LYSIS WHILE IN NEW YORK—RETURNED TO HIS HOME IN LONDON, ONT., AS HE BELIEVED TO DIE—THE MEANS OF RE-

Stricken with Landry's Paralysis and yet layman, but it means a miracle to a physician. Such is the experience of O. E. Dallimore, at present a resident of Madison, N. J., and a rare experience it is.

Yes, its true that I had Landry's paralysis," said Mr. Dallimore to the reporter, "or else the most celebrated physicians of London were mistaken. That I have been cured is clearly apparent." With this he straightened up as sturdy and promising a son of Britain as ever trod American soil.

It was on the 15th of March last he continued. "when I was in New York city, that I first felt symptoms of my trouble. I experienced difficulty in going up stairs, my legs failing to support me. I consulted a physician who informed me that I had every ptom of locomotor ataxia, but as the Landry's paralysis and knowing the nature ase advised me to start for my home and friends. I gave up my work and on April 1st started for London, Ont. A well known physician was consulted but I grew rapidly worse and on Saturday April 7th, several physicians held a consultation on my case and informed me that I was at death's door, having but three to six days to live, still I lingered on by this time completely paralyzed, my hands and feet being dead, I could hardly whisper my wants and could only swallow liquids. Oh, the misery of those moments are beyond all description and death would really have been a welcome the physicians. Rev. Mr. Gundy, a clergy-man who visited me in my last hours, as he paralysis that had been performed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I started to take the pills about April 28 and a week after that felt an improvement in my sation in the limbs that had been entirely dead and I soon began to move my feet and May 28, when I was taken out of my bed for beginning of July I was able to walk up stairs alone and paid a visit to Niagara. Slowly but surely I gained my old health and strength, leaving London for New York on October 11 and beginning my work again on October 26, 1894. Cured of Landry's paralysis in eight months." To confirm his story beyond all doubt, Mr.

Dallimore made the following affidavit. STATE OF NEW JERSEY, 38

Accidents on the Farm. While it is as desirable to employ a veterinary surgeon in cases of severe sickness or dangerous injuries as it is to employ the family physician at times, it is well to know what to do in what hospitals calls "emerdone in less time than it would take to get a regular doctor to the spot. One of these cases is that of choking, which frequently bappens when roots are fed without having been cut. If the obstruction is not large enough and has passed well down, it is often possible to move it farther along by gently pushing down with a stick. A whip handle rounded a little at the end is a good instrument for this purpose. One person should hold the animal's head so as to bring the mouth and throat in a straight line, and another should use the obstruction from the outside, rubbing it downward. Push firmly, but gently on the

Another method is to put a stick about as like a bridle bit, and tie it fast so as to oblige it to keep the mouth open. This obstruction will be thrown up, or will facilitate breathing until mucous enough has gathered around it so that it will pass downward. If the obstruction is not far down, the animal's mouth may be kept open by horse shoe, or by blocks between the jaws, and one with a small hand can reach down and withdraw it. Unless something is done soon the animal must choke to death, and time is of more importance than skill. Cuts that cause profuse bleeding are another sort of cases that need attention before a surgeon can be secured. If the blood comes in jets at about the interval of a heart beat, it is from an artery, and a tight bandage be tween the wound and body should be applied, then a stout stick placed below and twisted until the blood flows but slowly. If the one who puts it on knows enough of the ectly over it, it will hasten matters, and this should be part of the education of a farmer.

If the blood flows in a continuous stream put a wide bandage directly over the wound to keep the edges together, drawing it tight ly as can be done with the hands. A handful of cotton, or even of green grass, unde the bandage will assist, or one may hold the edges of the wound together while anothe goes for the doctor. We have seen a horse' life saved in this way when the leg was badly cut by a mowing machine, and a man's life saved by the first method when a bulle had cut the artery of the arm above the elbow. In neither case could a surgeon have been brought in season.

Rhuematism Cured.

