Gin ye find a heart that's weary,
And that needs a brither's hand,
Dinna thou turn from it, dearie,
Thou maun help thy fellow man.
Thou, too, hast a hidden heart-ache,
Sacred from all mortal ken,
And because of thine own grief's sake
Thou maun feel for thier men.

In this world o' seesaw, dearie,
Grief goes up and joy comes down,
Brows that catch the sunshine cheerie
May to-morrow wear a frown,
Bleak December, dull and dreary,
Follows on the heels o' May,
Give thy trust unstinted, dearie,
Thou mayst need a friend some day.

CANADA AND THE COUNCIL.

De Citizens Favor Closer Ties With the Mother Country?

It was thought at first that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would either not care to go to the great inter-colonial conference in London, or that his Parliamentary duties would not let him go.

The Premier will be present at the council board, but Canada has been strangely silent in respect of the questions which the conference will discuss. It would be a nice question whether this is due to the indifference of pre-occupation, or to the fact that the dominion has still to find a large and commanding and united voice upon vital questions. The Premier is upon British connection, but he is, as he himself would confess, a somewhat cold Imperialist. He would allow the present relations of the Dominion with the Mother Country to go on as they are.

He is content to await the processes of national evolution, which makes no noise and accomplish themselves slowly. Above all, Sir Wilfrid has never disguised his fear that closer relations with the heart of the Empire might involve us with British militarism, with which, as he contends, Canada should have nothing to do—her mission being one of peaceful development, detached from the complications of the passions of the great powers of the world.

Free Trade Impossible.
A majority of Canadians could hardly be found who would be probably in favor of closer relations with the Motherland, but they have not been brought together under the stress of earnest feeling. Sir Wilfrid has said that free trade within the Empire is impossible, and that nothing else would avail. Many think that it is not beyond the bounds of possibility to bring about a genuine free trade between all parts of the Empire, as in the case of the United States, which, however, are more homogeneous than the widely separated parts of the British Empire, and that, at any rate, a carefully adjusted fiscal arrangement, thought out to meet varying needs, and yet which would have the preferential feature for all the colonies might well be a result of the forthcoming conference. Some go further, and look to the establishment of a great Council of the Empire, in which all the sister nations and colonies would be represented, and which would deal with all large and commanding questions of international character. Nor need this be thought an irreconcilable dream.

History is made rapidly now, and concentration of power is the law and custom of the age. Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, seem to be more interested in the part of the conference than the Dominion, which, unless the latter have the ultimate thought of an independent existence, is vitally concerned in this meeting of the representatives of all parts of the Empire.

ONTARIO'S DEATH RATE.

Rate Was 15.6 Per Thousand in February Last.

Returns from 765 division registrars to the Provincial Board of Health show that out of a population of 2,123,320, or 98 per cent. of the inhabitants of the province, the total number of deaths during February were 2,760, or a rate of 15.6 per thousand. The number of cases of contagious diseases reported is 93 less than in February, 1906, and the number of deaths are 32 fewer. There was a reduction in the number of deaths from scarlet fever, diphtheria, consumption and whooping cough. Of typhoid fever the number of cases reported was 277 less than in 1906, but the number of deaths was the same, indicating that many cases were not reported. There were 21 more instances of smallpox brought to the attention of the department.

The following figures show the prevalence of contagious diseases and the mortality resulting from them—

	Cases.	Deaths.
Smallpox	78	0
Scarlet Fever	150	3
Diphtheria	156	20
Measles	337	5
Whooping Cough	34	8
Typhoid Fever	34	8
Tuberculosis	170	170

A Romance of the Peasage.

Lady Ernestine Hunt, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Ailesbury, has taken up an entirely new vocation for women. She has started a horse-breeding ranch near Calgary, where she controls about 40,000 acres of grazing land.

Lady Ernestine was well known some years ago as an intrepid yachting woman, with much more than a superficial knowledge of navigation and kindred matters. She applied to the Board of Trade for examination, with a view to obtaining a master's certificate, but was rebuffed, on the ground that a woman could not qualify as a master, though it is difficult to see why, logically, a woman should not become a sailing-master as much as a Master of Arts—a qualification now open to her in many universities.

Lady Ernestine has been a nurse as well as a sailor and a horse-breeder, and she married, at the age of 27, the second mate of a merchant vessel.

WAS CIGAR THE CAUSE?

Origin of Fire at McGill Not Very Clear.

Montreal, April 18.—Although the finding of the fire committee does not indicate that the loss of the medical building was caused by the burst of a cigar falling from the hands of a member of the faculty, everything points to this as being the correct theory of Tuesday's disastrous fire.

