

Mr. John Tyrrell
Scratched Until I Tore the Flesh
"It was in the latter end of the year 1903 that a nasty itch came through my skin, and I scratched it until I tore the flesh. I used several ointments to no effect. I went to a skin hospital. They advised me to go to the hospital, but I refused. I could not sleep with the ointment. I was that way until one day I changed to using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. As I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I found I was getting all right, and the itching was all right, and the itching was all right, and I have not had any of the same since, and I have not had any of the same since, and I have not had any of the same since."

SNIAK THEIF IN CHURCH
Chatham World-Collection plate was inadvertently left on the communion table in St. Mary's on Sunday before last, and some one entered and helped himself to part of the collection. The thief was familiar with the place, and had been there often before. He had placed pennies on the plate from which he stole dollars. He thought by leaving part of the money that the theft would not be discovered, but inquiry shows that certain envelopes and banknotes which were placed on the plate are missing.

PILES
The most reliable and most effective treatment for piles is the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It is a non-toxic, non-alcoholic, and non-irritating preparation. It is a true cure for piles, and is sold by druggists everywhere.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

FOR man must work and woman must weep.
And the sooner it's over the sooner to sleep—
And good-bye to the bar and it's moaning.
"Oh, I wish I were a man. I could do so much more in my work." It was Molly, the little stenographer, who enunciated that sentiment. She made her moan before a group of half a dozen women, and four out of the six promptly echoed her sentiment. "Just imagine being able to ask anyone you wanted to marry you, and not simply sit and wait to be asked," said the author's wife. "Aren't they lucky?" "Wouldn't it be great to be able to travel around anywhere you liked and see the world and have adventures and never have to think about propriety?" mused the butler's girl. The other two didn't give any reason, just said they'd always wished they'd been born boys instead of girls. "Have you ever noticed how often you hear this sentiment expressed among women, especially of the younger generation?" "How I wish I had been born a man!" "Why, to one young woman I've heard say she was heartily glad she was a woman, I've heard ten say they wish they had been born on the other side of the fence. Incidentally, I can't recall that I ever heard a man say he wished he had been born a woman. Can you?" "Isn't it queer?" "And yet I can't quite condemn the attitude, because I must confess that I've been one of the few sometimes." "But I do think there is a good deal more on the reverse of the medal than many of us who envy men their freedom and their opportunity to do big things, realize. For instance, I've often heard one of these would-have-been-men say with a sigh of relief when the work went badly, 'Oh, well, I suppose, I shall get married and stop work some day.' Please remember that a man, no matter how strenuous and exhausting the competition, no matter how disagreeable the conditions of his work may be, cannot look forward to any such relief. Marriage means to him merely the shouldering of new and tremendous responsibilities. He cannot fall now, he cannot drop out of the ranks. He must keep on, no matter how tired and weary of his life he may be, once he has given 'hustings to fortune' in the shape of a wife and children. Again, we think it must be splendid to be able to seek out the one you love and who loves you, instead of sitting with folded hands hoping against hope that the right man will come for you, which, like as not, he never will. But turn the medal over again. Isn't it wonderful to know that the one who lays his heart at your feet has chosen you out of all the human beings he knows to be his mate? The man can only know that the woman has chosen him out of the few who have sought her, no matter how many there is one joy in having the right choice out of all the world, but there is another joy in being chosen out of all the world. These are but two ways in which the medal you thought had only one side can be turned over. Doubtless you can find others for yourself.

Despair and Despondency
No one but a woman can tell the story of suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.
