

Maxwell's Novels! Just Published!

O'HALLORAN AND HIS MAN,

By W. H. MAXWELL, Esq.,

Author of "Capt. O'Sullivan," "Stories of Waterloo," etc.

Complete in one vol. of 416 pp., with steel illustrations.

PRICE 50 CENTS.

* * A fine edition of "O'Halloran" is published, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt, with 23 steel engravings. Price $1.25.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

This is one of the best of all the Irish novels — full of spirit, fun, drollery, and wit, and embellished by numerous engravings. — Cour. and Enquirer.

In all the lands where fame has flourished, or fun is something — where merriment draws open the jaws with a laugh, or pathos draws down the eyelids with a tear — there is no doubt "O'Halloran" will become a favorite with all readers. — Mirror.

Not a page can be read without dispelling the blues, and putting a misanthrope in the best of humor. Lover and Maxwell, the fathers respective of "Handy Andy" and "O'Halloran," are kindred spirits, and worthy, like Botts and the Captain, to sleep in the same bed. Whoever would "laugh and grow fat," should read the story of O'Halloran's adventures. — Brooklyn Eagle.

CAPT. O'SULLIVAN,

HIS

Military and Matrimonial Adventures.

By W. H. MAXWELL, Esq.,

Author of "O'Halloran and His Man," etc.

Complete in one vol., with steel illustrations.

PRICE 50 CENTS.

For sale by all Booksellers.

Copies mailed upon receipt of price.

A. BURKE, Publisher, Buffalo.

SPC1
F
127
N8
B9
1855