—According to the Brussels Post the people of that town are urging the Grand Trunk Railway to give them better railway connection with the London, Huron and Brantford Railway. They desire that Goderich, the county town, be reached more conveniently than at present. One of the propositions is that the existing train from London, instead of remaining over night at Wingham, should run on to Palmerston, stay all night, and return to Wingham next morning in time to take the regular run to London. This would give them a first-class connection each way, and would leave the route about the same as when this train went on to K. T. R. RULES.

—The operation of the new regulations framed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company for their employees has been indefinitely postponed. Plenty of time will be given employees to become familiar with the new rules, and instructions will be appointed to assist them in preparing for the examinations. Training master Cunningham will be the examiner on this division, and until the men are quite ready the new order of things will not be instituted. The date will be nearer Aug. 1 than July 1.

PRESENTATION.

The regular meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society in connection with Wellington Street Church was held on Wednesday afternoon. An interesting programme was rendered, Miss Mary Vining, Mrs. Gordon Wright and Miss E. C. Lewis, part.

One of the most interesting features was the presentation to the president, Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Russell, who is leaving the city, with the following address: "Dear Mrs. Russell,—On this the occasion of your last meeting together with us as a society, we feel that we cannot let the opportunity pass without in some way expressing to you our sincere appreciation of your services amongst us, both as president and friend."

"The time we have spent together has been on the whole both pleasant and profitable. We have enjoyed the unvarying kindness and cheerfulness with which you have always met us, though at times we know you have been weary both in mind and body. No one could be a member of the auxiliary without being benefited by your presence and the cheerfulness with which you have always met us."

"If anything has occurred to wound or grieve you we would ask you to forget it and remember us only kindly. May we all have much to say about the personal kindness from you, and we will not soon forget the pleasant smile, the warm hand clasp and the kindly words."

"Dear friend, words are inadequate to express to you all we would say, and you will understand our hearts. Our prayers will follow you to your new home, wherever it may be, that the Lord may bless and prosper both you and yours. May He bless you and make you a blessing."

"Though in all probability we may never all meet together on earth again, we trust that not one will be missing when we meet in our Father's house in the great beyond. Wellington Street Auxiliary."

Temperance Workers

Gather Under Auspices of the King's Daughters.

The Bishop of Huron and Rev. Thomas Wilson Speak on the Work.

A temperance meeting under the auspices of the King's Daughters was held in Bishop Cronyn Hall yesterday afternoon. The attendance was not large, but much enthusiasm was shown. Mrs. (Rev.) Sage presided, and on the platform were Mrs. Thornley, Mrs. Gordon Wright, Rev. Messrs. Sage and Wilson, Secretary Sayer, of the Y. M. C. A., and the Bishop of Huron. The singing began with a hymn, and prayer by Mr. Sayer.

In opening, Mrs. Gordon Wright spoke a few words, urging the importance of the temperance work, and pointing out that temperance brought more souls and homes than any other thing. She also announced that Mrs. Tilley was unable to be present.

Rev. Thos. Wilson, in a short address, said: "We want to thoroughly understand what the temperance question is. Some people say we should not use fermented wine in churches, or eat an apple because there is older in it. A few people take this as the temperance movement. It is not these things we aim to kill, but the terrible liquor traffic, which blights so many lives. What have the temperance people accomplished? Are we going forward or backward? The temperance cause has been going steadily forward. The liquor traffic is being curtailed, which is largely due to the efforts of the W. C. T. U. The King's Daughters and other temperance bodies. In 1871 in the Province of Ontario there were 6185 liquor licenses, and in 1897 there were only 3,132—a decrease of over 3,000 licenses. In Toronto twenty years ago there were 487 license places, and today there are only 207. Under the old law there were four hotels for every 1,000 persons; now the proportion is only three per 1,000. Earlier closing had also been secured. A move should be made to have the bars closed at 8 o'clock. These he said were the few of the things accomplished by the temperance body.

The Bishop of Huron followed with an earnest and eloquent address, opening the speaker said: "I wish to say that the progress you are making for the furtherance of temperance shows that you are most likely to succeed in the present struggle. One of the most important things is to impress the temperance idea upon the minds of the young. They will grow up and become a great power to the cause. I believe the proportion of Canada to be won for temperance is for the whole church to take it up. The Church of Christ should take the little ones and make them aware that they would arraign themselves against the liquor traffic. The church has a power which the world has not. Strong liquor or wine is not necessary for a healthy constitution. They who are the strongest drink water. Man can do the most severe work with water and spirits. Take twenty men, supplied with whiskey, and twenty with coffee, and the latter will be better fitted to do the hardest work. The same is true with soldiers on a march. The present commander of the British forces in Egypt, General Allenby, is a teetotaler. On one occasion a large number of casks containing whiskey were discovered, which he ordered to be broken, and the whiskey was allowed to run in the sand. The human frame is injured by the use of alcoholic stimulants. Their effect make you seem stronger for a time, but in the end you will pay dearly for it. The system at last must become a physical wreck. A great deal has been said in favor of the use of alcoholic stimulants in moderation. A great many young men and women think they can remain moderate drinkers. It is in trying to do this that so many fall. The love of liquor grows, and I am persuaded that the moderate drinkers make the largest proportion of drunkards the world over. They do not mean to do so, but the taste grows and they fall. Moderate drinking is that which leads to ruin. I believe greatly in the power of example. God forbid that the light of the world in everything. Everyone has some influence, and I cannot speak too highly of women's influence. A young man will confide in his mother. She knows every peculiarity and habit about him. A mother's influence is a blessed and consecrated power. Use whatever influence you have, not merely for the cause of temperance, but consider it to guide us. I don't want to say anything against those who drink the glass of wine. I don't see any Bible passage to condemn this. But deny yourself this for Christ. No self-denial is too great for one who has died on the cross that we might be saved. This should be a higher law of self-denial." In conclusion the reverend speaker said: "Go on with your good work. God's blessing will ever attend the work being done by you. I am persuaded that he will with all movements for the good of the world. It is my prayer that God's blessing will rest with you in your noble work."

