VANCOUVER HAS THE FEVER

St. John people will be especially interested in the developments which promise to make Vancouver a great grain shipping port on the Pacific coast. Reading a Vancouver paper at the present time reminds one of the contents of the St. John press when the agitation to make St. John a winter port was at its height. At the recent grain conference in Calgary, the shipment of Alberta grain via Vancouver was approved, and resolutions were adopted urging the Dominion government to build a terminal elevator at Vancouver to handle the grain crop of 1909. If the government declines, then the C. P. R. is to be urged to undertake the work, but the elevator or elevators to be under government control. The president of the Vancouver board of trade, on his return from the Calgary conference, said to the World, that Alberta's grain would begin to flow westward this year. He said it was exclusively shown at the conference that two cars of Alberta grain could be moved as easily to the Pacific coast as one car to Fort William. This statement was made on the authority of the superintendent of the western division of the C. P. R. and the president of the Vancouver board held that it removed the greatest barrier in the way of Vancouver's development as a grain port. He did not believe the Dominion government would build the elevator, but understood that the C. P. R. already had plans for our port. In this connection the Ottawa correspondent of the World wired on February 6th:

"It was learned here today authoritatively that the premier and his colleagues are anxious to do everything possible to develop Canada's trade on the Pacific. It will be remembered that recently Hon. William Pugsley expressed the opinion that the time was ripe to make Vancouver a national port. Great interest is taken here in the suggestion of the Calgary grain conference that the Dominion government should erect elevators, but the matter cannot be formally considered until the resolution reaches Ottawa. The minister hesitates to express any definite opinion at this stage, but the matter will probably be looked into shortly, though whether anything will be done this season remains to be seen. Vice-president Whyte of the C. P. R. is expected in Ottawa soon to interview the government on the whole question."

The following editorial from the World shows how high are the hopes of the citizens with regard to the future of the port:

"Not since the C. P. R. Company decided to make its terminus, not at Port Moody, but Vancouver, has there been a time in the history of this city wealthier in promise, more charged with mighty possibilities, more teeming in forces which have in them the making of a Greater Vancouver, than the present week. The question of developing False Creek as a shipping basin was discussed yesterday between representatives of the Great Northern Railway company and the city council; yesterday the grain conference at Calgary passed unanimous resolutions that representations be made, into which all the weight and influence of the province will be turned, towards getting the Dominion government or the C. P. R. company to establish wheat storage facilities at Vancouver immediately. The time is eloquent in indications of developments beyond the dreams of the most sanguine citizens, beyond the word-paintings of the most facile ready-writer; the things which a few years ago might have been regarded as the vagaries and extravagances of unbridled fancy are today emerging into view above the horizon of the imminent, the actual."

The allusion to the Great Northern Railway is further emphasized by this quotation from President Elliott of the Northern Pacific:

"My object in coming here today with the Great Northern, gentlemen, is to say to you that if the Great Northern and the city can get together on some broad and co-operative basis, for the development of a suitable harbor on False Creek, providing ultimately for docks and other structures incident to commerce and providing suitable level ground where railroad yards and a good passenger station can be built, approximately near the proving centre of your town, the Northern Pacific management would, under those circumstances, be glad to join with the Great Northern in helping to develop such a terminal and in owning a part of it."

President Elliott states that, as a development of the movement which began with the purchase by his company, ten years ago, of the International railroad, running from Seattle to the Boundary, and of the arrangement made a little over a year ago to admit the Great Northern company to participation in the business which the International line threw open, it now seems practicable, in the development of the railway situation at Vancouver, that terminals adequate to the handling of the trade and in keeping with the trading facilities of both lines shall be established, either jointly or separately, preferably jointly—in Vancouver.

As an indication of what may come in the future, the World submits this interesting news item:

"The first consignment of the 50,000 bushel shipment of wheat for Liverpool, by the French liner Amiral Duperré, which is not expected until toward the end of the month, came in yesterday, about twenty cars, from Calgary. There is to be an experiment with this shipment to determine whether wheat can be sent in these French ships or any other general cargo steamers around the Horn in bulk. About 800 tons will be placed in a compartment in the lower hold and the result will be awaited with interest as it means saving in cost of six cents a sack. By reason of the slow method in which the wheat has to be handled here, through the lack of elevator facilities, the expense of handling is large. The total shipment will be about 45 or 50 cars, the longest wheat train to come to the Pacific coast over the C. P. R."

