Canadian Headquarters, France.-How do Canada's sons out here fac death when, it comes?

How do Canada's sons out here face death when, it comes? Everyone knows what honor they have brought to the Dominion by their courage in battle and their cheerfulness and adaptability in camp and field. What of the last and greatest test of manhood; the inevitable encounter that awaits us all from which only the spirit can hope to emerge vic-torious? Chaplains of the Canadians corps with whom I have spoken say withou hesitation that Canada's sons who pass out, in the field and in the am-bulances and hospitals immediately behind the front, die as bravely as they fight. Another mile of the Hindenburg line outheast of Arras has been taken, as shown by last night's official communication, giving a total width of three and one-half miles to the turning movement at the top of this famous position.

In falling back the Germans are making in the direction of an emergency auxiliary line to the rear of the Hindenburg line, called the Drocourt-Queant line. Work on this position is far from complete, and Livatho the Germans seeem to have had no idea of using it except as a last re-

Foe's Plans Fail.

On retiring from the Somme last month the Germans apparently ex-pected to hold all the Hindenburg line, running southeast from Arras in front of Cambrai and thru St. Quentin and Laon. The important point at the northern end of this line was Vimy Ridge. There is no doubt the Germans never expected to be driven off that ridge by a frontal attack, as was done by the Canadians on Monday. Anticipating a northern offensive, hewever, and the possible outflanking of the Vimy positions, the Drocourt-Queant switch running north fr the Hindenburg line was planned. In the meantime the Germans driven back from their old positions

Kingston, April 13.—According to a cable received by Prof. J. M. Lanos, of the Royal Military College, from his son, Flight-Lieut. Victor A. Lanos, the latter took part in the big Brit-ish air raid over the German lines last Sunday. Lieut. Lanos left Kingston with the 146th Battalion, and after from the artillery and machine gun fire. It is rather difficult to explain the exact situation where the attacks centre on arbitrary German field positions rather than on towns or vil-lages. But in modern warfare the taking of a bit of trench or a strong point which is marked only on war maps may be of far greater import-ance and significance than the capture of a well-known city. Toward the southern end of the

The Canadians, by the way, are loud in their praise of the Scottish troops that fought south of them in taking a ridge.
