SENATORS DRIVEN OUT BY GAS.
 PROVIDENCE, R.I., June 19.—The long filibuster which has blocked proceedings of the Rhode Island Senate was interrupted this morning shortly after eight o'clock when fumes said to be chlorine gas drove the Senators from the chamber and caused four to collapse. After the Senators retreated the janitors searched the chamber and discovered that a newspaper saturated with the gas mixture had been placed behind the draperies at the rear of the rostrum.

MEDICAL MEN IN SESSION.
 OTTAWA, June 20.—The Canadian Medical Commission were ordered by Dr. J. D. Page, of the Federal Department of Health, at the Canadian Medical Convention here today, to investigate leprosy more closely, so that they could diagnose the disease when a Leprosy not knowing whether he was suffering from it came to the physicians for treatment. He instanced a girl visiting various doctors for two weeks before a correct diagnosis was made that she was afflicted with Leprosy. At the present time there were ten cases of leprosy in New Brunswick, of which four were active, while there were nine cases in British Columbia, of which seven were active. "The athletic heart, like the strained heart, was a myth, while evidence of tobacco causing a permanent disease of the heart was moored," declared Dr. John Parkins, of London, an eminent authority on heart disease. He said that even excessive smoking did not injure the heart permanently, nor was there evidence to show that heart disease originated from smoking to excess. The main cause of heart disease were rheumatic fever, known as heart fever and syphilis.

A Romantic, Thrilling Feature at the Majestic

A picture that will be hailed as one of the big successes of the current season is the Paramount production of "Children of Jazz," which was given a highly successful premier showing at the Majestic Theatre last night. Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Calhoun and Eileen Percy are featured. Miss Percy, as Babs Weston, is engaged to marry Richard Forestall who returns from Europe with Babs' father, John Weston, to find Babs the central figure of a series of wild jazz parties. Forestall learns that Babs, jokingly, has become engaged to two young wasters, one of them already married. He leaves, telling Babs that he will have nothing more to do with her.

As the story proceeds, Babs, with Ted Carter and Lina and Clyde Dunbar, is stranded on an island where it chances that Richard Forestall is visiting his father, who, with a few servants, lives there in the manner of the people of the 1850's. Richard compels Babs and her friends to don quaint costumes and to remain on the island indefinitely. After many unsuccessful attempts to escape, Weston, notified by Richard by wireless, that his daughter is safe, arrives to find Forestall, believing that Babs loves Ted Carter, preparing to leave for good. But Ted has something to say and the picture closes with Babs and Richard standing on the shore watching Ted sail from the small harbour into a new life. A life of jazz for all had come to an end.

This production is as thrilling as it is entertaining. The supporting cast is of the finest and includes Irene Dalton, Frank Currier, Snitz Edwards and Lillian Drew. Jerome Storm was the director. Misses McShane and Habel won further honors as entertainers last night when they submitted a splendid program of acceptable songs and violin selections. These artists are now concluding their seventh week and it looks as though the Majestic patrons will want to hear a lot more of them before their engagement terminates. The same bill is repeated to-night and to-morrow afternoon. Reserve Monday for "The Valley of Silent Men."

Paris, June 11.—A secret pact is ready to be signed by Tokio and Moscow, whereby Japan will furnish Russia with heavy artillery and warships that it would be forced otherwise to scrap under the Washington tonnage ratio, in exchange for the Soviet's ceding the Sakhalien oil rights to assure a supply for the Japanese navy, according to the well-informed newspaper Sanfil.
