticket speculators, prize ring habitués and