One thing is sure, and that is the presence of the faculty in their room at a late hour on Monday night. The statement is made that these gentlemen left the room in question about 11 o'clock, and in two hours that part of the building was in flames. It was in the faculty room where the fire started.

It was Prof. Cox who first discovered the fire. He had been doing some special work in the physics building. As he was proceeding through the grounds he saw fire in the western wing of the middle section of the medical pile. He at first thought that the fire was on the exterior of the building, supposing that it was a heap of rubbish that was being destroyed. He went to examine and found there was fire inside.

The evidence given before Commissioner Ritchie showed that Dr. John R. Ballou had been experimenting in the medical building up to 12 o'clock Monday night. Dr. J. W. Scane, registrar, said that 14 men had met in the committee room adjoining the faculty room and had been smoking during the evening. There was no waste paper on the floor and he did not see how cigar ashes could cause fire.

Ten drops in sweetened water gives relief instantly. Almost like magic is the change you experience. The cause of the nausea is removed, every symptom of vomiting and indigestion is cured within ten minutes. When Polson's Nervine is so trusted and economical, a bottle at home wouldn't be amiss. Large ones for a quarter at all dealers.

Shot Deer Out of Season.

Sanit Ste. Marie, Ont., April 18.—Game Warden Campbell returned Tuesday from the river where he had been investigating the illegal shooting of deer.

That his mission was successful is evidenced by the fact that the carcasses of 14 deer were found and that among the trees on his left rear, and was just raising his gun to fire at it when the weapon went off.

His fingers were cold at the time, Captain Cuthbert explained, and his opinion was that he must have pulled the trigger before he knew he had his finger upon it. The gun had not been raised to his shoulder when it had exploded, and it did not catch in his clothing.

A SUGGESTION OF RARE VALUE.

A diseased condition of the surface of the air passages causes bad breath but more commonly emanates from indigestion or an impure condition of the blood. Thousands of cases prove that Dr. Hamilton's Pills, through their specific action on the secretory and eliminative organs, not only cure bad breath, but so thoroughly purify the system that anything suggestive of blood or digestive troubles is impossible. Through Dr. Hamilton's Pills the skin grows rosy and clear, activity of the mind and body increases, and bounding health is established. Sold everywhere.

Mr. Chamberlain's Health.

London, April 18.—A telegram yesterday from Mr. Chamberlain was received at the Colonial Office in reply to a message of sympathy addressed to him by the Colonial Premier. Mr. Chamberlain reciprocates the good wishes expressed by the conference, and incidentally observes that he is making satisfactory progress in regard to his health.

True Bill Against Asselin.

Quebec, April 18.—The grand jury reported a true bill in the matter of Oliver Asselin, editor of Le Nationaliste, accused of having published a libelous article against Hon. J. Prevoist, Minister of Colonization.

People who "take notice" must have observed a growing sentiment in this country in favor of using put-up foods and medicines of known composition. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription stands alone as the only ready-put-up medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments that bears on the wrapper a full list of the ingredients composing it, printed in plain English. It is the "Favorite Prescription" of a Specialist in women's diseases and not a "patent medicine." Made of the roots of native, medicinal plants without alcohol or other harmful ingredients, Dr. Pierce's "Prescription" has been the favorite cure for the weaknesses, pains, drains and disorders of the womanly system, which has stood the test of forty years of experience. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet giving ingredients and what well-recognized authorities of all schools of medicine say of them.

KILLED IN THE SPORTING FIELD.

Beautiful Daughter of English Earl, Shot by Her Husband.

Lady Dorothy Cuthbert, daughter of the fifth Earl of Strathford, and one of the most popular and beautiful women in society, has been killed under terribly tragic circumstances. She was the victim of the accidental discharge of a gun carried by her husband.

Barely four years have passed since Lady Dorothy's marriage to Captain James Harold Cuthbert.

Lady Dorothy Cuthbert was only 26 years of age. Captain Cuthbert, although only two years older than his wife, has had a distinguished military career. He served with the Scots Guards through the South African war, and gained his D.S.O. He was a crack shot, and in 1903 was champion revolver shot in the army.

The scene of the tragedy was Robert's Wood, near Beaumont Castle, the lovely home of the young couple in Northumberland. Captain Cuthbert was out with a small party for pheasant shooting. Lady Dorothy traveled to the scene of the shoot in her motor-car for the purpose of joining the party at luncheon. She was walking by her husband's side. Suddenly a keeper, who was walking in front, heard the report of a gun.

Turning round he was horrified to see Lady Cuthbert lying on the snow-covered ground and her husband prostrate beside her. Captain Cuthbert was in a dead faint, and did not know for some hours afterwards what was at once apparent to the keeper and other members of the shooting party—that his wife had been instantaneously killed by a gunshot in the head. When the dreadful news was broken to him by his agent he was overcome with anguish.

