THE RESIDENCE OF THE PARTY OF T

Many Soldiers Are Still Missing

Fate of Thousands Can Never Be Certain

Perhaps the saldest of all the reports that come from the battlefield ing pain that is less mereifal than the swift stab that announces a death in action. In this war there are thousands of soldiers whose fate can only be guessed at. They were seen going into action and then all trace of them was lost. Germany has announced that she has no secret prison camps, and that every Allied prisoner who is able to leave the country has been sent home. This, in a measure, but only in a measure.

morning in the retreat from Mons, he a group of men whom he supposed to belong to his own regiment. He was seen to ride up to them and then the group closed round. Not a shot was fired, but Lord Erne was never seen or heard of again, though the most diligent search was made and re-quests for information laid before the Kaiser. His death has now been judicially assumed in England. Several other British officers of title and great estates have been listed with the missing, and judicial decisions have been necessary to permit their presumptive heirs to take their places. There may be some of the miss-ing perhaps who have chosen to dis-appear for one or other of a dozen reasons that might suggest themselves. War offers great opportunities to those who seek this solution to problems of life that otherwise appearinsoluble to them. A remarkable case is that of Frederick Fermor-Hesketh. son of Sir Thomas Fermor-Hesketh. Early one Sunday morning he crossed from Holyhead to Kingston, and there vanished as though the earth had swallowed him. He was a young man of unusual stature and grace, and his father spent a fortune in an effort to solve the mystery of his fate, but it remains to this day a mystery. It is also worth recalling that the present Earl of Aberdeen owes his titles and estates of the fact that his elder brother, the seventh earl, disappeared in 1863, and was last heard of as a sailor before the mast bound from Boston to Melbourne. A similar break in the succession some fifty weeks in the succession, some fifty weeks to be seen that the similar break in the succession, some fifty weeks in the succession. cession some fifty years or so ago, when Lord Edward St. Maur vanished in India, diverted the title and great estates of the Dukes of Somerset to the father of the present duke. Many years later r man turned up in Eng-land claiming to be the missing peer, but he turned out to be a fraud.

"Oh, You Do Look So Strong and Well"

ND why shouldn't I ?" "You always wrote about how well you were, but we never thought you would be so hearty-looking as you are after all the hardships of camp and trench life."

"Oh, we had our share of hardships, all right, but except on rare occasions we hed plenty of good, wholesome food and lots of fresh air and exercise. That is what makes a person strong and well. But I don't think I have it much over you. What have you been doing to look so

"Didn't I tell you I was using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food ?"

"You don't mean to say that has made such a difference. You were so thin and pale when I went away."

"Yes, it certainly has, and after you went away I had a regular break-down, and was in a bad state for some months.

I had nervous headaches, could not sleep, and grew down-hearted and discouraged. Mother got after me to try the Nerve Food, and I am so glad I did, for I did want to be well to welcome you home."

"It is a joy to me to find you so well. And now that we have such a good start surely we can keep well and enjoy life. se overseas has caused me to place a g ter value on life and health id before, and your experithan I ev ence with Chase's Nerve Food conyou women folks need not vinces me be pale and . . and nervous if you will n feel tired out and run but use it whe ... down."
