Named in Honor of H. C. Hammond.

The following official announcement was given out at the Northern Navigation Company's office here today: lingwood.

The conditions of the competition were that the name must be of one word of not more than ten letters ending in "ic." Preference was expressed for a name having some bearthis was not an essential condition. and of the thousands of names sent their suggestions.

After very carefully considering the ong lists the name selected was "Pacific." This name means peaceful, quiet, tranquil, and it was considered appropriate that the largest and most magnificent ship sailing the greatest of our inland seas should be called after the greatest body of water in the world. This name was also suitable for a ship to be run in connection with the new Transcontinental Railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the ultimate destination of which is the shores of the Pacific ocean. The lucky competitor suggesting
