An Inspiring Life Document.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Some weeks ago a correspondent asked me if I could tell him how a man with a family of six could live on a wage less than ten dollars a week.

I didn't see how it could be done, and passed the problem on to my reader friends. In answer I had the following letter. I publish it not because I am thereby persuaded that less than ten dollars a week is a living wage for a family, but because the splendid courage of its writer is so inspiring.

"You ask if it is possible for a family of six to live on less than ten dollars a week. No doubt there are many families living this winter on this amount or less, who would neither ask for nor accept charity.

How One Woman Lives on Less Than Ten Dollars a Week.

"Since coming here, eighteen months ago, I have found it necessary to reduce living to the lowest possible notch and yet try to give my family of five a nourishing, well-balanced ration. If one has been forehanded during the summer months when fruits are cheap and other expenses are less, the storeroom should be well stocked with fruits and jellies and canned tomatoes. I had about one hundred quarts to begin the winter. So for the months of September, October and November my grocery bill, including meat and milk, never exceeded twenty-two dollars.

Rent, including water, was $8; light, 80 cents, and gas, which I used only to cook with, $1.80. This gives you a total of $32.60. Thus you have a balance of $6.40 for carfare and other expenses.

Her Household Budget.

"It cannot be done without careful planning. I buy in quantities of most things. My bill is something like this: Potatoes, $2.25; flour, $1.90; butter (three pounds a week), $4.20; meat, $3; ham or bacon, $2; canned milk (one and one half dozen), $1.35; coffee (three-pound can), $1; sugar, $1; cereals, $1; ten pounds lard substitute, $1.35; head rice, 25 cents; white beans, 25 cents; pink beans, 25 cents; spaghetti, 25 cents; fresh vegetables and eggs, $2.

"I have made no entry for clothes, but that is a story alone. However, I've managed; the family are all warmly and neatly dressed at all times.

They Find Plenty of Pleasures That Cost Nothing.

"Do we have any pleasures? Yes, many. The outdoors is all free. We can take long walks and enjoy the sunshine, flowers and scenery. We can visit the 'wind-in' and try to carry some of the outdoors to them. We can always help those less fortunate than ourselves; if it be only a kindly word or a day helping with the children. The Public Library gives us plenty of good reading and the daily newspaper is our only luxury. There are a few public meetings and lectures that we can enjoy, though most of the 'free things' have the 'silver offering' clause, and as we still retain our original pride and independence, we cannot attend when not able to donate something.

"We can be thankful that God has given us health and strength to bear these times and keep our heads above water. With faith in a Heavenly Father, faith in ourselves and faith that the future has something bright behind the present dark clouds, we shall struggle along with the great army about us, and not ask or accept charity from anyone. Just give us a chance to work at a living wage and life will be 'one glad, sweet song.'"

Jamming Wireless Saved the Goeben.

New Book Tells How Cruiser, With the Breslau, Escaped British Fleet.

London, Feb. 18.—A semi-official history of the adventures of the Goeben and the Breslau, the one of the books of the hour in Germany. It is quite clear that the author has had access to the log-book of the Goeben and has received information from Vice-Admiral Souchon regarding the famous fight of these boats.

Soper & Moore

The writer dates the story from July 30, 1914. After describing how, on August 2 at 11 p.m. when at Messina, the admiral announced to the crew that the English had declared war, the writer says that the crew became quiet.

At midday August 6 the admiral issued an order that the Goeben and the Breslau were to put to sea on a course for the Adriatic but were later to veer round and steer for Cape Matapan. Soon after leaving the harbor an English cruiser of the Weymouth class, alleged to be the Gloucester, appeared on the horizon. The English cruiser was emitting signals in three groups, and wireless receivers finally deciphered the message as follows:

"Goeben, making for Adriatic."

At 10 o'clock in the evening came an order from the bridge: "Right about starboard. Make for Cape Matapan."

A watching British cruiser saw the manoeuvre, but before it could send out wireless news that the Germans were making for the east the following order flashed out from the admiral:

"Jam the wireless. Jam it like the devil."

The Goeben operators then began a work of confusion. Wireless waves broke in upon wireless waves and sound interrupted sound for two solid hours. During all that time the British fleet lay securely off Malta and the Straits of Otranto. The British might have been able, after a great delay, to understand a word or two, but in those critical hours the Germans broke through.

Vivid Destruction of Zeppelin

BY THE FRENCH.

Paris, Feb. 23.—An eye-witness of the destruction of a Zeppelin by French gunners on Monday, near Reims, a town which lies nine miles Northwest of Bar-Le-Duc, thus describes the exploit:

"Two Zeppelins were signalled at 10.25 o'clock at night, by an artillery officer, in a listening post in the first line trenches of the Argonne. The night was clear and the wind moderate. The officer could not see the airships, but he heard the noise of their engines and telephoned to the Battery Base, whence the news was forwarded to the Army Corps Headquarters. All the batteries of the district were at once on the alert and within five minutes searchlights were sweeping the heavens in all directions.

