The following is the Address of the Metropolitan Clergy to the Lord Bushop of London on the recent appointment of Romish Prelates to Dioceses in England, and the substance of his Lordship's Reply :-

A great meeting was held on the 30th at Zion Hill, by the beneficed Clergy of London, for the purpose of memorializing the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, on the appointment of the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminister. The Rev. H. Rexby, the President of Zion College, presided, and vehement addresses were made by several of the Clergy. The meeting closed with the adoption of the following Address: of the following Address :-

of the following Address:—

To the Right Hon. and Right Rev. the Bishop of London. My Lord.—We approach Your Lordship with sentiment rapid and more violent every minute, till the dancing, warriors were ready to drop. A farewell great warriors; immediately the music ceased, the dancers disappeared, and the tumultuous excitement and noise was succeeded by a dead silence. Such was, the excitement communicated, that when it was all over we ourselves remained for some time panting to recover our breath. Again we lighted our cheroots and smoked for a while the pipe of peace.—Marryal's Borneo.

A Welsh Légend.—A young man, who was remarkable for his good looks, led the lambs to graze close to Llyn-y-Van-Vach, on the Black Mountains. Whenever he visited his charge, as he sat by the side of the lake, he used to see three lovely female figures hovering abont on its borders; he perceived them distinctly, but their movements were as rapid as those of birds or butterflies, and they almost dazzled his eyes by the quickness of their motions as they skimmed along the waters, their little feet just touching the surface, and then darting off to another part of the surface, and then darting off to another part of the lake. At last, his desire became extreme to call the waters, their little feet just touching the surface, and then darting off to another part of the surface, and then darting off to another part of the surface, and then darting off to another part of the mission from the Right Hon. And Bishop of the Roinsis Church, we feel tour duty to meet the bishop of the Roinsis Church, we feel tour duty to meet the pipe of peace.—Marryal's Borneo.

The following is the substance of the reply:

The recent assumption of authority by the Bishap of Rome, in prevending to parcel out this country into new Dioceses, and to appoint Archbishops and B shops to preside over them, without the consent of the Sovereign, is a schismatical act, without prevedent, and one which would not be tolerated by the Government of any Roman Catholic Kingdom. I trust that it will not be quietly submitted to by our own.

Hitherto, from the time of the Reformation, the Pope has been enutented with providing for the spiritual superpitendence of his adherents in this country, by the appointment of Vienss Apostolic, Bishops who took their titles as anch, not from any real or prefended Sees in Fingland, but from some imaginary Dioceses in partitions and leaves. In this there was no assumption of spiritual authority over any other of the subjects & the Engiths Crown than those of his own communion. But the appointment of Bishops to preside over new Discesses in England, constituted by a Papal Brief, is virtusing denial of the legitimate authority of the British Sovereign and of the Engiths. The next morning the shepherd was made happy, for the fairies came, and he claimed the one who was to be his bride. She left the lake, and her sisters disappeared. As soon as she stood on the ground, she made a signal with her hand, and from the waters came seven cows, one bull, and two oxen. "This is my tower," said she; "I will be your wife, and live with you till you strike me three times; but, if that ever happens, I must leave you instantly." They lived in their farm most happily for several years, and the lovely lady brought him three sons—the celebrated Meddygon Myddwai, great physiciants and learned men; but while they were yet children, the shepherd was one day preparing to attend a fair in the neighborhood, and told his wife to go to a field and fetch his horse. She said she would; but, being rather dilatory, he playing the would; but, they obeyed her his present day. of any project of the Pope to divide England into dioceses, and to appoint an Archbishop of Westminster?

"Lord John Russell—I do not knew that the Pope has suthorised the creation of Bishope of Archbishops in England. I will, however, comfort Sir Robert Inglis by assuring him, that Tshall not give my assent to the formation of any such dioceses in the Queen's dominions."

Great Cry and Little Weel.

An individual, named George Thompson, an Englishman, and a Member of Patliament, we believe, for one of the Metropolitan Boroughs, and, if we mistake not, in politics a Chartist-Radical, is just now creating a great sensation among our neighbors in the United States. It appears that Mr. George Thompson visited the States some twelve years ago, his purpose, being to agitate against slavery, but the gentleman received at that time some unmistakeable hints to mind his own business, and took himself off accordingly. It appears that this individual has again visited the United States on a similar errand, and, attempting to address an andience in Fanusii Hall, at Boston, was promptly put down. We have no fault to find swith this, calling to mind the old adage, that they the old adage, that they and we certainly think it a piece of very great impertinence in Mr. George Thompson to take up the side of either of the parties into which our the side of either of the parties into which our neighbors are divided on the slavery question.

But we are very much surprised to see a well-informed, sensible, respectable journal, like the New York Courier, attributing Mr. Geo. Thompson's visit to a deliberate design on the part of the English people to foment dissensions among the people of the United States, and by this means to annihilate the Union. How can any same man believe that, if England had any such design, the

Our contemporary may be assured that this man is just one of those restless spouting demagogues, who is never happy, unless he is thrusting himself upon public notice in some way. Probably he is monomaniae on the slavery quesion, just as Cobden is on peace, and is just as likely to carry his object; the man is altogether too contemptible to deserve the notice lavished on him by the Courier; the people of Boston have treated him just as he deserved, and just as all men ought to be treated who meddle with their

LABLACHE'S VILLA AT POSILIFFO.—In the afternoon, we set off to pay a visit to Lablache, who has a Villa on the promontory of Posilippote the headland I spoke of on entering the Bay of Naples. He resides here as a private gentleman, "upon the very spot where Boccaccia resolved to dedicate his lite to the muses." We were presently introduced to the family party, who seem to live in a s'ate of superior enjoyment on this their Mount Olympus. With him was his eldest sou, M. F. Lablache, a barytone singer, well known in all the European cities; but there is only one Lablache, the Papa di Cantati—the pope of all singers. Lie shook me cordially by the hand, when I brought to his recollection his being at Leicester, with the Duke of Brunswick, at which he heartily laughed, for the carriage broke down, and he crawled out at one of the windows. As if stood before him, I thought within myself what a monster of a man. I seemed to dwindle into a mere imp, and, involuntarily, said, "However great, Sir, you are as an actor, in person you are still more extraordinary as a man." What a chest he has! and how neatly he walks! In size, he is the largest man I ever beheld, next to my townsman Lambert. On this beautiful spot he is really now enjoying the olium cum dignitude. I learnt that he made his first appearance as a buffor in the St. Carlino, one of the smallest theatres in Naples, where you are admitted for sixpence.

It is the vast volume of voice which he pours out upon the notes B. C, and D, so well according with the magnitude of his person, that excites our surprise. His musical accent, which few singe a know anything about, gives a greatness to his enunciation which every one can feel and admire. He may be regarded as the Polyphemus of the stage, surpassing the efforts of all other actors and singers. I was informed that the King, who is interesting himself in a charity, met him the other day, and said, "Come, Lablache, you must sing for us." The performance was to be in St. Carlo, in his own theatre. SOh, my liege," he replied; in the stage of the stage
