Winter Has Set In and the Harvest of Death Will Be Large.

6,000 Hopelessly Stuck—First Terrible Storm of the Arctic Winter Obliterates All Trails Over the Passes.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—Grim winter, with its terrific storms, has already seized Alaska and the Northwest Territory in its grip, and the gold-seekers trying to reach the Klondike of the Yukon by the overland route have seen their hopes of fortune swept away in the maelstrom that has obliterated the trails over the mountains and turned the lakes into tempestuous and impassable seas.

Five thousand miners on route for the Klondike treasure lands have been hopelessly stuck in the Skagaway Pass and Lake Tagish. Unprotected from the extreme hardships of an Arctic storm, the amateur miners have been exposed to fearful blasts and chilling rains in a pass that will now mean death for many of them.

Food supplies have been destroyed, trails have been obliterated, and the heavy rains, and the way to the field of gold is closed to the fortune-hunters until the spring.

Those who have been trapped in the Skagaway Pass by the storm will be condemned to live many months on the rough face of the mountain, and they give up the race for wealth and fight their way over terrible obstacles back to Dyea. Their cases are like sheep. The trail back to Dyea and Juneau will have to be made through the face of severe storms and terrible winds. Those who determine not to return will have to face the force of the Arctic winter, hundreds of miles from the point they wish to reach.

The storm that has swept over the Northwest is said to be the prelude of an exceptionally severe winter, and it is predicted that the frozen bodies of many of the miners will be miles from the promised land before they can be rescued.

Details of the sufferings of the gold-seekers who have taken the overland route are being coming. At the foot of the Dyea and Skagaway passes, where food supplies have been blocked for them to the interior, and to the Klondike. Some of the miners have sold their outfits and are returning to civilization, and others are waiting for their supplies, as intense as the fever which is sending them to the Klondike.

How many have already lost their lives is not known. The route to the Klondike by the river and by the coast, according to the reports who have already tried the rigors of the Alaskan climate. Even those who have been able to reach the coast passes to the lakes cannot proceed farther. The lakes have been swollen by an extent, and the rapids have been rendered so dangerous that it has been found impossible to push forward.

Capt. Amos, who was the pilot of the steamer Islander, which has just returned from the north, says that things are in a very bad way. The falls could not be much worse. Two thousand people are camped along the rocky shore with their horses or pack animals at hand, and they have practically no chance of getting over the pass. One of the United States commissioners, using his official influence and paying $400 in coin, managed to get the Indians to pack his outfit over the Chilkoot Pass, the worst of the others who went from Puget Sound without horses not one in fifty will go across the mountains this winter. Seven Seattle men who went in the Islander, returned on the Victoria, utterly discouraged with the prospect and will remain at the wharf until spring, when they expect to make another start.

Victoria, B. C. Aug. 14.—Despite the warnings sent out that men already at Dyea and Skagaway are unable to get across the passes, and that very few of the men there will get to the mines this year, several hundred men are here in waiting to take passage for the north on the accommodations on the Islander, which sails on Monday, have been taken up.

CURED

I was very much afflicted with rheumatism, and kept my bed for nearly six weeks. I tried nearly every medicine recommended to me, but without relief. Until your advertisement that you gave away sample boxes of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills was brought to my notice. I got a sample box and it helped me. Since that time I have taken four full boxes, and am entirely cured. I cannot say too much in recommendation of your pills as a sure remedy for rheumatic troubles.

He secured employment with the New York and eventually entered in the drygoods business for himself in the Bowery. He then went to the city of New York, where he was engaged in a shopping district. Home of Galley's Famous Remedies, Toronto.

Little need be said now to convince the public of what Galley is accomplishing in the interests of suffering humanity. For three weeks the types have told the story, and the scores of well-known citizens who have been cured or benefited through the use of Galley's Wonderful Little Pills, Such is the style of argument Galley offers to the people. He does not ask you to accept the (printed) statements of alleged cures hundreds of miles from London, but instead gives names and addresses of large numbers of residents—perhaps on your own street, or within a few minutes' walk of your own door. He asks you to go and hear the joyful story from their own lips. This style of argument is far more acceptable to the minds of honest people than columns of abuse and insincere malice.

While Galley has been giving the names of numbers of the best people who have been successfully cured through his new system of medicine, it is well, perhaps, to remember that some of his greatest victories, some of the noblest proofs of his matchless power in conquering disease, remain hidden from the public eye. In the depths of hearts innumerable, and the privacy of the home, since Galley's remedies have been introduced in London, the great Canadian Homeopathist has gained countless victories over disease, which no poet sings, or painter commemorates. His noble work goes on and on in endless and limitless progression; its capacities ever widening, and rising higher and higher; growing hourly and daily stronger in the estimation of the people.

