The Art Exhibition

With a new method of hanging the pictures in the exhibit of the Ontario Society of Artists, the finest collection of pictures the society has yet offered to the public was opened to the public on Friday evening. There are only 91 oil paintings hung this year, and the general average is very high. There are no very large pictures, and outside the black and white, only one small one, but it is one of the best in the exhibit, and one of the best J. W. Beatty has painted. The rich coloring of the woods and water and the brilliant orange sunlight in the background form a brilliant and memorable study. Of half a dozen, this and No. 5, "Early Autumn, P.Q.," are the best. Mr. Wylie is at his best in "A Canadian Type," a robust and sympathetic piece of work. He has also a portrait of Sir Mackenzie Bowell. Another excellent Canadian type is Owen Staples' "The Violoncellist." Miss Dorothy Stevens has a striking and boldly handled portrait, "Miss Powell," (79) which shows a good deal of originality, while losing nothing in faithful portraiture. Fine Landscapes. The landscapes, however, are the feature of the show. They are thoroughly Canadian, and they show the country for the most part in glow and glory, spin, summer or fall. Herbert S. Palmer, in "Down the Valley" (71); Tom Thomson, "Northern Lake" (88), in which the water is magnificently blue; F. Hans Johnston, "The Silver Bush" (49); Arthur Lismer, "The Clearing" (56); S. C. W. Jefferys, "Bright Day in Saskatchewan" (52), are examples. A good winter piece is F. H. Bridgen's "In the Hardwood Bush" (14). Gertrude Spurr Cutts has two very fine canvases, "Low Tide" (15) and "Night in Old St. Ives" (18), while her husband, W. Cutts, exhibits a glorious springtime landscape, "On the Dee" (17). F. M. Bell Smith gets some unusually delicate effects in "A Glacial Farm" (1), Harry Britton's "An Inlet of the Sea"

(12); Robert F. Gagan's "Nearly High Tide" (28) and "Plastered Rocks" (29) are among the best of the marine pictures. James E. H. Macdonald, in half a dozen northern pictures, gets his best effects in "Fine Weather, Georgian Bay" (59) and "Spring Breezes" (61); Florence Caryle maintains her reputation in the graceful "The Story" (21) and the charming "The Threshold" (22); Gertrude Des Claves shows good color sense in "Autumn" (23) and a most charming study of a young girl in "La Tricotieuse" (29) will have a host of admirers; Lawrence S. Harris strikes a bright and happy note in "The Corner Store" (36) and there is a touch of genius in being able to get so much out of nothing. It makes one feel good to see the old commonplace house. Fred S. Haines has two splendid collies, "A Watchdog" (40), in which the alert expression and the foresting are about equally clever, and "A Shepherd" (39). Kathleen Jean Munn shows a striking study in "A Spanish Dancer" (65). G. A. Reid's "The Mountain Top" (74), is in his noble decorative manner, "Still Life" is an attractive sketch. Mrs. Reid has a most delightful garden vista in "The Joy of Summer" (77), a pleasure to see. Black and White Work. Mrs. Elizabeth Knowles shows a most interesting and charming case of miniatures (57). In this room the black and white work etchings, etc., are hung. Arthur Heming's "Bound for Hudson Bay" (107) is full of strength and vitality, and is one of the strongest things this clever draughtsman has produced. His whaling studies are most interesting. "A Leaping Finback" (105), presenting a novel experience. These black and white studies and the etchings, as in Miss Stevens' group, call for special notice. LOST IMMIGRANT TRAIN FOUND AT CHICAGO CHICAGO, April 5.—The twenty "missing" Scandinavian immigrant girls reported to have been lured from their train by a white slaver disguised as a brakeman near Pittsburg several days ago, arrived safely at their destinations. It is announced. The immigrant train was delayed by a flood for forty-four hours near Newcastle, Pa. The train was traced thru to Chicago yesterday. TWENTY-THREE KILLED IN RAILWAY ACCIDENT BOMA, Belgian Congo, April 5.—Three trainmen and 20 passengers were killed today when an entire train with its locomotive, plunged thru a railroad bridge crossing an arm of the Congo, at a height of 150 feet from the water. None on board the train was saved. Pitcher Roy Walker, the Appalachian League recruit, joined the Naps last week, his ninety-day term for assault, on the county farm at Davidson, Tenn., having expired. Already they're calling him "Dead-shot" Schang in the Athletics' bivouac, and forecasting that he will be one of the star catchers in the league a year hence.

Entire Population To Be Vaccinated American Authorities Getting Alarmed Over Spread of Small-pox at Niagara Falls. NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 5.—Following the compulsory vaccination order issued by the provincial health department, doctors started in this morning to vaccinate the residents of ward one. All who have not been vaccinated by their own physicians must call at the schools and submit to the operation. By Tuesday night the physicians expect to have vaccinated the entire population. There is a possibility of trouble before then. There are fully 200 school children who have not been vaccinated, and many people say they will refuse to submit. If necessary, they will leave town. The American authorities have become alarmed over the spread of the disease, and there was talk of refusing people from the Canadian side admittance to the States across the international bridge. Dr. Logan, the new health officer, is handling things with a firm hand, and in every case where people refuse to have their arms scraped a prosecution will follow. NEGRO MURDERER LYNCHED IN MONTANA MONDAK, Mont., April 5.—J. C. Collins, a negro, the slayer of Sheriff Thomas Courtney of Sheridan County, was taken from the jail late last night and lynched. The mob hanged him to a telephone pole and then set fire to his clothing in a futile effort to cremate his body, after they had riddled the staying corpse with bullets. Deputy Sheriff Richard Burmeister, who was shot by the negro, died last night in a local hospital.
