be lost in taking advantage of the sentiment of the hour is shown by the fact that the whole of the British empire has only subscribed $25,000 for a memorial to one who three years ago achieved the zenith of his fame, and who was the idol of the day.

The anti-mendicity is one of the oldest and most valuable of the charitable societies of London. Subscribers can give tickets to beggars, and they are relieved if

The company has a venerable officer of marvellous memory, who is a perfect terror to the insidious begging letter writer, having "spotted" hundreds

Mr. Dalrymple explained at length how this enormous business is conducted. The 30,000 acres under cultivation are divided into five divisions of 6000 acres each, under superintendents who are responsible directly to Mr. Dalrymple, the commander-inchief. Euch of these regiments is divided again into battalions, with a foreman or major, who has charge of 2000 acres. Under him are three companies, each having a captain and cultivating a section, which is 640 acres of land. Each superintendent plants having a captain and cultivating a section, which is 640 acres of land. Each superintendent plants his crop and harvests it, reporting from time to time to Mr. Dalrymple, who directs and oversees the whole. When the plowing commences in the spring the men go out in gangs, each taking 640 acres, under the direction of a foreman, who rides along on horseback to see that the work is done properly. Everything is in military style. The plows are all double, and are drawn by four horses. At the word of the captain they start, and go around a field of 640 acres, which is exactly four miles in distance, ten or twelve plows abreast. At the end of the second furrow, eight miles the player are left in the soil. eight miles, the plows are left in the soil, the men mount their horses, and ride to headquarters' for dinner. At the close of the day the horses, plows and harness are inspected again, and, if any repairs are necessary, the blacksmith, saddler or farrier makes them during the night. The same routine is followed at seeding time and during the harvest. The self-binding harvesters throw the bundles of ripe grain upon the ground, where they are picked up and placed in huge shocks to await the waggons which transport them to threshers, which are always placed as closely as possible to the cars. After threshing the straw is carried away and burned. It sounds very large, but it is nevertheless a fact, that the ploughs and harvesters regularly make a trip four miles long without stopping. A furrow eight miles in length is considered a fair morning's work, but ten miles is nothing for an afternoon's diversion. Grant comes dashing along Ocean avenue behind a fine team o bays that draws his heavy T cart. Ordinarily he drives alone; sometimes his son Ulysses is with him. Grant's now in the financial vortex. He haunts Wall street, although not as a general speculator, talks stock and Mexican railroad prospects continually, has become brusque in manner, in me lashing in dress, and more talkative tinually, has become brusque in manner, more lashing in dress, and more talkative than ever before. Sometimes he wears a blue necktie with a red dot in it, and occasionally I notice the plaid pattern of his trousers is very large as to squares and sensational as to effect. They say he is making mosey, and is now worth a clear three-quarters of a million, made in conservative stock speculations, in which he was guided, and is yet, by Jay Gould. He remains the lion of the Branch, notwithstanding the counter attraction of Jay Gould, who lives up toward Atlanticville, and about three miles from Grant's cottage, toward the north. Gould, however, is rarely seen. Sometimes a glimpse of him may be had as one whirls along Ocean in a vine-shaded corner of the veranda of his splendid cottage. Again at dusk there is sometimes a clatter of hoofs and rattle of wheels on the avenue, and, as a spleudid than of blacks dart by, one catches sight of a solitary figure on the high box seat.

Light lapses indicate good management and well-pleased and satisfied policy-holders.

To No. 5 we say: It is a little too much to expect Twenty-six Williams to be taken care of, and invested and re-invested, safely and profitably, without any, expense whatever. It cost the largest loan and savings society in Canada cless upon 14 per cent. to re-invest and care for its millions last year. And again it is a little unreasonable to expect that $1,376,527 43 could be paid out to about 3000 widows and orphans, and $779,584.57 more for Endowments, never paying the wrong party, and getting a proper legal discharge from each, and no expense whatever be incurred in the whole performance! But this is the basis on which the hidden writer proceeds to figure out his "more than 24 per cent." for collecting a few cash premiums. What per cent, would it be if all the premiums were completed, as many of the ETNA'S were years ago, by 5, 7, 8 and 10 payments?

The standard method of measuring a life company's economy is by showing the ratio of its Working Expenses to its Entire Income. This method has been followed for many years in the "Policyholders' Index," for all American companies, and has been applied by Prof. Cherriman to all Canadian companies in his Blue Book for three years past. It is a little unfair both to old companies whose premiums have been largely completed, and to young companies whose premiums have been largely completed, and to young companies whose premiums have been largely completed, and to young companies whose premiums have been largely completed, and to young companies, for 3 years past, per annum, $27.30

TAILORING JAMES NOBLE MERCHANT TAILOR, No.100 Yonge Street.

The excellent character of the ÆTNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY has recently been set forth in the columns of two Totonto daily papers, in respect to its Strength, Soundness, Profitableness, and Economy of Management. This has been done both satstantively, by full publication of its accounts: and also comparatively, by placing its figures alongside of those of other companies, English, Canadian and American. And this has been done also in an open, manly fashion, ever the names of the Macagers of the Company in Canada, all of whom have had long experience in the business, and are responsible for the correctness of their statements.

Thereupon some anonymous writer, who evidently does not wish to be heldresponsible for his sianders, concects a statement in which he proves, in his own fashion: let, that the ÆTNA's volume of Income and Insurance is less now than in 1872; 2nd, that its death rate rules higher than the average of other companies in the States; 3rd, that it paid out in cash $155,441 more money in 1879 for death, and endowment claims than it received in cash for premiums; 4th, that its lapses and surrenders are abnormally heavy; and 5th, and lastly, as if bound to destroy, by a masterpiece of absurdity, any value sensible people might have attached to amore moderate statement, he brings the actual cost of collecting what little income he leaves us, up to "more than 24 per cent!"

Points 1 and 2 have been answered fully in a previous advertisement, entitled "Solid Progress," showing that all statements were in Greenbacks in 1872, but in Gold in 1879, and that while income and Policy Liability had decreased, on the other hand the Assets had Increased from $18,617,520 Gircenbacks in 1872 until they are now $26,403.440 in Gold I And as to deaths, we showed that the Ærna was an old company and had many old members, while many of the other companies were new; but the Ærna having received the necessay funds from those old members was now well prepared to meet all losses as they came.

To No. 3 we say:—All right. H
