The annual meeting of the I. C. R.

Employes' Relief and Insurance Association for the Salisbury-St. John district, was held in the freight shed here on Wednesday night.

The question of an increased grant from the government for the employes was discussed and it was decided to ask for $5.000 more than is allowed at present.

When the association started in 1890, the government in consideration of the association relieving it of all responsibility of parment to accidents etc. granted the association reheving it of all responsibility of payment for accidents, etc., granted the yearly sum of $6,000.

When the line was extended from Quebec to Montreal, the grant was increased to $8,000. Since that time the Canada Eastern division was acquired and the number of employes increased 40 per cent. and the grant was not increased in proportion.

The employes now ask that the annual grant be made $13,000 and the matter veil be brought to the attention of the gov-

THE FORESTERS' MONEY WAS JUGGLED

Some time in 1903, Mr. Fowler, on behalf of himself, Mr. Irwin and Mr. Mc-Cormick, brought a proposition before the Union Trust Co., to jointly purchase certain limits and mill property in British Columbia. The proposal was that the Union Trust Co. should buy the property and should turn it over to a new company to be formed, in which Messrs. Fowler, Irwin and McCormick should have 49 per cent. and the Union Trust Co. 51 per cent. Eventually, whenever that might be, the three associates were to pay for their

Mr. Fowler claims that he was out-andout owner of the option on the property, and approached the Union Trust simply as a vendor. Mr. Foster, however, avers that Mr. Fowler entered on the negotiations for the purchase of the property for and on behalf of all "those who were expresumably, the Union Trust Company. Whoever may be right, Mr. Fowler obtained from the agent, Mr. Peter Ryan, on January 26, 1904, two agreements for sale, one of which was to be operative between Ryan and Fowler, and selling the latter the property for $170,000; the other to be put forward to the Union Trust Co., as the real bargain, proposed to sell him the same property for $225,000.

The deal went through as arranged; the Trust Co. paid Ryan the $225,000, and he related to Fowler the $55,000 difference between the agreements, or the greater part of it. From this, Fowler paid Mr. Foster $2,500, and probably paid him $7,000. He paid Irwin $1,000 and Mc-Cormick $12,000. Steps were then taken to form the Kamloops Lumber Co., the shares being distributed as suggested in FOWLER ET AL CAME BACK AGAIN

While these negotiations were in progress, another property was offered to complete the estate of the concern, known as the Okanagan Lumber Co. for $40,000. At the end of 1903, a statement of assets and liabilities had been submitted to the shareholders, showing assets $65,544.66, stock liabilities $50,000, other debts $11,-

This property in which Fowlet, I win and McCormick were also interested, it was proposed to turn over to the Kamloops Co. at the moderate price of $175,-000, and $42,000 for logs, or a total of $217,000. And this was what happened, the money being put up by the Union Trust Co. This was divided among Messrs. Fowler, McCormick, Irwin, Hall and BeatMr Fe the Union Trust Co. and the "others ex-

What business had Mr. Fowler, while ig as representative of the prospective ly interested, to knock down $55,000 of the Union Trust Co.'s money, or to sell to the company a $40,000 property for

Mr. Foster received a portion of the $55,000 rake off. What was this for? Does it support the view that Mr. Foster did not know there was a rake-off? And if he knew this, what was his position in not conveying the information to the Union Trust? Was this the exercise of "forethought" and "care" in the handling of the funds committed to his keep-
