Denies All Fraud in Dealings With The Government and Sues For $2,379,137 For Breach of Contract

Winnipeg, Dec. 11—Edward Anderson, K. C. counsel for Thomas Kelly & Sons, has filed an amended statement of defence in the government's civil suit, setting forth that all of the parliament buildings contracts were contracts regularly entered into between the government and the contractors, denying there was any fraud, collusion or conspiracy in any respect; contending that all the payments were proper legal payments, made without fraud or conspiracy, by an order-in-council duly passed and signed, authorizing the money to be paid out of moneys provided by an act of the legislature and duly applied to contracts.

BRITISH SHIPPING TONNAGE IS GREATER

Ships Flying Union Jack Exceed by Two and Half Million Tons All Other Countries Combined

In spite of the losses incurred by the mercantile marine through the war, the tonnage of vessels classed in Lloyd's register of shipping for the year 1914-15 was 900,000 tons in excess of the tonnage classed at the corresponding date in 1914.

At the same time the war and its effect on the shipbuilding industry sounds a predominant note throughout the report, and although the actual volume of tonnage which is in hand throughout the world is not materially different from what it was twelve months ago, it is differently distributed among the several shipbuilding countries.

British tonnage was still two and a half million tons more than that of all other countries combined, but the great demand upon the shipbuilding resources of the United Kingdom for the production of war vessels of various kinds has necessarily caused a falling off in the building of merchant ships, the construction of which has been greatly delayed, and in some cases entirely stopped. Similar conditions have prevailed in all the belligerent countries.

This position has naturally given an impetus to the industry elsewhere and greatly increased activity has prevailed in the United States, Japan, the Scandinavian countries and Holland. The increase is most marked in America, where it is stated there are at present under construction and on order for classification with Lloyd's register the largest amount of tonnage on record for that country.