Such, then, in brief, is Galley's mission, and already hundreds of hearts have been made brighter, hundreds of homes, from which the sunlight of hope had fled, have been made happier and irradiated with the sunshine of restored health. The grand thought to remember is, that Galley's Skillful Specialists are here at your service, ABSOLUTELY FREE. They cure where other less skilled have failed. The wise and prudent who desire cure in the shortest possible time, at the least expense, should consult these eminent Specialists without a moment's delay. Not a cent is asked for medical advice.

Here then is Galley's answer. The people themselves shall witness for the superiority of Galley's remedies over all others. The public will please note that the following are all residents of London.

An Old Lady 77 Years of Age Tells a Marvelous Story of What Galley's Remedies Have Done for Her.

MRS. C. W. PARKER, living at 562 Richmond street, London, says: "The effect of a single dose of Galley's Dyspepsia Cure has worked wonders for me. Mrs. J. B. Harpin cheerfully recommends Galley's Remedies for Pain in the Back.

MR. J. B. HARPIN, 122 Adelaide street, city, says: "I have been a resident of London for over twelve years, and well known in the city. After using one small vial of Galley's Rheumatism Cure the pains in my back disappeared, and I was able to get about. I can only attribute this result to using a small 25 cent vial of Galley's Cure for Rheumatism."

Mr. Ben Knobs Cured of Agonizing Dyspepsia.

MR. BEN KNOBBS, 12 William street, city, says: "I had suffered for years and years with the most acute form of Dyspepsia; was obliged to confine myself to the most simple diet, and even then what I ate caused great trouble, and I was unable to get any relief. I can only attribute this result to using a small 25 cent vial of Galley's Cure for Dyspepsia."

Here is Another Cured of Heart Failure.

MR. GEO. KNIGHT, 40 York street, city, says: "Have been a resident of London for eight years, and can cheerfully recommend Galley's Cure for Heart Failure. Mrs. John Ralph, 352 Colborne street, city, says: "I have been doctored in London and Hamilton for severe form of catarrh, and got no help whatever. I had about given up hope of ever being cured when I read Galley's 'ad.' in the papers, and decided I would try him anyway, as there was nothing for me to lose. I began treatment two weeks ago, and I can say it has done wonders for me, and I am not surprised at all I read about these wonderful little pills. I have now a splendid appetite. Get my natural sleep, and feel stronger in every way. I certainly advise anyone suffering from catarrh to try Galley's Specialists' treatment, without delay. The treatment has been successful. I can only attribute this result to using a small 25 cent vial of Galley's Cure for Catarrh."

After using one small vial of Galley's Dyspepsia Cure the pains in my stomach disappeared, and I was able to get about. I can only attribute this result to using a small 25 cent vial of Galley's Cure for Dyspepsia."

Galley Gives Back Health to a Dyspeptic Sufferer.

MR. E. HARRIS, 631 Elliot street, city, says: "I suffered so badly from dyspepsia that food would sour on my stomach, and I was unable to get any relief. After using one small vial of Galley's Dyspepsia Cure the pains in my stomach disappeared, and I was able to get about. I can only attribute this result to using a small 25 cent vial of Galley's Cure for Dyspepsia."

The Minute Men.

Readers of the "Land of the Lake" will recall the signal to arms given by the "Bery cross," carried from clannishman to clannishman, till the country side was aroused. No less imperative was the summons which was handed on amongst the "minute-men" of Massachusetts, stirred by Paul Revere on his midnight ride.

In our house the call came just as the family was sitting down to dinner. Instantly the farmer started up, and in reply to his wife's remonstrance, "Sit for dinner? All I want for dinner is powder and ball!" was on his way to join the patriots.

Capt. Worcester, of Hollis, was propped by the smaller rock, the brothers hastened to the house, seized their guns and equipment, and hurried to the common to join the company. Neither of them returned from the engagement unscathed, and for weeks of 100 years the boulder remained in the position into which it had been hurled, and upon which that memorable 19th of April.

Galley Gives Proofs

In the scores of names of reputable citizens who come forward and testify of marvelous results through his new system of medicine—Doctors of the old school are awed in the midst of such a multitude of cures—They cannot understand it, and dare not doubt the statements of prominent men and women—Galley gives you the names of people right here in London—Perhaps on your own street, and does not ask you to accept statements of unknown people hundreds of miles away—Galley is not obliged to resort to bitter enathemas and innuendo to support his claims. The people themselves are the true witnesses of his limitless triumphs, and his name is honored as no other has ever been in the annals of medicine. There is only one great GALLEY.
