E.A. Charlton,
Resident, New York Graduates Society of McGill.

Today I received your very kind message of good wishes and of sincere co-operation in all that pertains to the welfare of your Alma Mater. I am glad Dean Martin was able to join you at dinner, and I am sure he made a most acceptable representative from the University. He has been here now for many, many years, a brilliant student, a brilliant graduate and a brilliant teacher. We are indeed fortunate to have such men as leaders of our different faculties.

Will you please remember me kindly to all the members of our society in New York. I hope to be with them again some day.

Ever yours faithfully,

Principal
