A dangerous hole in the sidewalk on north side of King Square is reported.

The police were called into Fred Knowlton's home on Middle street last night to eject his brother Frank, who was creating a disturbance.

Chorner Kenney has decided that an inquest into the death of Matthew Gettings, who was drowned at Sand Point last night, is not necessary.

Gardiner Beattsey had several men at work this morning preparing the flower beds in King Square for seeding. All the ice and snow has been removed from the square, and unless another storm comes the work of planting will commence in about a week.

A lunatic who was taken in charge at Sand Point about two weeks ago and was to be deported, is still confined in the police station cell and being kept on the jail diet at the expense of the city and county. It has not been decided at yet what will be done with him.

The rumor is persistent that Hon. A. S. White will be the seventh judge on the Supreme Court bench of the province. Under the new judicature act, an additional judge will be appointed to the New Brunswick bench, and Mr. White will probably be selected to fill the important position. Mr. White has had a long and successful career as a member of the bar and stands high in his profession. The appointment will be made in about a month.—Sussex Record.

TREASURY BOARD.

At a special meeting of the treasury board yesterday afternoon, requests for grants from several public organizations were considered.

POLICE COURT

Suggestion That Prisoners are Not Always Searched—A Mixture of Offenders Today

In the police court this morning one drunk was fined $5 or 30 days jail. Jack Francis pleaded guilty to beating his brother Peter in view of the police and with resisting the police. Policeman Ward informed the court that Peter Francis had been away from the city and the city learned that Jack had been abusing his mother, Amelia, in her house on Sheffield street. He took his mother's part and also received a beating.

The prisoner was informed that he was liable to one year in jail and was remanded. Ore Rese, an Austrian, was arrested on King street early this morning and charged with wandering about and not giving a satisfactory account of himself. Rese had been a protectionist in the station cells for the past four or five nights and refused to go to the Salvation Army shelter. Last night he applied at the police station for shelter, was ejected, and afterwards found hanging about the premises.

This morning he could not account for his actions to the court, being unable to talk English and was remanded to jail. It is stated that prisoners are not at all times properly searched when locked up for the night. Rese when being taken to court this morning dropped from one of his pockets a half of a brick. A few days ago a lunatic was placed in a cell and some time afterwards was found fondling a long bladed knife.

Joseph McAfee, a man of 70 years of age, was arrested last night for loitering and lurking in a vacant store at 602 Main street which is rented by Samuel Rubins. W. B. Wallace appeared for the prisoner and explained to the court that regarding Mr. McAfee there had been a good deal of trouble aired through the papers and it would be better to have the case tried out and see who owned the property, the prisoner or his wife. If it was the prisoner's property he had a right to be on it. He asked that among the witnesses summoned be Mrs. McAfee. Dr. A. W. Macrae, who was in court representing Mrs. McAfee, said that his client was unable to attend the police court.

The old man was remanded to jail and the case will be heard at 10.15 o'clock tomorrow morning.

SPRINGFIELD TO OPEN RIVER NAVIGATION

Will Start Either This Evening or Tomorrow Morning

River is Clear, Except for Floating Ice, to Nat Belyea's—None of the Other Boats Ready.

In all probability navigation on the river will be opened today. The steamer Springfield, Capt. Porter, will move from Marble Cove to her wharf at Indiantown this afternoon and it is expected she will sail for up river early this evening. This morning several hours were spent in making a few minor repairs to the steamer and there is still a possibility that the Springfield will not be ready to start tonight. She will surely start tomorrow, however, and Captain Porter is confident that he can navigate his steamer up as far as Belyea's Point. For years past there has been great rivalry between the captains of the various steamers as to which one would get up the river the first. This year, judging from the talk of several of the steamer men, the Springfield will have the first beaten by quite a margin. No other captains have yet been heard to name the date on which they propose to start and in all probability a week will pass before any of the other boats get up steam for the first trip. Surprises have been sprung before, however, and one year when one captain was about town telling his friends that his boat would open navigation that afternoon another steamer left Indiantown without warning. This will probably not be the case this year, as repairs have not been completed on some of the steamers.

A farmer named Breen arrived at Indiantown this morning in a small sailboat. He came from Nat Belyea's and states that he experienced little trouble in getting down. He reports that a considerable amount of floating ice was met but says that a steamer would have no trouble in getting through it.

Above Belyea's Point the ice still holds fast but is expected to move out any day.

SAYS IMMIGRANTS ARE A GOOD CLASS

Bernhard Theodor Gives His Views of Britisshers

Not to be Compared With Continental Settlers so Far as Their Value to Canada is Concerned.

Bernhard Theodor, who for a good many years has been engaged in work among the immigrants arriving at St. John and Quebec, takes exception to the Star's remarks concerning those people who were landed here from the steamer Mount Temple, and contends that they are of a more suitable class for Canada than those who are brought out from the British Isles.

Mr. Theodor explains that these Hungarians, Galicians, Germans and others are a strong and healthy lot, and that the only thing which could lead to the conclusion that they are undesirable is their manner of dress, which, however, becomes materially changed after a short residence in Canada.

Mr. Theodor is not very enthusiastic over the general run of British immigrants, and states that from his experience they are in many respects undesirable. Usually they refuse to work and prefer seeking positions as bank clerks or in stores instead of engaging in the industrial occupations of the west. On the contrary, these continental people are reliable laborers, and being engaged on any contract, they are not likely to desert. Mr. Theodor, English immigrants are not regarded very highly, and, indeed, in Winnipeg the employment bureau in their posters calling for laborers for various kinds of work, add to the notices the expression: "No English need apply." Even nearer home there are districts in New Brunswick in which farmers have refused to engage English laborers.

Mr. Theodor further asserts that during the present season only one continental immigrant was deported, while there have been, at least 100 from Britain, the latter immigrants include many criminals and undesirables. Years ago, there used to arrive from the continent immigrants with large families, but owing to the then existing regulations these people were often turned back on account of some slight illness which is now, however, being differently handled. That policy resulted in these people being sent to their own homes where they were almost penniless, having sold their property and spent the money coming to Canada. This was naturally followed by a reluctance on the part of married men to come to Canada, and those who are now arriving are, for the most part, young and unmarried persons who have but little to lose. While it is true that a majority of them remain in Canada, some go back to their own countries after a few years' work here, but they go back after having met with success. British immigrants, on the contrary, expect to much here and return, as a number are doing on the Empress tomorrow, feeling rather disgusted with the conditions which they met. They had been looking forward to more than any reasonable man should expect.

The funeral of the late F. B. Stephens took place at 3.30 this afternoon from St. Paul's church. Rev. E. B. Hooper conducted the burial service and interment was in Fernhill.

FRESH FISH ARE STILL SCARCE OWING TO THE COLD WEATHER

Gaspereaux Being Caught and a Few Shad, But the Season is Hardly Open Yet.

Fresh fish have arrived but are not very plentiful on account of the cold weather. Reports from along the Nova Scotia coast are that there is a scarcity as the cod and haddock have not struck in. The fishermen however are ready for the fish when they come in. Many boats are engaged in fishing gaspereaux in the harbor, and down along the coast. These fish are quite scarce as yet, and the price the fishermen are receiving today is a dollar a hundred. The weirs at the old fort shore and Carleton flats are in position, but are not doing much as yet. Along with the gaspereaux there are a few shad captured.
