FISH AND RECIPROCITY

The Standard has discovered a Nova Scotia fish dealer who fears that under reciprocity the Americans would come times to be able to sell fish in our market. It is not necessary to wait for reciprocity to bring about that result. There are exceptional times when the St. John dealers have to import fish from Boston because they cannot get them nearer home. If our fishermen had a larger free market the industry would be developed, the catch increased and the business made more profitable. Expressing the views of men in the fish trade, the Maritime Merchant several months ago, when reciprocity was being debated, said—

"Starting from Halifax along the South Shore to Yarmouth, around the coast and up the Bay of Fundy, there is no doubt whatever that free entry to the American market has been the ambition of the people for a great many years and the result will probably be that both the deep sea and shore cod fisheries will be prosecuted with much greater vigor from this time forward should the proposed arrangement come into effect. One class of trade that will particularly benefit is the smaller packer of haddock cod. At the present time there is quite a large amount of this fish put up in this way and shipped from points in Shelburne and Yarmouth counties notwithstanding the duty. With the duty removed therefore the exports should be greatly increased. At the bank fishing ports there will be the incentive to secure a share of the trade now centered at Gloucester, where there are about forty vessels engaged in the deep sea salt fisheries. Whether our vessels will also attempt to share in the fresh fish business of Boston which employs about 200 sail at the present time, is not so certain, but the opportunity is there if they wish to engage in it. The new conditions are certainly all in favor of the fishermen of the coast west of Halifax."

EARLY CLOSING

Early closing is receiving attention in the city of Montreal. The city council has given a first reading to a by-law to compel retail merchants to close their places of business at 7 o'clock in the evening on Tuesdays as well as on Wednesdays and Thursdays. The Montreal Gazette vigorously states the views of those who are opposed to the course proposed. Its remarks will be read with interest in this city at the present time, when the judgment of the court has aroused a new interest in the question here. The Gazette says—

"The principle involved in such a proposition is altogether wrong. It is not that of the factory laws, which fix the number of hours beyond which an employer shall not be compelled to labor, leaving the employer free to keep his establishment operating for twenty-four hours a day if he pleases, and if conditions warrant such a course. Against the factory law principle no one now objects. Against early closing either no one objects, where the merchant thinks his interests are served thereby. But it is one thing for a merchant, of his own accord or by agreement with his fellows, to shorten his business day, and quite another thing for the City Council by misuse of its powers, and at the pressure of outside parties, to say that, whether he thinks it in the interest of his business or not, he shall close his doors at a certain time each day or any day and cease to meet his customers. The proposition means an unjustifiable invasion of personal rights. It belongs to the village age of municipal mediocrity. It is clearly out of place in a city the age of Montreal, where the demands of trade alone can properly fix the hours when men shall trade with each other. Not only should the proposed by-law be rejected, but the by-law which it proposes to amend and make more aggravated should be rejected."

Personal abuse of members of the federal government will not defeat reciprocity.

The negotiations in regard to the St. John Valley Railway appear to be progressing favorably, but the information given out is as yet rather meagre.

The pipe for the natural gas main from Albert county wells to Moncton has arrived, and it will not be many weeks before the new source of light, heat and power for the railway town is available. That will be a notable day in Moncton's history.

The Lords have surrendered on the veto bill. They are confronted by the alternative of submitting now to the will of the people or being out-voted by a group of new peers. They have chosen the wiser course. Their plea that they desired to safeguard the country against hasty and ill-considered legislation was ill-founded, and had to give way to the force of public sentiment.

The assertion gravely made by the Conservative press that the government seeks to "rush reciprocity through," is rather amusing. The Conservative orators have said all that can be said in opposition to the proposed agreement, and are now saying it over again. The country was not impressed the first time they presented their case, and is now heartily tired of their dreary speeches.

The Victoria Colonist says—"It is said that Christ Church Cathedral in Fredericton, lately struck by lightning and almost completely destroyed, was the finest specimen of Gothic architecture in America, and one of the finest in the world. It was not a large edifice, but its lines were exceedingly graceful and it was of the purest Gothic. There is reason to believe that it will be restored, but it will be difficult to replace adequately some of the features that made it a thing of unique beauty."