SOUTH AMERICA

The great opportunity for commerce and capital in South American republics has been the keynote of the address of John Barrett, director of the international Bureau of the American Republics, before 370 members of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, on a night last week, says the Journal of Commerce. Mr. Barrett, who has for a number of years been one of the leading financiers of the United States, spoke of the twenty republics in South America, which, he said, have framed their constitutions on the plan of that of the United States. "These twenty nations," he said, "though despised, conducted last year foreign business valued at $2,000,000,000, which represents an increase of $1,000,000,000 in ten years." He called attention to the fact that while there are English, French and German banks in the South American cities, he could not find a single American bank institution from Panama to the Straits of Magellan. "If American manufacturers and merchants are to build up a trade in these sister republics, as they should," declared Mr. Barrett, "we must establish there American banks. Just as capital has built up our commerce here, so we must build up our commerce there by the establishment of American financial institutions." The speaker declared that by proper diligence and persistence it would be possible for the United States to control the trade of the South American nations.

Dr. McAllister, in his remarks in parliament yesterday, yesterday, the resolution favoring a public health bureau for Canada, put the case very strongly when he said that large expenditure is incurred to bring immigrants into Canada, and that it would be better to spend more money to ensure the health and save the lives of persons who are already valuable citizens of Canada.

The Moncton board of health has declared itself in favor of medical inspection of the schools, and of such action as will effectively prevent vaccination on the sidewalks and in other public places. Action in regard to both these matters is in the public interest. In St. John as well as in Moncton the schools should be inspected, and the law already in existence against vaccination in public places should be enforced.

The temperance men of Fredericton are pursuing a wise course in their efforts to get men in the city council who will stand for the enforcement of all the laws, including the Scott Act. It would be farcical to campaign against repeal of the act and then permit wholesale violations.

It is said that Quebec province brewers propose to form a trust and give up the practice of setting men up in the saloon business. How many saloon keepers in St. John are financially backed by the brewers and wholesale dealers?

While Nova Scotia coal men seek protection from British and American competitors, St. John consumers would appreciate protection from the Nova Scotia coal men.

STOREKEEPER'S PHILOSOPHY

I've been a storekeeper for thirty years, and I know the value of a good customer. I've seen many a store fail because the owner didn't know how to treat his customers. I've seen many a store succeed because the owner knew how to treat his customers. I've seen many a store fail because the owner didn't know how to treat his customers. I've seen many a store succeed because the owner knew how to treat his customers.

The meanest man I ever knew (now I won't mention names) was a storekeeper. He was a man who would not let a customer have a word with him. He was a man who would not let a customer have a word with him. He was a man who would not let a customer have a word with him.

Now I don't care how shiftless nor how poor a fellow is, I'll treat him as a human being. I'll treat him as a human being. I'll treat him as a human being. I'll treat him as a human being. I'll treat him as a human being.

Young Blood.—Sorry, never hunt out of luncheonable.
Lady Dorothy—"Well, thank you for listening to me, my lady; it's awfully good of you."—Punch.

Martin Wilkie, of North Sydney, met with trouble at the car barns of the Cape Breton Electric Co. He was struck over the head on Friday night by a falling beam in the hands of a Glace Bay hockey player, or enthusiast, after jeering at the Glace Bay team, and their supporters for losing 6 to 1, in the former town. He was badly bruised and trampled upon by a crowd, who were returning from the game to Glace Bay.

CATARH, FOUL BREATH

If There is a Constant Drooping of Mucous, if Your Breath is Foul, Hearing Poor—It's Catarrh.

Fortunately there is a remedy, Catarrh, which quickly cures all forms of Catarrh.

It cures by Nature's method without the use of drugs or stomach dosing. You simply inhale its pleasant scented vapor into the nose, throat and lungs. It is antiseptic and kills germs, heals sore spots, relieves inflammation, stops coughing and drives every trace of the disease from the system.

It is quite impossible for Catarrh to exist if Catarrh is inhaled a few times daily. It at once destroys the germ of the disease and prevents it from returning. Thousands are annually cured by Catarrh, and no matter how stale, born the case, we guarantee a permanent cure if Catarrh is used according to directions.

Among those recently cured by Catarrh are: Mrs. B. Brown of Tennessee, N. S., who says, "I used Catarrh for my cold, and it cured me in three days. I have been suffering from it for years, and it has cured me. I have been suffering from it for years, and it has cured me."

A LINCOLN STORY.
The Japanese question has created much disturbance. It seems that orderly proceedings from the start would have been maintained. The right of a state to regulate its schools belongs to it; and through proper representation at the first, Japan would have promptly acquiesced. The matter will undoubtedly now be settled in this way, but with accompanying unnecessary ruction. In the end we shall look upon it all as Lincoln is said to have regarded the assets of an absconding debtor.

The story is told of him when as a country lawyer he was written to by a client who had a claim against a party who was reported to have fled, and asked to see if anything could be done. Mr. Lincoln could find only a deserted office, and wrote back that he had visited it and found an empty desk, two cane-seated chairs and a rat-hole. He said he thought the rat-hole would be looking into.

A tickling or dry cough can be quickly loosened with Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. No opium, no chloroform, no soothing or harsh. Sold by all druggists.

A piece of stone is used as a barometer in Finland. It is white during clear weather, but darkens with approaching storm.

Have not coughed once all day?
Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says.
