

NEW MADE MAN.

THE MOST WONDERFUL CURE ON RECORD.

Never since the practice of medicine became a subject of scientific investigation has such a cure been effected. Time and patience in such cases is required if the patient will only think of the length of time that bad and impure blood has been circulating through its system—and from this impure material—his flesh, bones, fibre and the entire body, has grown on this impure fluid, and made up from it, that some time is necessary to change this depraved and unsound structure, and supply the waste with good blood. NINE MONTHS is a remarkable quick time to meet prohibit and healthy, a body eaten up with disease. In this case it took a little over one month before a favourable change was experienced; but when it was found that the medicine, had acquired an influence, then hope revived. In these old cases, some little time is required for the Sarsaparillian to get a fort hired, but just as soon as this is accomplished the work of regeneration will be rapid.

A gentleman well-known in the oil trade contracted, some years since, through imprudent exposure a serious disease, but unfortunately neglected to consult a respectable physician or to resort to proper remedies. Medicines were used that smothered the disease only. In a short time it appeared again in a different form. First it would be in groin, next in the legs, then scalp, next in the neck. Sores in the nose, on the face, arms, the mouth, chin, corner of the eyes, threatening blindness and the loss of the eye, destroying his complexion, eating like a cancer into the flesh and bones, until he became repulsive in appearance and incapable of social communion with friends—cut off from the association of men and condemned to solitude and misery. For seven years this gentleman of high intellectual and social qualities suffered with this terrible disease, a wreck of defaced humanity. Not a sound or healthy particle of flesh or fibre existed in his body. This case was desperate. We could hold out no encouragement of absolute cure. He, however, commenced the use of the Resolvent in January, 1866, (when prepared under the old process) by taking one tablespoonful three times per day, and a dessert spoonful every night. Every morning he would bathe his body with tepid water and Relief, and apply the Resolvent to the sores. At one or two o'clock every morning he would take a dose of Radway's Pills—sometimes two and at other or six as the bowels were costive or laxative.
