Anglo-American Friendship.

Often we are too apt to take seriously the occasional blow-offs of our cousins of the Great Republic. Spread-eagleism has more or less developed in United States, because of the many nationalities that have become incorporated with its population, for it cannot be expected that the process of absorption of the polyglot peoples, seeking homes in the many states of the Union can be brought about in a year or even in a decade. The old ideas of the countries from which the thousands of immigrants come, cannot be sloughed as a snake sloughs its skin. Time, education, environment alone can produce the real citizen. And America is making him to-day. The process may be slow, but so long as the desired result is reached and the ideals of the Anglo Saxonism inculcated in place of those brought across the water, so long will the real spirit of pride of nationality mark the course of the world, toward Peace, Anglo-American friendship and influence can do more toward the abolition of war than any other array of power combined. In this connection the following editorial article taken from the current number of "Our World" is a revelation of sentiment which many never believed to have existed. Friendship with Britain is the theme and the writer argues from well laid premises that this relationship is of the most supreme importance for the future of the two nations.

"There is no possible program of peace for the United States that does not have for its first plank: 'Friendship with Britain.'"

Even those who talk of "America Alone" can not ignore our long, unfortified Northern frontier. In thinking of the problems of this Hemisphere, we must not forget the importance of the role which the British played, in the formulation—and in the maintenance—of the Monroe Doctrine.

When President Monroe received the despatch from Mr. Rush, our Minister in London, telling that Channing had proposed an understanding between Great Britain and the United States to oppose the project of the Holy Alliance in South America, he forwarded it to Jefferson at Monticello for advice. The ex-President was immensely pleased at this proffer of friendly co-operation from England.

"The question presented by the letters you have sent me," he wrote to Monroe, "is the most momentous which has ever been offered to my contemplation since that of independence. That made us a nation; this sets our compass and points the course which we are to steer through the ocean of time opening to us. And never could we embark upon it under circumstances more auspicious." (Quoted in "Life of James Monroe," by George Morton.)

Both in North and South America, friendship with the British is of supreme importance to us. And if we are to go down to the sea in ships, if our trade and our influence are to expand beyond our continental frontiers, our points of contact with those who share our mother tongue become innumerable. On all the Seven Seas, the English are—and are to be—our partners or our rivals. The Washington Conference demonstrated that in Pacific and Trans-Pacific problems, the attitude not only of the British Isles, but also of the Dominions, is of vital interest. If attention swings across the Atlantic, it is even more obvious that no European policy which is unfriendly to England can be a policy of peace.

As Jefferson so forcibly stated to Monroe, so it is to-day and will be tomorrow—"never" will our Government find "circumstances more auspicious" than when British and American interests drive towards the same goal.

The fact that in every corner of the world and on all occasions we find ourselves in negotiation with the British is a very definite plus element in our foreign relations, for we very rarely find representatives of other nations with whom it is as easy to reach accord. The British Empire—fortunately it is becoming more fashionable, as it is more logical, to call it "The British Commonwealth of Nations"—is as it were a bridge between the Old World and the New. In dealing with France or Italy, with Russia, Germany or Spain, we deal with Europe—a small continent, over-weighted with the history of the dead. In dealing with Britain, we deal with all the world—the New as well as the Old.

The Self-Governing Dominions—and their influence in Imperial policy grows steadily—live in the same era as ourselves. The language we speak has the same accent. They, like ourselves, are more intent on the welfare of the children than on ancestral feuds in the Councils of Britain, the voice of the Dominions rings with a faith like ours—a faith in the world-that-is-to-be.

"Throught The Fire."

The following extract from Hutton and Harvey's history of Newfoundland is almost paralleled to-day, with the exception of a visitation by fire, but with that elasticity of recuperation for which this country is famous. The gloom of the present will be long be dispelled by the sun of prosperity. Already has the new boom in the price of codfish, given an impetus to trade, and by Christmas matters will, we hope, have so changed for the better that our outlook for 1923 will be brighter than ever.

"The spring sealfishery of 1817 was a failure, and the summer one of the gloomiest ever known, as regards the business of the country. In November of the same year came what seemed to be the crowning calamities of the colony. On the 7th of that month a terrible fire in St. John's, besides stores and wharves, destroying property to the value of half a million pounds sterling. This was followed by another great fire on the 21st November (one hundred and five years ago to-day—Ed.) which destroyed a considerable part of the business portion of the city spared by the former conflagration, and seemed to complete the misery of the inhabitants. Scenes of heartrending distress followed. Two thousand persons were left without a home, many of them having lost all they possessed. An appeal for help met with a liberal response. Provisions were dispatched from Halifax to save the inhabitants from starvation. The people of Boston loaded a vessel with a large cargo of food of various kinds—an act of generosity which is still gratefully remembered by Newfoundland. The British Government sent prompt and liberal aid. The Governor, the merchants and the wealthier classes exerted themselves to the utmost to relieve the wants of the needy. Though there were some disturbances caused by want and misery during this trying season, yet, on the whole, the people met this calamity with fortitude and patience. It was not long before the dark hours passed away. The year 1818 witnessed the commencement of a reviving prosperity. The fisheries were remarkably successful and the prices in foreign markets were considerably enhanced. A favorable change was experienced all over the commercial world. The courage of Newfoundlanders revived, and industrial activity was everywhere visible."

