

It will be one aim of those who shall direct the studies of the students in Huron College to make them thoroughly acquainted with the writings of the Reformers of the 16th century, that they may thus be fully aware of the evils from which the Church was then delivered, and may dread the slightest approach to that system of false doctrine which for ages has hung, like a dark cloud, over the Church, and shut out the light of God's saving truth from so many nations of the earth.

There is a danger at the present time that the minds of men in England and in this country may be so filled with horror at the bold infidel suggestions which have been advanced, even in high quarters, that the subtle progress of those whose object it is to bring our Church again under the yoke of Rome, may be overlooked as being an evil of less magnitude than the other. But the view which I have been led to take of this matter is very different. I believe that the sound common sense and reverence for Scripture generally entertained by the English people will, after the first excitement has passed away, reject with horror the infidel suggestions which have been advanced, and will consign to merited disgrace those who
