When Louis Kline appeared before Judge S. P. Emery in the court of Lawrence County, Penn., charged with violation of the traffic laws, he was sentenced to sell his auto and to apply the proceeds toward paying off a $500 mortgage on his home and also to sign an abstinence pledge.

When Mrs. Mary Rhysal, of Blacktown, Penn., heard that a local bank had been robbed she went to her own bank and withdrew $1,587.50—the savings of her lifetime—and gave them to a neighbor for safe keeping, but during the following night burglars entered the neighbor's home and carried off the savings.

An airplane capable of landing without the need of a large aviation field, able to rise without a long run beforehand, able to travel more than 300 miles an hour, if necessary, to meander along at but a few miles an hour, is announced as the invention of an Italian engineer, Epaminonda Bertucci, of Rome. The new machine is primarily intended for aerial war chasing and is to be armed with a machine gun. It is a monoplane.

A tax on incomes, whether for Dominion or Municipal purposes, has no terror for the average preacher, says the Brantford Ont. Expositor. A questionnaire respecting their savings was filled in recently by one hundred and twenty-five pastors in the Toronto Methodist Conference. Only fifty-six of the one hundred and twenty-five had been able to save any money during the past year, and the savings ranged from fifteen dollars in one instance to another where a whole hundred dollars was saved. Thirty of the one hundred and twenty-five pastors had actually been forced into debt during the year. The average salary of the group for the whole ministerial period was $396—the lowest being $600, and the highest $1,425. Yet, there are some people who are mean enough to say they do not go to church because it is a money-making institution.

Tobacco and Health.

(From the London Express.)

When nearly all men, and most women, smoke tobacco, it is a matter of national concern whether the practice is or is not harmful. Let us put aside the violent opinions of cranks, whether for or against, and see how sober, instructed medical observation decides the question. Every doctor will tell you that smoking is bad for the young. It may weaken the heart and damage nerve of the eye. Let the first rule for national guidance be, then, "No smoking for boys." No one should be allowed to use tobacco except on the rarest occasions, until his chief growing years are passed. Let boys and girls wait at least until they are twenty-one. What about men and women? The answer is that, as with most other things, tobacco is good for them in moderation, bad for them in excess. Individuals vary in their susceptibility to the action of tobacco, however, and what is moderation for one is excess for another. Experience soon teaches the adult what amount is harmless to him. The man or woman who never goes beyond that finds smoking a blessed gift.

Cinema 4,000 Years Old

The movie industry is four thousand years old, according to a story told recently by J. Stuart Blackton. Rameses, a Pharaoh of the Egyptians, "put on" the first movie. It was displayed on the outer wall of the temple at Thebes, according to Mr. Blackton. Starting at one end of the wall and extending to the other there is still to be seen a row of figures of the great Rameses, 120 of them, beginning at one end with Rameses, hands down and head looking rigidly "off left" and changing the pose gradually in each figure. As the ancient Egyptians rolled by in their chariots and passed an eye along the row of figures old Rameses seemed to them to move, and as the last figure slipped by they saw Rameses finally, the first of the movie stars, with his hand fully outstretched and his head completely turned.

Husband Declares Her Every Bone and Muscle Hurt

Halifax Woman Couldn't Get Out Of Chair Without Help
—Now Picture of Health.

"I never saw such a change in anybody as there has been in my wife since she began taking Tanlac," said Melvin Baker, 31 Seaforth St., Halifax, N.S.

"My wife had rheumatism practically all over her whole body and often complained that every bone and muscle was aching. For weeks at a time she was unable to do a bit of housework, not even wash a dish, and sometimes she couldn't get out of her chair without help. She hardly ate enough to keep her alive and fell off in weight until she was little more than a shadow. At night she was in such pain she would lie awake until two or three o'clock in the morning. Explains now altogether. In fact she is the very picture of health, and says she hasn't a pain or an ache and just feels fine. With such evidence before my eyes of Tanlac's merits, of course I am a believer in it."

The stomach regulates the condition of the blood and is the fountain of good health or disease as the case may be. Tanlac is intended primarily for a regulator of the stomach and the correction of catarrhal inflammation, but is no uncommon thing for persons who have used it to find that it has relieved them not only of indigestion but also of rheumatism, kidney complaints and many other ailments not generally recognized as having their origin in stomach trouble.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Guespue, in Millertown by Explores Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines and in Lewisporte by Uriah Franko.—adv.

Prof. Elliott Smith's Extraordinary Task.

"In the course of a paper at the Royal Society of Medicine, Prof. Elliott Smith, who spent nine years in Egypt examining some 40,000 bodies from ancient Egyptian cemeteries, gave some little-known facts concerning the extraordinary preservation of mummies and the ailments from which people suffered who existed about six thousand years ago.

"He actually came across one case, but only one, of gout. Arthritis appeared to be very common indeed. Several cases of tuberculosis were discovered. It was obvious that the bodies of women were not mummified immediately after death as in the case of men, but were left a few days. Blood stained actually persisted through fifty or sixty centuries.

"It was possible to examine the brains, stomachs, etc., of the people of the pyramid age. In the stomachs of thousands of children were found mice which had been skinned and swallowed in the belief that they gave life. The onion was largely used by the embalmers, having a great reputation as a therapeutic agent in Ancient Egypt. "In one cemetery the Professor found eighty bodies all of whose skulls showed a curious deformation, which he ascribed to the wearing of heavy full-bottomed wigs in pre-dynastic times."

Who Won the War?

ENGLAND'S RANKER FIELD MARSHAL SUPPLIES AN ANSWER.

Erected on the historic New Green, which adjoins the Royal Botanical Gardens, London, a memorial cross was unveiled the other afternoon by Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, in memory of the 96 men of the parish who fell in the war. Referring to Kew's record, Sir William pointed out that there were 61 members in the football club when war broke out, and, at the end of the year 1914, 53 were in the Army, and the remaining two had been declared medically unfit. He thought that was a record than which there was no better throughout the country. It was sometimes stated, Sir William went on, that the war had been won by some particular commander, a general, a political leader, or it might be, the tanks. That was not truth. The war, he declared, was won by the strong public opinion of all classes of the nation, gallant men, fighting as of old "shoulder to shoulder, and blade to blade." Sir William insisted that the suggestion that "England was slipping back" should be rejected, and, in the name of those who had fallen in all the theatres of war, he urged that we should carry on in the same way as those who died that we might live would have done. Deductive prayers were said by the Archbishop of Maidstone, the Rev. J. B. Macmillan, Sir William Robertson, it may be recalled, has had a most romantic career. He rose from the ranks.

lawless vessel was manned by "out and out pirates" or "was sent by the Soviet Government to prey on American commerce." The scene of the encounter is in the path of coastwise shipping and if a pirate or a Soviet raider is there or thereabouts it should not be difficult to catch the rascal.
