TORONTO WORLD. TEDNESDAY MORNING AUGUST 5, 1855

A Weil-Merited Tribute. Hon. Mr. Caron, minister of militia, is getting praise from an unexpected quarter. The Montreal Witness gives his pertraia conspicuous place, and, introductory t a brief biographical notice, has the following among other remarks :

ing among other remarks: "In fact, Canadian governments and Canadian people never expected that the volunteers would be called upon to under-take a serious campaign, and the minister of militia was regarded as the head of a sort of a holiday war department, which was only to be supported in case it did net cost much. The recent rebellion and Indian rising in the Northwest have aud-denly changed all that. A country which is, roughly, about the size of France and Spain together, had to be cleared of rebels afternoon is, roughly, about the size of France and Spain together, had to be cleared of rebels and held against hostile Indians. The minister of militia was head of a depart-ment of war which had no organized war departments. Transport, commissariat departments. Transport, comm and medical staffs had all to be organized out of raw material. The public knows very little, for it has been told very little, of how all this was managed; they only know that the result showed that energy and ability had been employed, and that at whatever cost (which has yet to be counted) the work was expeditiously done."

All this is well deserved, and it will count for all the more because coming from a political opponent of Mr. Caron and his party. The fact is that there are few things on the Canadian record more remarkable than the promptitude and vigor with which Mr. Caron, whose office has been heretofore counted almost a sinceure, sprang to arms, so to speak, when the bugle sounded. If the news of the Duck lake fight was a surprise to the country, scarce anything less of a surprise was the energy and despatch shown at the crisis by the minister of militia. In fact we have not got over being surprised at it yet, and the country is bound to hear more of it "ere long." We say it squarely that if the general commanding is worthy of marked reward so also is the head of the militia department. Though not a soldier by profession Mr. Caron did show one of a order paper and adjourn for six or eight soldier's first qualities-the ability to act on the instant. Napoleon used to say that the kind of courage he most valued was what he called "two o'clock in the morning-courage"-the capacity of acting on the instant of alarm, even at the most capacity has Mr. Caron displayed in his to go back and take Khartoum. Fortune department, although not on the field. We can scarcely imagine that the special good service he has rendered will be allowed to pass without fitting acknowl edgment and reward from the highest quarter.

But, says one of the San Francisco papers, after all that the super visors say of the violation of ordinances. the query arises, why are not these ordin. ances against prostitution, gambling and other vices enforced ? - The only answer that can be made is that coolies will go to jail rather than pay a Once in jail the six companies them a regular stipend as pay though they were at work, and the coolies have no shame in remaining in jail as long as the country will pay for their keep. When an attempt was made about three years ago to enforce the Cabic Air ordinance the result was to fill the county jail and city prisons to overflowing with Chinese, not one of whom would pay the $100 fine. When every corner was filled the authorities were forced to liberate the prisoners. The only way to reach these people would be to pass an ordinance requiring prisoners in the county jail to be