May we not then to-day take heart and courage so proverbial, emulate our forefathers who in misfortune and calamity never gave up, but steadily themselves toward the work which was presented, and carried it through successfully. As in 1818 may we not say of 1923, So mote it be.

Delegates Return.

The delegates of the United Fishermen's Movement, who went to Carbonear last evening to attend the public meeting last night returned to the city this morning. The delegates report receiving a great reception and numerous requests to hold meetings at other points in Conception Bay. All along the line they say the people are enthusiastic over the United Fishermen's Movement and are determined to fight for reduced taxation and retrenchment.

A Slight Fire.

At noon to-day a still alarm called the Central Fire Company to Water Street where the store occupied by John Thistle, Shoemaker, was thought to be on fire. Investigation proved that the fire was in the chimney in the upper flat of the premises which is occupied by Mr. Vincent Goss. Scott falling back of a tin chimney front had ignited the woodwork of the mantle shelf in the kitchen. The firemen used hand extinguishers and quenched the blaze before much damage was done.

Fishermen's Movement Makes Good.

RECEIVES ADVANCE OF EIGHTY CENTS.

Yesterday afternoon Messrs. A. E. Hickman, Sir John Croable and Capt. A. Kean, the latter buying for another firm, made offers of $4.50 for Labrador fish. As the United Fishermen's delegation had met the exporters during the forenoon and learned that the majority thought that $4.50 was as much as the market warranted, they held a consultation and accepted the offer of $4.50. The Board of Trade has kindly placed an office at the disposal of the delegation, and during the afternoon, the orders were issued to the various schooner owners to start discharging as soon as the weather is favorable. The offer practically means an increase of eighty cents per quintal over that made when the movement started.

Burin Congratulates Fishermen.

(Daily News Special.)

BURIN, Nov. 20. Burin District congratulates the United Fishermen on compelling the Government to repeal the Export Tax on fish and in securing a higher price for Labrador cured fish. We stand four square with them in their demand for reduction in taxation, abolishment of new and, at present, useless offices, the immediate discharge of a horde of hangers-on, in the public service, the replacing of the Dailay on protection service with a boat compatible with our ability to pay, and we confidently expect them to demand the resignation or dismissal of Cooker from the Marine and Fisheries Department, thereby repudiating the error of 1919. We cannot, as a country, expect reasonable treatment from European buyers while he is prominently connected with the Government of this country. Further he has shown himself to be entirely indifferent or incapable of handling the affairs of the fishermen and we assure them that this coast will have nothing to do with him, notwithstanding Boone and Bugden's claim to the contrary. We with the men of the North are praying for the time when we may rid ourselves of the entire bunch of misfits at present comprising the so-called Government.

Coastal Boats.

Argyle left Argentea 3.30 a.m. on western route.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Nov. 21.
We have lately got in a line of Nail Scissors (ordinary and folding) and of Cuticle Scissors (curved) for manicure work. We think these will be found very satisfactory, and the price is moderate.
Do not let a cough "hang on" at this time of year. Many coughs will yield to simple treatment, and a bottle of Gault's Syrup of Tar and Cod Liver Oil will sometimes work wonders. The main point is to take it in hand in time, and if you have a cough we advise you to try a bottle of this tried and trusty remedy. Price 50c. a bottle.

A Special Meeting of the B.I. S. Ladies' Auxiliary will be held on Wednesday evening, at 8.30. EASTER M. DOYLE, Secretary.

Congregational Church ANNUAL SALE OF WORK.

The Ladies' Aid and Girls' Guild of the Congregational Church are holding their annual Sale of Work in the Lecture Hall of the Church to-morrow (Wednesday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. A choice selection of dainty articles will be on sale at the various booths, which consists of Plain and Fancy Work, Handkerchiefs, Table Covers, etc., while a special line of goods suitable for the Xmas season will also be found at the different stalls. The usual grab bag will be in evidence during the evening, which will afford the children lots of fun. High teas will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock. This arrangement has been especially made to allow the employees from the various Water Street stores to attend, while the usual afternoon tea will be served from 4 o'clock. In the evening a concert will be held at 8 o'clock when the following artists will contribute to the programme: Mesdames Outerbridge, C. F. Garland; Misses Estelle Barnes, Major, Maund, Langmore; Messrs. Trapnell, Steele, Glass, McIntosh. The ladies of the Church who are well known for their stirring worth in making preparations for an event of this kind, have worked unceasingly for some weeks past to make the affair an unqualified success. With this in view we feel assured that their efforts will be rewarded by a large attendance and ready purchases.

Local Dramatic Company

WILL PRESENT "MY IRISH ROSE."

A new theatrical troupe will make its debut before the foot lights early in December. They are known as the West End Dramatic Company, having only recently been formed. Their first initial appearance will be in the presentation of "My Irish Rose." The company includes a number of well known players and a first class performance is assured.
