INTERESTING TO BANKERS.—We were informed yesterday, of a curious anecdote connected with bank robberies, which was communicated by Murray since his conviction.

TITHES. (From Collett's Register.)
The Archbishop of Canterbury is reported to have said, upon the trial of the Queen, that a King of England could not do wrong, but could not commit any folly; a passage which I quoted in answer to the Rev. Mr. M. Wall, of All Saints, Surrey, who is only one of the many Irish parsons now in England, and who upon the occasion that I allude to, had attacked the present King, on account of his having committed one of his sins.

What do we see now? We see Lord Brougham continuing to preach and rail that the church property is not the property of the clergy as any private property whatever is the private property of any private individual. Look at this, my readers, and you will see how liberally it is that the burdens of the nation will be lightened by a Whig Ministry.