Rheumatism is caused by lactic acid in the blood at acking the fibrous tissues of the joints. Keep your blood pure and healthy and you will not have rheumatism. THE HYAMS BROTHERS ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

The Hyams Brothers on Trial For Murder.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—The Hyams Bros. were brought up in the police court this morning on remand on the charge of murdering W. C. Wells on Jan. 16, 1893. The case promises to be one of the most sensational ever tried in Toronto. Over forty witnesses have been subpœned for the prosecution and it will be hardly possible to conclude the hearing at one session. The most interesting witnesses will be Mrs. Harry Hyams, wife of the younger prisoner; Uriah Jones, uncle of the dead youth, and those who were first on the scene when the alarm was given. It is anticipated that the defence will present some new and startling developments hitherto unsuspected by the public.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—Yesterday afternoon Mr. Aylesworth was cross-examined on the Hyams' statements relative to the condition of the hoist. Just previous to the fatality the deceased, Wells, was, deposed the witness, continually dunning Harry Place Hyams for the $1,200 due him.

The sensational character of the examination was enhanced by the entrance of Mrs. Aylesworth, the next witness, sister of the deceased Willie Wells. When asked as to her brother's death she commenced to sob and broke down completely, the proceedings for a time having to be suspended until she recovered her composure. Then she deposed that she had an intuitive knowledge that something was wrong. She knew of the insurance policy and was suspicious.

DAMAGING EVIDENCE.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—The crowd jamming the court room to-day at the Hyams murder trial had an exciting experience. Miss Latimer, typewriter to the accused, gave very damaging evidence. Miss Latimer deposed to an entirely new account of the fatality as given by Harry Place Hyams. She testified that she returned on the morning of the so-called accident from her unnecessary trip, with letters which could better have been mailed, and found to her surprise that the ordinary door was locked. She tried another door, which had not been secured, and on entering found Harry Place Hyams greatly excited. He told her a terrible accident had happened; that his brother, Dallas, had dropped the elevator weight from the third floor on to the head of deceased, killing him instantly. This story conflicts with Harry Place Hyams' other accounts of the tragedy.

The next witness called was Mrs. Pengelly, tormerly a domestic servant. She was called to prove the presence of Dallas at the warehouse at the time of the alleged murder. She deposed that Dallas drove home in a cab, and was too much overcome by the fatality to command control of his feelings. He said that was why he drove home.

Toronto, March 1.—Although the evidence was as gruesome as that of Wednesday afternoon it was not so encouraging for the prosecution. Dr. Edmund King, a well known and eminently respectable medical authority, gave the most important testimony. He deposed that he was called so promptly after the fatality that the body was still warm and flexible and death could not have occurred more than twenty minutes before his arrival. Nothing said by Harry not have occurred more than twenty minute before his arrival. Nothing said by Harry Place Hyams or his behaviour was calculated before his arrival. Nothing said by Harry Place Hyams or his behaviour was calculated to arouse his suspicion, and he was convinced at the time that the fatality had happened in the accidental manner described to him by the accused. He made a careful examination of the body, the wounds being described in detail. The examination confirmed his opinion that death was the result of an accident.

A plumber named Wright, a friend of deceased, testified to having examined the premises and hoist, his evidence eliciting no new facts.

At yesterday afternoon's session an expressman, named Fox, described his visit to the warehouse on the morning of the fatal day and the appearance of things there. The body of young Wells was lying near the elevator shaft with the head crushed in and covered with blood. The elevator weight was leaning again the elevator, detached from the rope. The hook produced in court was like the one then on the rope, but he could not swear that it was the same. The coroner was called and made a careful examination of the premises, and then gave a certificate of burial to the undertaker. He had heard Harry Hyams warn deceased to be careful of the elevator or he might get hurt. He believed the weight came off once before, letting the cape down with a run from the first or second floor.

The agents of the Covenant Mutual and New York Life Insurance Companies swore to the circumstances of the issuing of the policies on the life of W. C. Wells, and both swore they solicited Wells, and he had taken the policies without any assistance or urging from the arisoners or anyone also.

swore they solicited Wells, and he had taken the policies without any assistance or urging from the prisoners or anyone else. This evi-dence, from the Crown witnesses, caused something of a sensation in the court, as it sometime of a sensation in the court, as it was confidently expected the Crown would show that the insurance had been taken on the instigation, in some degree, of the Hyams. There was no suspicion of this in the evidence, and at this stage it looks as if this part of the Crown's case will fall through.