Another day has been wasted at Ottawa, and the Conservatives continue to pursue their fatuous policy of obstruction. Some of Mr. Borden's own followers are wise enough to see that they are placing themselves at a disadvantage, but apparently the leaders are determined and will force a dissolution of the house. By the first of the week the measure will probably have passed the United States senate, and only the obstructive tactics of the Conservatives at Ottawa will stand between Canada and a trade agreement that would be of enormous benefit to this country.

The people of Canada have no desire to see their trade with the mother country reduced. They give a preference to British goods, and nothing in their dealings with other countries affects that concession. But they do not want the Conservatives of Great Britain to instruct them in regard to their business with other countries, which is no way jeopardizing British trade or imperial relations. The Montreal Herald says on this point—

"The theory that the trade of Canada is something to be manipulated or controlled for the benefit and to suit the purposes of others, wherever and whenever they may be, is one that will never be popular in this country. One of his newspaper supporters recently suggested to Mr. Balfour that he could win a dozen seats for Mr. Borden by speaking out. If he is anxious to see British trade enjoying the very valuable sentimental preference which is now practically unanimous in Canada, he will carefully refrain from following this advice. Canadians are first rate judges of what is for their advantage, and they are quite sturdy enough to run the moral risks attendant upon making the most of their opportunity."

As a matter of fact, the British government approves of the trade agreement between Canada and the United States, and it is only the British Tories, with a desire to help the Tories of Canada, who profess to see danger to British interests in the proposed agreement. This fact is well understood by the people of Canada.

BRICK COMING INTO ITS OWN.

With the increasing desire in our country that all things about us shall be simple as well as beautiful, brick is again coming into its own as a building material. Brick-making as an industry is being superseded by brick-making as an art. The ancient Egyptians, Assyrians and other races of the Orient wrought their palaces and temples of brick with marvelous skill and effects of beauty that we have yet hardly equaled. Some of the most beautiful Italian and French palaces were built of brick during the Renaissance, and the history of England can be traced in its mansions, manor houses, palaces and churches of soft brick. In our country brick for a time was rejected by all lovers of beauty, because its manufacture sank into a mechanical process whereby hard, tight, flat cakes of hideous color and mathematical precision were turned out by machinery to provide a building material that should be at once cheap and durable.

Within the last twenty-five years, however, architects have been forcing on the manufacturers a demand for beautiful bricks. Architects, designers and manufacturers are now working in union to produce bricks that shall meet every demand for beauty. The result is bricks of rich, variegated color and texture that charm the eye and that are in active demand for exterior construction—Mansions in Arts and Decoration.

Clean Within!

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Purify the Blood and Prolong Life

Vigorous health at 70 years of age.

If as much intelligent care were given to keeping the body clean and pure within as well as without we would see more healthy, vigorous old men and women. The daily bath does its part by keeping the pores of the skin open so that they throw off much of the body's impurities, but it is even more important that the bowels and kidneys should be kept regular and active.

If the bowels fill, as they often do late in life, to move regularly at least once a day, the waste matter from the food accumulates, defecates, poisons the system and upsets the stomach. If the kidneys are sluggish the impurities which they should filter from the blood remain and cause rheumatism. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills regulate the bowels, cleanse the kidneys and open up the pores of the skin. The result is a body clean within—pure, red blood—good digestion—and a hale and hearty old age.

Three generations have proved the value of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, and their sale is steadily increasing all over the world.

SONNENBERG

That peacock standing on a marble stair seems like the native bird of Paradise. As from the colonnade I feast my eyes on sculptured beauty round me every where.

An old Italian fountain cools the air. Rippling a limpid pool where lilies grow. And through the peristyle sweet zephyrs blow. From out the quaint rose garden blooming there.

A stately mansion looks down from the hill. Upon the sunken court fair as a dream: Over the bronze of Buddha calm and still. Brooding amid his dragon-guarded bowers.

And over charming vistas set with flowers. To purple hills where sapphire waters gleam. —Thomas T. Swinburne.

"Promised to meet my wife at 3 o'clock down at the corner."

"Well, there's no hurry. It isn't 4 yet."
