With so many British Emblems to chose from it should not be difficult for an authoritative pronouncement to be made defining the precise style of the flag which as loyal subjects we are permitted to fly on festal and state occasions. RECORD OF MILITARY SERVICE. The bestowal by H. M. the King of the prefix "Royal" on the Newfoundland Regiment, in recognition of its services in Gallipoli, France, and Flanders, has given the greatest satisfaction throughout the Colony. The distinction is one of which the regiment may well be proud, and may justly be regarded as a well-earned loyal sacrifice. The following figures, dealing with Newfoundland's manpower contribution to the War, have recently been compiled, and are of considerable interest. They cover the period from the outbreak of hostiliments in the Newfoundland Regiment Naval Reserve 1.807, while 446 joined the Colony's Forestry Battalion. total of 6,448 is decidedly creditable in view of the fact that the entire popplation numbers only 250,000, and that seven-eighths of these are fisher-folk. The regiment was engaged in four critical encounters on the Western Front-namely, at Beaumont Hamel and Gueudecourt, in 1916, and at Monchy Le Preux and Cambrai last year. those reported as "missing-probably the Naval Reserve have been much lighter, the total fatalities from all causes being only 137. A NEW CHANNEL FOR EXPORTS. Last year's Customs returns record the export of pulp and paper, in conworth Mills, and a little investigation mand so far increased as to cover the entire output of the mills. Some 30,-000 tons of material was shipped to America during the latter half of last year, and there is every reason to expect that this market will continue to absorb all the pulp and paper Newfoundland can supply, for the duration of the War at any rate. Transport was effected by means of American and Canadian ships, many of Canadian canals, and the cargoes thus carried were distributed among the smaller towns of the Eastern States. -May "United Empire."

ON THE ITALIAN FRONT-GREAT BATTLE RAGING.

ROME, June 16. (Official.)

A great battle has been in progress once of the fire and the number guns employed, the enemy began s expected offensive by launching siago plateau, at the end of the enta Valley, and on Monte Grappa, attempts at many points to force a Piave and by carrying out heavy al demonstrative actions on the inder of the front. Our infantv and that of the Allied contingents arlessly bore the tempest of deructive fire and supported by barge of their own artillery, which had eady prudently anticipated the paration with a timely and deadly ter - preparation bombardment, sustained the enemy laughts in the advanced areas. The emy reached our front lines, but ade very little progress. They were ised on the right completely, but ned a few hundred yards near the eft bank of our centre. Our line folowing a shell-like depression, in which is the town of Asiago, is irtegular in outline and thickly wooded h places. Flat as it looks from our ions the country is full of hidden folds in the grounds, and lends itself ather easier to attack by small isolated detachments. The morning of the attack was more than unusually misty, and the bulk of the enemy roops approached along the line of railway running from Asiago to the little village of Cesuna, which follows a marked depression in the ground. In accordance with recent German methods, the attacking troops were rushed up during the night from Val Sugana by motor transport. Heav as was the preliminary bombardment, gas shells were only sparingly used against our troops. The attack on the British formed only a part of the trian plan. ITALIAN OFFICIAL.
