Denmark's Claims to Greenland.

ARE OPPOSED BY NORWAY.

elemish after the United States agreed land as part of the consideration to the land which "Eric the Red" discovered has suddenly revived after acute that Denmark now has a commission, headed by former Minister Th. Zahle, travelling over the Arctic island for the purpose of making ing better terms out of Denmark new commercial treaty which is he nerotiated in the near future. The chief argument used by Norway i that its fisheries might be affected adersely by recognizing Danish sovertants in Greenland, and of these only about 300 are Europeans, mostly Danes. The island is chiefly famous as a leaping off place for explorers in search of the North Pole and as the source of icebergs which imperil shipping on the North Atlantic courses. Its trade is a monopoly of the Danish state, which enforces prohibition. The total import and export trade of Greenland is only slightly more than $1,000,000 a year, and has declined since fish fats of various sorts are in less demand.

Norwegian claims upon Greenland date from the explorations of "Eric the Red" and Leif Ericsson in the eleventh century, when the latter of to have discovered the American mainland. In the fifteenth century Norway abandoned all communications with Greenland, and late in the eighteenth century Denmark began commercial relations with the island and established its colony there.

Denmark's colony before 1921 was only about the size of New York state, but the entire island over which it now is asserting its control is six hort in summer that even the smal amount of illable land near the coast ean produce only potatoes and other egetables which do not require much What's on your Sticker-Shelf?

Every shop has a back shelf filled with "stickers" that is with goods which sold well for a time and then went flat. Every shopkeeper has a "sticker shelf," a museum for goods which he bought, but couldn't sell.

Sunlight Soap never goes back to the "sticker shelf." Sunlight sells well all the time and goes out as fast as it comes in.

Sunlight Soap is the one Soap which doesn't go flat-it goes fast, and always leaves a profit behind to pay for its keep.

Shopkeepers! Don't buy Soap you cannot sell. Buy Sunlight Soap, the Soap which sells itself. Sunlight is always best.
