A P. E. ISLANDER.

Murdered and Robbed in the Maine Woods. The Man Arrested for the Crime Makes a Remarkable Statement.

Martin Stanton, the woodman, who was found murdered near Patten, Me., on Monday was well known in Bangor, having lived there when out of the woods for the past few years. He was a native of Prince Edward Island and was about 50 years old and was unmarried.

He left that city June 10 to work on the log carrier he had contracted to deliver to the mill of George W. Marsh & Ayer. When he left the woods to go out, presumably bound for Bangor, he had a check or order for $72 besides some cash on him.

Stanton leaves a brother in Massachusetts and a sister in Prince Edward Island. In response to a telegram from the Central Police of Prince Edward Island, the body will be sent to Bangor for interment.

PATTEN, Me., Oct. 22.—After a remarkably quick trip considering the road was in bad condition and the distance through the forest, Detective Miller arrived at Patten late Tuesday night with George Mills, the last person seen with Martin Stanton while alive and who is charged with his murder.

Stanton's body was found 45 miles from where he was arrested. He was placed in the temporary jail for the night. In answer to a question from a reporter, he said: "My name is Martin Stanton and I was born at Eastport, Me."

He persists that he is Stanton. Reliable Patten people positively identify him as George Mills, who stopped here a short time, about a year ago, and who last Friday it is alleged, made several unexplained trips to the woods, cashed a time check from the H. W. Marsh camp for $72, bearing the name of Martin Stanton.

Mills, if that be his name, appears unconcerned, either cheerful or untroubled, at the web of evidence apparently closing around him. The prisoner is a more manly and slender build, is of dark complexion and has not a bad face but shifty eyes. He says he is half French, an orphan, and has a sister about 22 years old in Boston. He can neither read nor write.

After claiming that his name is Stanton he said he was on his way from the Marsh camp last Wednesday when he overtook an old man. They walked together about five miles and parted, according to Mills' story. The stranger struck into the woods and Mills claims to have gone along the road.

Mills says: "It is told me that he had dynamite and a cartridge fired him by the cook at the Marsh camp. This is absolutely all I know of the man whom I overtook. Until arrested I did not know a murder had been committed."
