The Revolt and its Lessons: Last week we published, with great doubt as to its authenticity, a statement to the effect that the Red River settlement was in a state of open revolt.

an accurate judgment as to the magnitude of the revolt, and the elements found either directly or indirectly leading to it. It is enough for our present purpose, however, to know that a movement of sufficient magnitude to be dignified by the term 'revolt' has taken place in the settlement, and that the particular elements in the community known as 'half-breeds' forms the active force.

AMMUNITION: The British Colonist has been supplied with a large quantity of ammunition for the use of the militia.

The Election: The contest in District No. 2 has resulted in the return of Mr. DeCosmos by a decided majority over Mr. DeCosmos. The friends of Mr. DeCosmos had a different opinion of the result.
