Evening. Wednesday evening at six o'clock the feast of the Passover begins, and the celebration will continue for eight lays among the members of the Jewsh congregation. This holiday is compared by the Jews to the fourth of July in the United States, for each freedom was gained. During the feast of the Passover, which is a time of gladness, all Jews are told to share what they have with others who are not so well off. Their doors are open to the homeless, all who are hungry must be fed, and the naked will be

Although the feast continues for eight days, the two first and the two last days are the most important, and on these special services will be held. On Wednesday at six o'clock prayers will be read in the synagogue, and services will be continued morning and vening on Thursday and Friday.

HOME AGAIN. Walter Munford Was Only on a Trip to Musquash.

Walter P. Munferd, who left his home on Paradise row last Saturday, and whose whereabouts were not known by his family, was heard from by tele-phone at Musquash Monday afternoon. His son and daughter left a few min-utes later to bring their father home. It appears that Mr. Munford had business at Musquash and went there o look after it. But he did not say when leaving home he was going to Musquash, and as he did not return home Saturday night his family were however, feel much hurt over the news ome mentally deranged, and that he had probably done away with himself, denying that there was any ground for such a report. Mr. Munford arrived