"The Zeppelins were first sighted by an officer commanding a battery of 75 millimetre guns. The nearest was then about two miles off, flying at an altitude of about 5,000 feet and rising rapidly. The second Zeppelin was some three miles behind the first. The first officer was unable to get the elevation necessary to hit the airship, but he managed to give the exact position to the searchlight operators. From that moment until it was destroyed, the first dirigible was never lost to view and the searchlights never left it. As it was moving against the wind, its progress was relatively slow.

Autos in Pursuit.

"As soon as the warning reached Reims, five autos, with searchlights and with special anti-aircraft guns manned by naval gunners, started in pursuit. These guns throw a shell which is expressly designed to explode on contact with the aluminium-painted covering of the Zeppelins and to burst into flames once it is inside. The guns on the moving autos opened fire as soon as they came within range. A shell burst just behind the Zeppelin, throwing it into strong relief, and immediately the gunners seized their opportunity. Another shell passed over the target, but the next of the inflammable type, hit the mark squarely, about 75 feet from the stern. There was a shout of triumph from the Frenchmen, as the shell appeared to go through the body of the airship and to adhere to the right side of the framework which it set afire. A few seconds later two other shells went through the rear of the car, badly damaging the steering and elevating mechanism.

"For an instant nothing seemed to happen and then a thin red line crept along the side of the Zeppelin, which shone with a bright ruddy glow, as the flames spread and moved upwards. No explosion was heard as the Zeppelin began to fall. The great mass, now blazing more and more fiercely, descended slowly, while burning fragments of the cover fluttered away in the wind, and all the onlookers expressed surprise that the airship took so long to come down.

Bombs Exploded.

"The cargo of bombs, which there is reason to believe were to have been dropped on the inhabitants of Paris, exploded with a terrific roar as the Zeppelin struck the ground. Fragments of its car were hurled over 2,000 feet away and the remainder of the huge frame work collapsed in a heap, the fire continuing to burn for several hours.

"The second Zeppelin, which had witnessed the disaster to its companion, turned tail, and hurried back to the German lines."

"The gun crew which fired the shot that proved fatal to the Zeppelin will receive prizes amounting to 15,000 francs, 10,000 francs being awarded by a leading Paris newspaper and 5,000 by Marquies Ornano. Checks for these sums have already been sent to the Minister of War for distribution.

If Your Throat is Husky, Catarrh May Be Starting

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach and does little but harm digestion. It's altogether different with Catarrh—It cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrh, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Great trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrh. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the inhaler, it lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes, 25c. and 50c., sold everywhere.

THINK TWICE

Think twice before you mail the note in which you give your anger vent, in which you recklessly devote yourself to skinning some poor gent. For doubtless when your anger cools, you'll kick your spine up through your hat, and say, "I was the prince of fools to send a man such note as that!" Think twice before you pass along the scandal that you heard last night; you may do some good man's wrong that years of effort can't set right. And though the story true may seem, why rob a neighbor of his goat? From your own eye remove the beam, before you reach for your neighbor's mote. Think twice before you jaw your wife; there was a time, some years ago, when you declared you'd make her life as cheerful as a picture show. Alas, she took you at your word, as damsels do, and always did; and all her married years she's heard her husband yawning through his lid. Think twice before you do a thing your wife refuses to endorse; for every wicked act will bring the certain penalty, remorse!

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

UP D. R. McLEOD'S DISEASE.

Nova Scotia Man Tells How He Is Enjoying All His Health and Vigor.

West, Tarbot, Victoria Co., Feb. 28th. (Special.)—"I'm healthy and full of my old-time vigor. This was the answer of David Leod, a prominent resident of place, to a question regarding present health. Everybody knows that last winter Mr. Leod was a severe sufferer from disease. And he is most eager to the cause of his cure.

"I used seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills," he says, "and have been greatly benefited by use, but I am entirely cured of symptom of kidney disease."

The reason people talk so much about Dodd's Kidney Pills is that they make them well. Acting on the kidneys they purify the blood, means pure blood carried to the body. And people who are healthy all over are always enthusiastic.

Copra From Queens

Coconut cultivation, though a small industry in Queensland, is rapidly extending. Hitherto it has been supposed that copra from Queensland did not contain enough of commercial value, but the analysis of a sample of copra from these nuts at the Imperial has now established that the content is normal and the copra of quality, and brokers state that the nuts would be readily sold in this country at good prices. It is interesting to note that before the war bulk of the copra shipped to Australia from Ceylon, India and elsewhere was from Queensland and French Indo-China. Representations on this subject were made by the Imperial on the outbreak of war to the crushing firms in the United Kingdom some of whom have now started work copra, with the result that a new and good market for the product in this country, which is rapidly expanding when the new factories building start work.
