New York, June 30 .- The case involv-New York, June 30.—The case involving the repudiated interviews of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National League baseball club, and newspapermen who made the last road trip with the Giants, will probably be reopened by John K. Tener, president the average of the season. The board also ruled that leagues desiring to suspend shall fix a date for closing and that all players must be paid in full. reopened by John K. Tener, president of the league, July 6. Although the exact date was not set it was said McGraw would have an opportunity to offer an explanation of his part of the affair next Friday unless some club owners found they were unable to be in New York on that date. In discussing the request made by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association, President Tener said that he was not only willing to reopen the case in order that the sporting writers might have an opportunity of vindicating themselves, but he would welcome a thorough investigation of McGraw's charges.

REOPENED BY TENER

The National Association of Profescial Baseball Leagues, received by Interest Tearney, of the Three-I League, tonight.

The ruling was issued by John H. Farrell, secretary of the national association, as a result of an appeal from President Tearney, who believes some of the smaller leagues will not survive the season owing to the war situation and continued unfavorable weather.

The board ruled, however, that play
