

The Foster Brother; OR—The Orphan of the Wreck.

CHAPTER III. WHAT KENNETH AND THE FISHERMEN FOUND ON THE ROCKS.

It was an affecting sight, and one that drew tears from every eye. Kenneth laid his face over the gunwale, and drops fell on the water other than those cast by the oars; Dan Kirkby, too, raised the back of his rough hand and passed it across his eyes, murmuring in pitiful tones as he did so, "The poor orphan lammie!"

"Ma! ma! speak to Geogy," wailed the little sobbing mourner, as again and again he kissed those cold and stiffened lips, and clung closer and closer to the dead bosom, where he had been wont to find warmth and shelter, but which now remained wholly unresponsive to his vehement grief. Oh death, death, what hand but thine could seal up the fountain of a mother's love and close a mother's ear to the cry of her child? Never till now had she disregarded the faintest murmur of her precious darling; he could not understand, therefore, how she lay there so still and white, and kept her eyes closed, and answered not his piteous wailing, but kept calling and calling with passionate wildness for her to speak to him; and, as still no motion came from the closed lips, and the sharp face turned not towards him with loving smile, his wild cries ended in convulsive sobs, that shook with violence his little frame.

The sight affected Kenneth beyond control. The beautiful child weeping and wailing on its dead mother's breast stirred his warm generous heart to the centre and with an impulse born of a generosity which would not fail, he knelt down, gathered the child in his arms, and promised that he and Lucy should be parents to the helpless and friendless orphan. Was it but an imagination, the fruit of his holy enthusiasm, that suggested the impression of a smile flitting over the dead mother's face, or was it possible that the released spirit, lingering in pain, and waiting for the moment of redemption to the here ere taking flight with the angels to celestial land, prevailed on some transcendent power to cause inanimate clay to give some expression of gratitude? Certain it is that Kenneth, as he knelt in the bottom of the boat, thought he saw one brief happy smile flit over the pale features, and so vivid did it seem that he was startled into momentary expectation of returning life. Ah, no. When he steadied his questioning look upon the sealed features, he saw there only the settled and inexorable stamp of death.

Southed by Kenneth's accents of pity and compassion, and by the touch with which he felt him in his arms, the child ceased his wild lamentations, and soon sobbed himself to sleep on his protector's breast, where for the time his childish sorrow was forgotten—lost purchase in bright and golden dreams, or in delightfully listening to "the angel's whisper."

The maniac's slumber was also deep and profound. Exhausted nature was doubtless now claiming her due, after the toil and agony of that terrible night. This was the state of matters when they reached the shore, where they were received by a group of faces on which intense expectancy rested. Wonder, curiosity, pity, awe filled every heart when they saw the forms of the sleeping and the dead, and the sensation reached its climax when Kenneth stepped out of the boat and showed the sleeping face of innocence and beauty nestling in his bosom. How mothers and maidens crowded forward, full of womanly sensibility and exclamations of melting tenderness, and a compassion of heart deeper than any words or ejaculations could express. Tears flowed down many cheeks, and many pressed forward to kiss with trembling gentleness the rosy cheeks and ruby lips of the unconscious slumberer.

Kenneth paused a moment on the beach to allow of this outburst of rude but true and genuine feeling; also to see the fishermen carry away the dead body to lay it beside the others in the barn. The disposal of the sleeping maniac was a more difficult matter, but Dan Kirkby solved the problem for the present by offering to have him taken to his home, and attended to there, till more permanent measures could be adopted. Accordingly, he was wrapped in blankets, laid cautiously on a hand-barrow, and borne away to the fisherman's cottage.

HASTY CONSUMPTION CURED BY FELLOWS' HYPOPHOSPHITES.—Carbonar, Newfoundland, Jan. 3, 1871. Mr. James I. Fellows, Dear Sir,—I came to this country in May, 1869. I found a countryman of mine laboring under some affection of the lungs. I recommended your Syrup, tried at the Druggists in Harbor Grace, but they thought I was inventing the name at their expense. However, in April, 1869, Mr. Edgar Jones rapidly wasted away with every symptom of quick consumption, so that he was unable to walk across the room, having no appetite, pains in the left side, nervous system unstrung, dry, hacking cough, &c. Fortunately I learned that your Syrup could be obtained at Mr. Dearn's, in St. John's, and immediately procured some (showed one to W. H. Thompson, who ordered a supply at once). This was Tuesday afternoon; at night he took the prescribed dose, and in the morning he described the very results notified on the wrapper. His appetite soon began to return, and a voracious one it was; the dry, hacking cough changed into loose but violent attacks, finally disappearing altogether; pains left his sides, his hand assumed its usual steadiness, and before he finished ten bottles his health was quite restored and to-day not a more healthy person is to be found on our streets; and it is the opinion of all, had he not been fortunate in getting your valuable Syrup of Hypophosphites, he would now be in his grave. I also recommended it to another consumptive, but have not heard from him since, as he lives in a distant part of the Island. Hoping this will give you some encouragement. I remain yours, &c., D. H. DENBARD.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Nine years before the public, and no preparation for the hair has ever been produced equal to Hall's "Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer," and every honest dealer will say it gives the best satisfaction. It restores GRAY HAIR to its original color, eradicating and preventing dandruff, curing BALDNESS and promoting the growth of the hair. The gray and brassy by a few applications is changed to black and silky locks, and wayward hair will assume any shape the wearer desires. It is the cheapest HAIRDRESSING in the world and its effects last longer, as it excites the glands to furnish the nutritive principle so necessary to the life of hair. It gives the hair that splendid appearance so much admired by all. By its tonic and stimulating properties it prevents the hair from falling out, and none need be without Nature's ornament—a good head of hair. It is the first real perfected remedy ever discovered for curing diseases of the hair, and it has never been equalled, and we assure the thousands who have used it, it is kept up to its original high standard. Our Treatise on the Hair mailed free send for it.

LANDS FOR SALE IN THE STATES.

Two Lumbermen and Others—20,000 acres of Timbered Lands and 100 acres of good Farming Lands for Sale or Exchange for other City Property of Property in Canada, on reasonable terms.

These Lands are situated 60 miles from Cincinnati, Ohio, on the Licking River and its Tributaries in Rowan County, Kentucky. Kentucky is a healthy country and a mild climate. The Lands are good Farming Lands, and are well timbered with white, sugar, black, poplar, pine, cedar, red and white oak, chestnut, basswood, whiteoak, and hickorywood, and is underlaid with coal and iron of the very best quality, and possesses advantages to market. The property above mentioned is 60 miles south of Cincinnati, and consists of Lumbering, 20,000 acres west of Maysville, and 55 miles from Newport and Covington. There are two fine roads running through these lands, which will be completed in a short time, and with the Licking River running it is navigable for 8 months of the year. Also have several farms in said Rowan County. Also for sale in Fleming County, Ky., a farm of 300 acres, 100 acres well improved, two good log houses and barns two orchards 25 years old, 100 fruit trees each all kinds, also 400 peach trees, 5 years old, in bearing condition. Price $3,500. Twelve hundred cash down, balance on Bond and Mortgage or will exchange for other property in Canada.

It has been thought and stated by some people that these Lands are worthless, or in dispute with the owners of the Kin Kins Kan. The title is perfect, and all the inhabitants and settlers are united to encourage new comers of northern people from Canada. They offer to sell their old farms either in part or whole to encourage settlers. To parties wishing to trade or buy, I will give them a written statement to pay all expenses of travelling if the Lands are not as I represent them to be by applying to me at the Kirby House, Bradford, Pa.
