

CONSIDERS BROWNS BETTER THIS YEAR

St. Louis Manager Has Well Balanced Team—Contains Some Coming Stars

By HENRY FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor. NEW YORK, April 14.—(United Press)—George Sisler is one of the hardest young men in baseball to lure into conversation, and when it comes to making predictions he is as noisy as a mite.

"How about your club this season?" the youthful manager of the St. Louis Browns was asked some time back in the training camp.

"We're all right," Sisler replied. "Some of the critics say you're a sure one-two shot."

"That's very nice of them," he replied at length.

"Are you stronger than last year?" "I think so," he replied.

After the most laborious cross-examination it was finally drawn out of him that the Browns are improved this year by the findings of Oscar Melillo, a sensational rookie infielder, by the addition of the veterans Tommy Zachary and Wally Schang and by the improvement observed in Durr's young outfielder.

DEPENDS ON HURLERS. Like every other manager of a prominent contender, Sisler feels that the success of the team in the American League pennant race depends largely on the breaks and the pitching staff.

The Browns didn't have any the best of luck last season and they were crippled through most of the season by serious injuries.

Most everyone who has seen the Browns this spring was impressed by the class and the spirit of the club.

"Sisler," a prominent umpire said, "is a manager now instead of a player. By that I mean he is handling the club with the viewpoint of a manager and he is getting results."

Sisler has no club rules. He lets the players play what they want and do largely as they wish during off hours as long as they remain in condition to play baseball.

FULL OF CONFIDENCE. The team was full of hustle in the training camp and there was a very noticeable atmosphere of confidence in the players.

Sisler's biggest problem will be the selection of the proper infield, here is no weakness, but on the other hand, too much strength. Melillo fielded so brilliantly and hit so hard in the training games that he couldn't be kept out of the game. There was no room for him at second with Marty McManus playing there, and Gene Robertson is too good a third baseman to be kept out of the game.

Robertson, however, is not of the hustling type and it may be that Sisler will have to move McManus over to third base and use Melillo at second. The chances are that Robertson, with competition threatening his job, may put a little more spirit in his game.

With Walter Gerber around, the shortstop position is in good hands and Sisler is the best first baseman in baseball, so there are no infield worries.

STRONG OUTFIELD. The outfield also has plenty of offensive and defensive strength in Harry Rice, the biggest find of years, Kenneth Williams, "Baby Doll" Jacobson, Durr and Bennett. Williams was in poor health last year and had a poor season, but he ought to be back on his game this year.

Wally Schang and Dixon, a sharp shooting thrower, will alternate behind

Scotland To Secure Pro. Golfers' Match

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 15.—Professional golf teams representing Great Britain and the United States, will probably meet in an International professional match on the Glenn Eagles Club in Scotland, according to announcement here by Robert E. Harlow, manager of Walter Hagen, captain of the United States team, following receipt of a cable from George Duncan, British captain.

Duncan stated that several clubs in England and Scotland sought the match, but that the club named had made a satisfactory offer. The match will probably be played the third week in June.

The United States team would be composed of Macdonald Smith, Al Watrous, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel, Bill Mehlhorn, Tommy Armour, Boby Cruickshank, Al Hopkins, Joe Kirkwood, Johnny Farrell, Jim Barnes and possibly two others in addition to Hagen.

Duncan also said in his cable that an offer to set aside the receipts of the British championships at Lytham for use in sending a British pro team to the United States next summer, would probably be made.

Canada Has Entry In Penn. Relay Meet PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 15.—The 32nd Pennsylvania relay carnival which this year has drawn the largest entry in its history, has taken on an international flavor with the announced intention of a Canadian team to compete. The carnival is to be held here next Friday and Saturday.

Hamilton Collegiate Institute, of Ontario, is the Dominion's sole entry, and will be pitted against more than five hundred universities, colleges and high schools, from all sections of the United States.

"Strangler" Lewis To Meet Munn Tonight BOSTON, Mass., April 15.—Ed. "Strangler" Lewis and Wayne (Big) Munn will get together here tonight and the famous diamond belt is at stake.

The former heavyweight wrestling champion, declared today that if Munn wins, the belt will go to the victor. Munn threw Lewis in a match a year ago, but the Strangler claimed a foul and succeeded in obtaining a court action restraining Munn from claiming the title.

March Report of Associated Charities

There has been a decided improvement in the conditions among the city poor during the last month, it was reported at the meeting of the Associated Charities in the Bible Society rooms yesterday afternoon, when Rev. A. I. Tedford presided in the absence of W. Shivers Fisher.

A number of special cases of distress were discussed and will be dealt with according to their needs. Miss Grace O. Robertson gave a statistical report of the month, showing that there had been 161 applications received and 20 had been seeking employment. Employment was found for 12. Records were given for 25. There were 69 that sought relief and relief was procured for 67. Miss Robertson made 108 visits, investigated 14 cases and distributed clothing to 10. There were four applications for transportation.

Closing Season At S. E. Boys' Club The South End Boys' Club members will present a special program in the club rooms tonight to demonstrate the work they have been doing during the season and to mark the season's formal closing.

There have been 140 boys on the roll this winter and the average attendance at the club each night has been about 60. J. Strachan as instructor has had
