Sir Adam pointed out that the control of the waters in the Trent River is invested in the federal authorities, who claim a high rental from the commission for the use of the same. He outlined the attitude of the federal officials since the commission took over the Electric Power Company's properties in the Trent district some years ago as most unfriendly, and maintained that the officials had shown little consideration of the importance to the power users in the district by neglecting to maintain and properly regulate the storage waters of the Trent district.