At the coroner's inquiry the jury returned a verdict of accidental death. They added that there had been no negligence or carelessness on the part of Captain Cuthbert, to whom they and the coroner expressed the deepest sympathy.

Captain Cuthbert was, of course, the chief witness. Though he looked haggard and pale, he was outwardly calm. His description of the accident was given briefly and in low tones.

Lady Dorothy, he said, was walking on his left, and he was carrying his gun on his left shoulder, with his hands placed down on the stock. He saw what he took to be a pigeon among the trees on his left rear, and was just raising his gun to fire at it when the weapon went off.

His fingers were cold at the time, Captain Cuthbert explained, and his opinion was that he must have pulled the trigger before he knew he had his finger upon it. The gun had not been raised to his shoulder when it had exploded, and it did not catch in his clothing.

LAUGHS AT ENGLAND.

British Disarmament Scheme Excites Hilarity of Teutons.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's disarmament professions excite hilarious comment in Germany. But the Premier's interjection during Mr. Balfour's speech in the House recently, that it is inexplicable how the supreme post of the British Empire should be entrusted to an impossible dreamer.

If, on the contrary, it is, as every one assumes, an anti-German design, Germans are not so foolish as to be duped.

Czar's "Protected" Train.

The Czar's Imperial bomb-proof train, in which the Dowager Empress of Russia traveled from St. Petersburg recently, remains in one of the sidings at Calais, where it is attracting much attention. It is a magnificently furnished train, and consists of nine very large coaches, the bodies of which are specially constructed of steel. Each of the coaches bears the Imperial eagles emblazoned in gold on the outside panels. One peculiar feature of the train is the smallness of the windows. The train is guarded night and day by thirty or forty sentinels, most of whom live on the train.

The Wily Bell Boy.

A hotel man in New Hampshire was surprised to see one of his women guests come downstairs several nights running, fill her pitcher from the water cooler in the hall and return quietly to her room again. At first he thought the lady had some special reason for this queer performance. Then he thought he had better speak to her. Accordingly on the fourth or fifth night he approached her politely, took the pitcher from her hands and filled it himself.

"If you would ring, madam," he said, "this would always be done for you. There is no occasion for you ever to come down yourself for water. A ring."

"But I have no bell," said the lady.

"Oh, madam, of course you have a bell. I'll show it to you."

And he carried the pitcher up to her room for her, and pointed to the bell beside her bed.

"That is the bell," he said.

The lady started in surprise. "That the bell?" she exclaimed.

"Why, the bell boy told me that was the fire alarm and I wasn't to touch it on any account except in case of fire."

Indians and War Paint.

The Indians have a tradition that tells how the custom of painting their faces originated. A certain big chief while hunting deer was chased by a lion and fell exhausted, calling upon the Big Bear, which Indians believe was the grandfather of man, to save him. The Big Bear heard and went to the man's assistance, scratching his foot and sprinkling the blood over him. No animal will eat bear or taste his blood, and when the lion smelled it he turned away. But in doing so he scratched some of the blood off the Indian's face with his claw by accident. When he found himself unhurt, the Indian was so thankful that he let the blood dry on his face. With the marks of the lion's claws this gave the effect of stripes, and ever afterward when going on hunting expeditions for man or beast the Indian painted his face in stripes as a charm against danger.

The First Fly Fishers.

Doubtless the reason why artificial flies were originally invented was because it was impossible to use the smaller and more delicate natural flies as baits on the hook. The first fly fisher cast his eyes about him in search of something that would answer in imitating the flies upon which the trout were feeding. Feathers were naturally the first materials thought of, and the old red cock's hackle was the first of all the artificial insects, the old Adam of them all. The breed has been increasing for several hundred years and numbers 2,000 or more at the present day. Of salmon flies alone there are several hundred patterns. These belong to the lure order mostly, as do many of the large flies used for bass and trout. The little old red hackle remains a good fly to this day and is put upon bodies of many colors, peacock hair being perhaps as well liked as anything; red wool is favored by many.

A PROPOSAL

Many Ann, will you be mine? When you get this tender line Take your pen in hand and say When shall be the happy day If you think that I am fit To possess your dainty mit.

It would be my chief delight To remain at home at night, Pay your millinery bills, Never go to the party that kills. Go on slightly, I opine. Go on a model, don't you think?

All the money I could win You should pleasantly blow in. Holding out enough to pay Only cartage day by day And the rent when it was due. Doesn't that look good to you?

