

U. F. O. AND LABOR LIBERALS' ALLIES

At Least, Hon. Chas. Murphy
Says So in an Address at Milton, Ont.

Milton, Ont., Nov. 25.—(By Canadian Press).—That the three great progressive forces in Canada—the Liberals, Farmers and Labor—are working toward a common aim and against a reactionary government, which has outrun its mandate, and that there had been a working alliance amongst these three groups, was the thought expressed by Hon. Charles Murphy, member for Russell, Ontario, in the Dominion parliament, in addressing the Women's Liberal Club here tonight. During the Liberal regime, Mr. Murphy declared, there had been no farmers' party because there had been no need of such. The farmers' parties in the past, he said, had grown up because there was discontent under Tory administrations. When the people rejected reciprocity by defeating the Liberal government, the farmers' party began to develop.

The essential features of the Liberal and Farmer tariff platforms were practically identical, Mr. Murphy declared, and since the advent of the Farmers in the house of commons they had voted with the Liberals. The result of an isolated case like the victory of the Farmer candidate in East Elgin did not lessen the need of a working arrangement between the parties opposing the government. The Liberal attitude toward labor had been equally helpful, Mr. Murphy declared, and therefore afforded ground for co-operation between labor and liberalism in their common fight for a return of democratic government.

Public Morality Lowered.
The board of commerce fiasco had also been a scandal for the government to face. The public had been left at the mercy of profiteers, despite the camouflage employed. Such a lowering of public morality had an effect on private morality, said Mr. Murphy, who referred to the growth of divorce applications, which from 15 in 1912 had increased to 700 per cent, to the present time.

The government luxury tax Mr. Murphy condemned as an ill-advise and poorly handled piece of legislation. Under the tax the wealthy escape, while the small stores doing only a cash retail business, such as grocery stores, were not covered in the tax, and as a result the retail trade was suffering from a law which made the modest alarm clock a luxury but exempted an oil painting.

Mr. Murphy was warmly applauded at the close of his address.

DEMANDS RIGHTS UNDER MANDATE

position that mandate agreements and treaties are to be considered only by states that are members of the League of Nations. It states that the United States, as a participant in the war, and a contributor to its successful issue, cannot consider any of the associated powers, the smallest not less than itself, debared from discussion of any of its consequences, or from participation in the rights and privileges secured under the mandates provided in the treaties of peace.

Mr. Colby says in his note that the United States government accepts the statement of the British government that it has refrained from exploiting the petroleum resources of the mandated territories in question, "and welcomes your pledges" that it is far from the intention of Great Britain to "establish any kind of monopoly or preferred position in its own interests."

"I need hardly refer again," Mr. Colby continues, "to the fact that the government of the United States has consistently urged that it is of the utmost importance to the future peace of the world that alien territory transferred as a result of the war with the central powers should be held and administered in such a way as to assure equal treatment to the commerce and to the citizens of all nations. Indeed, it was in reliance upon an understanding to this effect, and expressly in contemplation thereof, that the United States was persuaded that the acquisition under mandate of certain enemy territory by the victorious powers would be consistent with the best interests of the world."

Referring to the statement by the British government that the draft mandates for Mesopotamia and Palestine, which have been prepared, will, when approved by the interested allied powers, be communicated to the council of the League of Nations, the secretary of state says: "The United States is, undoubtedly, one of the powers directly interested in the terms of the mandates, and I therefore request that the draft mandates be communicated to this government for its consideration before their submission to the council of the league."

church and pleaded in vain with the leaders to quell the disturbance. After mounted and motorcycle police had dispersed the assaulting forces a survey of the field of battle revealed casualties including a dozen or more slightly injured, who had been struck by flying bricks. All windows on the lower floor of the club had been smashed.
