FATALLY INJURED BY FALLING 30 FEET INTO 'TEAMER' HOLD

Thomas Young, Struck by Sling of Deals at Sand Point Early Yesterday Morning, and Died in Hospital Three Hours Later—Both Arms and One Leg Broken and Skull Fractured.

Saturday, April 15. Falling more than thirty feet into a hatch on the C. P. R. liner Lake Champlain at Sand Point, Thomas Young, aged 29, of St. James street, West End, was fatally injured yesterday morning. He died in a few hours.

The accident happened between 4 and 5 o'clock, and soon after 7 o'clock the terribly injured man was dead. Young was a winchman. His death was caused by one of the men tending the hatches, probably, it is thought, in order to get more exercise. Deals were being loaded at the time and a sling full swung around, striking him across the legs. Before he could help himself he was hurled head long into the hatch, falling more than thirty feet into the hold.

Work was at once stopped and men hurried to where the unconscious man was lying. The fall had broken both arms, one leg and fractured his skull, the latter injury resulting in concussion of the brain. He was lifted to the dock and Dr. F. L. Kenney summoned. When it was seen that he was fatally hurt, a priest was called. Rev. J. J. O'Donovan, of the Church of the Assumption, West End, responded. In the emergency hospital the priest administered the last rites of the church to the dying man, and soon after 7 o'clock he passed away.

MR. HATHEWAY EXPLAINS

To the Editor of The Telegraph: Sir—Referring to your editorial of the 12th, in which you review the article published by me in the March number of the New England Magazine, permit me to say that the article referred to was signed by me exactly as I have signed this letter. I regret exceedingly that the magazine office should have committed the error of applying to me a title which does not belong to a member of the legislature, and also that they should have given my address as Brunswick, which is a town in Maine.

It will oblige me if you will publish this on your editorial page.

Very truly yours,
W. FRANK HATHEWAY,
St. John (N. B.), Canada.

THE IMPERIAL MISSION

117 Piccadilly, London, W., April 3, 1911. To the Editor of The Telegraph: Sir—May I trespass upon your space to cordially invite those who intend visiting the mother country during the coming season to get in touch with the Imperial Mission?

This organization, of which His Grace the Duke of Argyll is hon. president, is essentially imperial in its conception, and during the twelve months which have elapsed since its formation, it has done invaluable work.

Whilst carefully avoiding the discussion of purely domestic questions, the Imperial Mission concentrates its attention upon demonstrating the real significance of the great self-governing dominions, their prospects and limitless possibilities, and in urging upon the people of the United Kingdom the imperative necessity for imperial solidarity in commerce and defence, from the point of view of the overseas dominions.

There are few of "the blood" whose homes are in the more distant parts of the empire who are not earnestly looking forward to the realization of the great and very practical ideal of imperial consolidation.

Beneficial throughout the empire are eligible for membership, and I shall be most happy to send particulars, and to hear from experienced colonial speakers, who would be willing to help us, during their stay in England, now or at some future date.

Yours faithfully,
J. ENGLEDEW,
Secretary.

War.

I abhor,
And yet how sweet
The sound along the marching street
Of drum and fife! And I forget
Wet eyes of widows, and forget
Broken old mothers, and the whole
Dark butchery without a soul.

Without a soul—save this bright drink
Of heady music, sweet as death;
And even my peace-abiding feet
Go marching with the marching street;
For yonder, yonder, goes the fife,
And what are I for human life?

The tears fill my astonished eyes,
And my full heart is like to break;
And yet 'tis all embowered lies,
A dream those little drummers make.
Oh, it is wickedness to clothe
You hideous, grinning thing that stalks
Hidden in music, like a queen,
That in a garden of glory walks,
Till good men love the thing they loathe!

Oh, stop that man's infernal
But not an infamy like this.
Art, thou the fife and still the drum,
And show the monster as she is!

—Richard Le Gallienne.

THE CACKLE OF THE HENS.