I would never beat you up, But with joy would fill your cup. And if joy should trifling seem We would switch it to ice cream. Going slightly, I opine. Many Ann, will you be mine?

Nothing Too Good. Nothing is too good for me. Printed on life's bill of fare—Fancy food or costly rags—Or a large upholstered chair, Diamonds and a driving horse And a building for a pet—Nothing is too good for me, But I take what I can get.

I have strength enough to stand Favors that may come my way. Though at times they may be piled High enough to load a dray. Though they never yet have come, If they should, to call my bluff, They would find me right at home Ready to unload the stuff.

Nothing is too good for me Or too rich, as I have said. From a house with forty rooms To an auto large and red, Jewelry, a bank account, Or a case of extra dry, Books, a bache shop or a band, Oysters, angel food or pie.

Money, marbles or a farm, Rubber boots or works of art Or a pretty maid's hand, With the offer of her heart, Flour or furniture or fowl, Little fishes in my net—Nothing is too good for me, But I take what I can get.

Legal Lure. "Do you think insanity is a good defense?"

"Depends on what the charges are against you. If you killed a man, it is pretty fair, but if you got married the jury will only laugh at you."

Should Restrain Himself. "How often should a young man who is engaged call on the lady?"

"That depends on circumstances, but if he begins coming more than twice a day the neighbors are liable to talk."

Wanted to Forget Her. "The band didn't make much of a hit with him when it played 'The Girl I Left Behind Me.'"

"No; she is suing him for breach of promise."

Expensive, but Sure. "Think a grown man can increase his height?"

"That's easy enough. 'By taking medicine?'"

"No. Just let the short man go to an auction sale and buy things. He will be the highest bidder, won't he?"

Generous Enough. "How is his rheumatism?"

"Much worse. 'Is he doing anything for it?'"

"Yes; he is providing it with quarters. What more could it ask?"

Taking Stock. "How do I look?"

"Like the breaking up of a hard winter. How do you feel?"

"Like the close of a seaside summer."

Just a Hint. It just the lover who opines That he is coming home To find upon the lady's door The "nothing doing" sign.

Classified. "All the world's a stage. 'Maybe, but we aren't all actors.'"

"No?"

"Naw; there's a big bunch of super."

Improved Arithmetic. 'Tis said that one and one make two; The scientist that statement backs, But when a dog appears in view, Then one and one make tracks.

Caution. "I shouldn't think you would mind the rain much."

"Why not?"

"There's so much rubber about you."

Negative Condition. "She is a woman of great influence."

"Indeed! How is it exerted?"

"In minding her own business entirely."

The Youth of Ellen Terry. Ellen Terry, who has been repeating again her early successes with the public, is just 60 years of age. This vivacious heroine of a hundred parts began acting when she was only eight years and two months old—her wages, as Mamillius in Charles Kean's production of "The Winter's Tale," being fifteen shillings a week. "Do you know," she said, nearly fifty years later, "that my difficulty with Sir Henry Irving was that I could not convince him that I had grown too old for youthful parts? He couldn't see it, and so, after twenty-two years, we parted."

And Sir Henry when he heard it, confirmed this explanation saying, "I never thought Ellen Terry too old for any part she ever played."

Happy Medium. "Any snakes in your country?"

"Very few. Just enough to justify a man in carrying snake medicine."

WEAK HEART SYSTEM WAS RUN DOWN

When the heart is healthy and performing its functions naturally, it should beat regularly seventy-two times a minute without causing its owner the slightest inconvenience or distress.

When it begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beat fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

The least excitement or exertion seems to affect it. Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social or business duties, through unnatural action of their heart.

To all such sufferers MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS can give prompt and permanent relief. Mrs. F. Fletcher, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says: "I have been troubled for four or five years with weakness, and run down system. My feet were always cold and I felt almost dead. My heart was weak and I was so nervous I could hardly walk across the street. I started taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using three boxes I felt much better. I continued their use until I had taken twelve boxes and I am now well."

Jack Tar's Song-Book. Despite the time the Lords of the Admiralty devote to schemes for the cutting down of Britain's fleet, they still find a space of that fleet's command to issue an official song-book for the use of blue-jackets' voices.

One recent publication contains twenty-two songs, which have all been selected to suit naval requirements. The first is, as one might imagine, the National Anthem, and the book closes with, "Off to Philadelphia."

Other old favorites contained in the volume are "The Death of Nelson," "Tom Bowling," and "They All Love Jack." Of course, the sister countries are all represented with songs, and those of Scotland, Ireland, and Wales respectively are "Bonnie Dundee," "Father O'Tyner," and "Men of Harlech." Instructions have been issued to all naval and marine bands to obtain a copy of this book.
