CANADIAN WOMAN FALLS TO DEATH

Miss Anna MacEdwards,
Wealthy Helper of East
Side Poor, Was Ill From Overwork.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
New York, May 14.—Believed by her physicians to have been seized with a paroxysm of pain while ill from overwork among the poor of the city, Miss Anna MacEdwards, aged thirty-eight, fell to her death early this morning from the window of her apartment on the fifth floor of her Manhattan home.

DIED AT AGE OF NINETY-NINE YEARS

Great-Grandson of the First White Settler in Eastern Pictou.

(Halifax Chronicle)
On Saturday, May 6, Captain Charles Arbuckle, Eastern Pictou's "Grand Old Man," passed away at his home at "The Ponds," near Lower Barney's River, Pictou county, in his hundredth year. Capt. Arbuckle was the great grandson of Barnabas McGee, the first white man to settle in Eastern Pictou, after the evacuation of the Merigonish district by the French in 1785. His grandmother, Polly McGee, was the first white child born in that section of the country, and when quite young visited the mountains with the Indians where they were reputed to have a silver mine, from which they secured silver for the manufacture of bullets. Late in life she went back with parties searching for the mine, but was unable to fix the exact location. Many subsequent attempts have been made, but the exact position of this mine is one of the unsolved mysteries of Eastern Nova Scotia.

Capt. Arbuckle's father was Jas. Arbuckle, who lived to the ripe old age of ninety-eight. His mother was Elizabeth McDonald of Scotch Hill, who died in her seventy-second year. "Captain Charles," as he was best known, followed the sea for many years, but eventually settled down in his home community, where he continued to be a striking figure up to the time of his passing.

The writer visited his home on many occasions and saw a splendidly-constructed boat which he had built when he was over ninety. The workmanship in every particular was worthy of the experienced boat builder of half his years. Up almost to the very last he retained his marvelous vitality and his mind was as active as his body was vigorous.

It is doubtful if in the whole of Eastern Nova Scotia there was a man so well acquainted with the early history of Pictou and Antigonish counties or one who could recount the happenings of the early days in such an intelligent and pleasing manner.

It has been said with a great deal of truth that the tendency of the old is to live almost entirely in the past. This, however, was not true of the genial and venerable captain. Few men were more familiar with current happenings or could talk more intelligently upon the great issues of the hour. Even in his last hours when he could no longer read he kept in touch with the leading newspapers of the province, and the morning of his death enquired as to the happenings at Ottawa and the situation in Ireland.

In the Arbuckle home the stranger was always welcome, and bosom friend and stranger alike enjoyed country hospitality at its best. Only once in a century does any community produce a man so virile in body and so keen and well-balanced in intellect as the man whose passing will be deeply regretted by a host of friends in every walk of life.

FRED BEAUVAIS DENIES CHARGES

Montreal, May 14.—Specific denial that he had ever sold any letters to lawyers, of James A. Sullivan, suing his wife for divorce in the New York courts, is made by Fred Beauvais, Indian guide. At Poughkeepsie it was alleged in court that Beauvais had sold four letters addressed to him by Mrs. Sullivan for $15,000. Beauvais said that he had seen nobody connected with the Sullivan case in Montreal last week, that he had never received any such letters as were described in court, that he did not know Edmund Leigh, the detective said to have paid him the money, and that the whole thing was untrue from beginning to end. Beauvais said Mrs. Sullivan was an absolutely innocent woman.