I know this is no lofty flight
Of poetry at all,
No doubt its subject's kind of slim,
And its object mighty small,
And you'll call me sentimental,
And I'll be glad to hear you say,
Of the pleasure that it gives me
By cackling in the spring.

I know that other birds will lift
Their golden throats and tell
About the blue-bird's plaintive note
Soft-rippling down the dell;
But while such rhapsodies resound
Tenaciously I cling
To the much-despised, yet patient fowl
That cackles in the spring.

O, Goldenhilt poetized the goose,
"That gabbled 'ere the pool,"
But when he reached the poor old hen
He left his fancy cool;
Alone of all the barnyard birds,
The poets have no fling
At her, the good old faithful fowl
That cackles in the spring.

I wish my headpiece could perform
Such thought-gymnastic feats
As were worked on the nightingale,
By the late Mr. Keats;
Not for a niche in hall of fame,
But just that I might bring
Much honor to the patient bird
That cackles in the spring.

Some say the gentle loof of kine
Bring back their sound of days;
For some the barefoot of evening bells
Untrace a fair memory's maze;
But nothing else can send my thoughts
To old scenes journeying,
Like listening to the good old hen
That cackles in the spring.

In order to make a thoroughly satisfactory curd, uncooked meat should be used, but good results can be obtained by the use of cold lamb, beef, game, rabbit or chicken, provided that an extra supply of stock or gravy is at hand.

STRONG SPEECHES FOR COMMISSION

8. There will be no property qualification for candidates.

Mr. Smith took the chair at this point and introduced Mr. Agar.

M. E. Agar.
Mr. Agar said that the Citizens' Committee should be credited at least with arousing an interest in civic questions even if their efforts to overcome the opposition had failed. He believed that the present system and personal interest failed. With regard to the charter, he felt authorized to say that there would be nothing very new in the proposed charter. He believed that the present system would be retained, but the additional legislation passed since 1890 would be incorporated and provision made for the commission plan. He had no personal criticism of the aldermen, but in consideration of the need of the present there must be considered things of the past. Aldermen who came from their own business and had violated their oath. He believed that under the present system no alderman had fulfilled his oath of office. The time had arrived when the public must have good service and must pay for it.

Mr. Agar then read the letter of Rev. W. H. Sampson which has appeared in the press, and answered each question asked. He said the salaries had not been too high they had the right of recall.

A Voice—"They will get the recall if they make it $3,000."

Mr. Agar—"That is your privilege."

Mr. Agar then went fully into the matter of the property qualification. At a working man to be a member of the commission he would have to own property of a certain value. He would not have to own property of a certain value. He would not have to own property of a certain value.

"Respectfully yours,"

"THE EXECUTIVE."

"I fail to understand, gentlemen," he said, "why this club or any body of this nature should make such a decided effort to elect a member of twelve men to be chosen tomorrow. Do you think that any body of 500 to 1,000 could select five commissioners? If you do, I do not."

Mr. Belyea, then called attention to the Marble Cove dredging and to the matter of the sewerage as stated. He said the city had limited the tenders for the sewer to $100, but that the actual cost would be much more.

"I ask the citizens of St. John to take these facts into consideration when they vote tomorrow," he said.

Mr. Belyea then visited the Haasam pavement and said that whenever he shook the dismissed inspector by the hand he always said to himself, "There is one honest man in St. John."

Timothy Donovan closed the meeting in a spirited speech, in which he predicted a large majority for commission on the west side.

ANNUAL MEETINGS IN ANGLICAN CHURCHES

Tuesday, April 18.

The Easter meetings in all the Anglican churches in the city last night were well attended. In all cases the reports showed a gratifying increase in congregational activities. Financial conditions were also uniformly gratifying, the balances being without exception on the right side.

St. John's church, Carleton, will commence a jubilee week May 7, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the consecration of the church building. The treasurer of St. John's church reported that he had on hand $10,000 for the new organ fund. The list of officers elected in each church is given here:
