Joys.
You needn't be rich to be happy.
You needn't be famous to smile.
There are joys for the poorest of laborers
If only they think them worth while.
There are blue skies and sunshine aplenty,
And blossoms for all to behold;
And always the bright days outnumber
The dark and the cheerless and cold.
Sweet sleep's not a gift of the wealthy,
And love's not alone for the great;
For men to grow old and successful
It isn't just custom to wait.
The poorest of labor has his blessings
His richer companions may leave;
And many a man who has riches
Goes sorrowing on to the grave.

The Legislature Closed.
Press Gallery, House of Assembly,
Halifax, June 10.—To-day the government capitulated and we have shut up shop. All that remains to be done is to pay off the ship. Tomorrow morning the members will be on their way to their homes and friends, thankful that the long and extremely tedious session is at an end. For we have been here since February 19 and the session just ended has been the longest and most momentous in the history of the province.
But it would, quite likely, have been no more important than many of the sessions that preceded it had it not been that the people sent a good, strong opposition to the house to look after their rights and interests. As a general rule sessions of the Nova Scotia parliament last six or seven weeks. They were short and sweet because the government had it all their own way. They could do as they liked and they did about as they liked, and then went home.
The past two sessions have shown a change. It is true the opposition have had to fight like trojans. The government was not accustomed to a fighting opposition and resented it bitterly.

The government did not relish having its acts criticised. It did not like a lot of things the opposition indulged in, such as its exposure of the long legislation which will go down in history as the greatest stock jobbing, get-rich quick exploitation ever known in this fair province, so zealous of its good name and honor.
The people of this province should be delighted to know that they made no mistake when they decided that a strong opposition would be a good thing for the country. For so it has proved. I venture to say that had the legislature not contained this little band of fighters the province would be in a bad way to-day, because it was apparent to everybody that the government was completely at the mercy of the commonsense.
For over three months the opposition fought without ceasing. They had no let up, but all the same they showed no quarter and in the end, on the very day of prorogation, the government had to crawl down and comply with the demands of Mr. Tanner and his gallant following in the house.

Much has been said in the liberal press about obstruction. Indeed, by a special system of arithmetic, the opposition press went on to show that this obstruction, as they termed it, was costing the country money. Let me tell you, gentle reader, that the so-called "opposition" was saving you money, good money! That "obstruction" was for the purpose of preventing the government from doing what it should not do, from doing what you would not want it to do, from doing what you see the opposition there to do. It was disagreeable work at times, but the man who is performing a duty conscientiously does not fear the disagreeable part. I would like to say a word here for the leader of the opposition. I would just like to say who the general sentiment is as expressed in the city by the man who is performing a duty conscientiously does not fear the disagreeable part. I would like to say a word here for the leader of the opposition. I would just like to say who the general sentiment is as expressed in the city by the man who is performing a duty conscientiously does not fear the disagreeable part.

The Origin of Hat Raising.
Why do men raise their hats? When a gentleman raises his hat he does it simply as a mark of respect, but the custom originated long ago in the time when men wore heavy armor. When knights went to war (and that seemed their chief business), they wore heavy steel armor, from head to toe, to protect them from the spear thrusts of the enemy. The head and face also were covered, with a place to breathe through and two little holes to see through. The only way to distinguish one knight from another was by the plume on his hat or the crest he wore, each family having its own particular mark. Naturally when a knight came into a castle he took off for comfort the armor covering his head, and so originated the idea of tipping the hat, which in this day has become a common mark of respect to ladies.
At the point of his gun Slippery Tom relieved the pashery of his watch.
'My time is yours,' was the victim's only comment.

Scarcity of Work.
Rather a remarkable condition of affairs prevails in Canada at the present time. Thousands of men are walking the streets of the towns and cities seeking for work and finding none. On the other hand there are scores of farmers anxiously looking for efficient help and are not able to secure it, says an exchange. Farm work unfortunately, does not appeal to a large class of unemployed accustomed to regular hours. Our summers are short, our days are long, and our progressive farmers find that it is necessary for them to work from dawn to dark. They are up against climatic conditions and the eight, nine or ten hour day cannot be successfully applied to farm life in Canada.

