Whatever may have been the faults or merits of that administration, it had the right idea for the T. and N. O. The right idea was to make the road a colonization enterprise, to be conducted solely as an exercity for settling the country and agency for settling the country, and a partner with the people and not a soulless corporation; to make the new life of the pioneer a little easier and to haress him by threatening poverty; to bring him in vast num-bers to be distributed over the millions of acres of land available and to encourage enterprise and not drive it rom the country.

These statements involve charges that should be vindicated by the facts, and the facts are not withheld.

Does it not occur to the reader that he remembers large headlines in the Liberal newspapers some eight or ten years ago, which boomed New Ontarlo as a great place for the new settler?

It was during the last years of the It was during the last years of the Ross Administration that the boon was on. Homeseekers' excursions were conducted into the country, and thousands of settlers located in the northland as a result. Messrs. A. E. Ames, of Toronto, F. E. Leonard, of London, and other members of the original commission, were scarcely more than able to tap the great clay belt with the line before a change of administration checked the magnificent work that had been done. Sir James' London office is merely an ad-junct of the Sleeping Department! Wonder it is that Laurier's work for one understands after an active week the west didn't inspire a spirit of competition for Sir James, but then Sir James thinks "enterprising" a beastly word. Where are all the won-derful works of Frank Cochrane to be found? He was undoubtedly a good imported butler, whose demand is that he be more served than serving, and who holds a sealed and signed contract for a term of years. His motto lumberjack, as we have read in semi tract for a term of years. His motto is, "I serve them right," as John D.'s business was undoubtedly pike-poling and not governing. For the flood of immigration has flown steadily to is "I do them good." And this butler, if the west, and this vast hinterland has lers when it might have had choking trainloads. High grade rates and high grade ore have made the T. and N. O. pay enormous profits. The settlers are settling, all right. Highest Rates Charged. The road pays not a cent of taxes, in the first place. Its rates are maintaired by such shippers as the Taylor hardware people and many others, to be above the rates of the commercial Were the treasury receiving lines. taxes from the line, and a profit-seekng commission of super-Tories still in charge, there might be some understanding of the exorbitant rates. The settler may be told that he is not overcharged, but he has no recourse, is he has against the Grand Trunk or Canadian Pacific, He may petition the attorney-general at Toronto, who works for the same boss as the T. and N. O., but the red tape is usually affective in scaring him off. Should his family be injured he must petition the attorney-general before he is permitted to sue the T., and N. O. The T., and N. O., it may be remarked, has not as a producer of dividends; to be few negligence actions on its hands.

At Englehart a large number of T. and N. O. employees reside. They live in Government houses, built on Government land, and in the natural order of things they have children. These employees receive good wages, but do they use any part of them to pay taxes or any part of them to pay for the education of their children? Not one penny! The municipality pays 19 mills school rate, and the high rate is chiefly because of the attitude of the Government. The T. and N.