A number of questions were asked by members of the audience and answered by Mrs. Thornley, at the conclusion of the bishop's address. The meeting closed with the doxology.

They Will Now Nurse the Sick.

Graduated Nurses Presented With Diplomas and Medals.

A Pleasant Time Spent at the Music Hall—Speeches by Members of the Trust and Hospital.

Another of those events, brimful of pleasure to many, and mingled with regret by all connected with the London General Hospital, took place at the Music Hall last night, when the medals and diplomas were presented to the young ladies, who have qualified as professional nurses. There was a large attendance, and the stage was adorned with a profusion of palms and flowers, together with the uniformed contingent of graduates, made the affair an impressive picture.

Dr. Lewis, occupied the chair, and with him on the platform were Dr. Balfour, medical superintendent, Dr. Howie, C. F. Campbell, Thomas Purdon, and Dr. James Campbell.

The chairman said it was customary to open with prayer, but as there were no ministers present, they would have to go on without. Some, perhaps, might come in time to close with prayer. Those who would receive diplomas and medals had the honor of the local association, the supervision of the trust, there would have been none of the quarrelling and log-rolling there had already been years' training, many who graduated at London's hospital now hold responsible positions in large cities. He went over hospital briefly, showing how the council of last year had dealt so favorably with them and the citizens, sanctioning the debentures for $70,000. This year's council had acted differently. He did not know why. Whether the trust could not be trusted, or whether the council knew more about hospital matters than the hospital board, he could not say. The council had taken the matter into their own hands, but after 20 years of faithful service, would ever consider it a great slight. He hoped that the new hospital would soon be a reality, and with a doctor at the head of civic affairs they should have a good one.

The following young ladies were then presented with diplomas by Mr. C. F. Campbell, who congratulated them, and wished them every success in the future: Miss Margaret Douglas, Miss Charlotte Smith, Miss Elizabeth Hendrie, Miss Annie Taylor, Miss Elizabeth Johnston, Miss Patricia Murray, Miss Helen Mine.

The young sophomores, always at hand on occasions of this kind, from the other end of the hall, had something to say of each. They were either "jolly good fellows" or "all right."

Miss Tye, lady superintendent, in submitting her annual report, said: "The London General Hospital Training School for Nurses now enters upon the fifteenth year of its history, having been established in 1883 for the purpose of offering women desirous of becoming professional nurses a course of instruction in theoretical and practical work pertaining to nursing. The course of study comprises anatomy, physiology and hygiene, together with practical nursing. Lectures have been given on "Surgery" by Dr. Wishart; "Diseases of Women and Children" by Dr. Eccles; "Accidents in Surgery" by Dr. Meek; "Medical Cases" by Dr. Hodge; "Materia Medica" by Dr. Ardley; "Physiology" by Dr. W. A. Stevenson, and weekly class by herself. The number of those holding certificates of this school is 81. During 1927 over 150 applications were received, and of the ten persons who entered on probation, five proved satisfactory and were accepted. There were at present nine pupil nurses in training, four probationers, and one graduated nurse, making a staff of fourteen.

Mr. Thomas Purdon, who was called upon to present the medals, expressed his sorrow at seeing the hospital matter dragged into municipal petty politics. Had the hospital been built under the supervision of the trust, there would have been none of the quarrelling and log-rolling there had already been years' training, many who graduated at London's hospital now hold responsible positions in large cities. He went over hospital briefly, showing how the council of last year had dealt so favorably with them and the citizens, sanctioning the debentures for $70,000. This year's council had acted differently. He did not know why. Whether the trust could not be trusted, or whether the council knew more about hospital matters than the hospital board, he could not say. The council had taken the matter into their own hands, but after 20 years of faithful service, would ever consider it a great slight. He hoped that the new hospital would soon be a reality, and with a doctor at the head of civic affairs they should have a good one.

Mr. H. Ruthven McDonald sang by request "The Ship Afire," and in response to an encore, "The Miner's Dream of Home." Mr. Carpenter, late of Toronto, sang "You," and was encored. Miss Sylvia Warren sang with a rich and cultured voice, "A May Morning" and "Mignon" to an encore. Both Miss Warren and Mr. Carpenter are young artists, and possess the abilities that will doubtless place them in the front rank of vocal artists. Mrs. H. R. McDonald and Mr. Bleuthner acted as accompanists.

Mayor Wilson was not present.