Then again, wages—when work can be obtained—are higher in the town than in the country, and then too, in the town the electric lights glitter, the picture shows are in full blast, the soda water fountains sparkle and the notes of the piano player come floating from the ice cream parlors.
On the farm it is only work from sunrise till sunset, and yet it is the purport of life on the farm, year to year, to produce a surplus, to develop depth of character and strength of muscle.
In many of our industrial towns throughout Canada and the United States we find idle factories and idle men. This may result from two causes, over production for those who have the money to buy, or under consumption for the more fortunate class. The fact remains both in Canada and the United States that there is a decided under production of farm produce and the old, backwaded cry of 'back to the land' seems to be the only solution of the vexed labor problem.

How to get men back to the soil is a problem. Many of us lack the pioneer spirit of our forefathers who have broken for themselves out of the unbroken wilderness, who were content with the simplest necessities of life. Others again who would be willing to make the start. There are hundreds of men in this province who would like to get back to farms but have not the means to do so. A few million dollars spent on a del. Farms might aid in solving the problem.

Still Going.
Many men have deplored the movement from this country towards Canada. But it keeps right on, and is likely to do so, as long as Canada presents virgin soil and the new opportunities which come with a new country. For the week ending September 23, figures show that there entered Western Canada from the United States 465 farmers, 296 laborers, 95 mechanics, 53 clerks, 162 domestics and housekeepers, 19 minors and 190 people not specified. The people took with them $201,129 in cash, and household effects worth $36,710. Of this number 1,038 were Americans. To compensate for this loss, there left Canada during the same week, to take up permanent residence in the United States, 55 Canadians, 38 Americans, 10 British, 2 French, 1 Australian, 1 Swede and 1 Finn. The movement, therefore, is at present very one sided. The regret at the going of these people may perhaps be tempered by the knowledge that they are helping to form in the country to the north of us a large body of men and women who have many American connections and who consequently are pro-American in their sympathies. West of the Rocky Mountains there is a very few words. The opposition has demonstrated the fact that the government is no longer fit to conduct the affairs of the province, that it has forfeited the esteem and respect of the people and that it should give the people a chance to demonstrate this. The opposition has by its splendid work on behalf of the people, proved its capacity to govern this province honestly and to the advantage of the people. Now you have it in a nutshell.

Now we are all going on a holiday, all the readers of this correspondence and myself, and here's that we may have a pleasant time.

Perfect Health Due to the Blood.
NO GIRL OR WOMAN NEED BE CONSTANTLY AILING AND UNHAPPY.
Nature intended every girl and every woman to be happy, attractive, active and healthy. Yet too many of them find their lives saddened by suffering—nearly always because their blood is to blame. All those unhappy girls and women with colorless cheeks, dull skins and sunken, lustreless eyes, are in this condition because they have not enough good, red blood in their veins to keep them well and in the charm of health. They suffer from depressing weariness and periodical headaches. Dark lines form under their eyes, their heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion, and they are often attacked with fainting spells. These are only a few of the miseries of bloodlessness. Nothing can rescue girls and women from the inevitable decline that follows anaemia except a generous supply of new, rich red blood and nothing does this so effectively as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. It is said, too, that besides exercising unused muscles this exercise frees and stimulates the large nerves of the lower portion of the spinal column, an 11th of course makes for health. This exercise may be repeated every day or every other day to advantage.

You Will Never Be Sorry.
For living a pure life. For doing your level best. For looking before leaping. For hearing before judging. For being kind to the poor. For thinking before speaking. For standing by your principles. For stopping your ears to gossip. For being generous to an enemy. For asking pardon when in error. For being square in business dealings. For giving an unfortunate person a lift. For promising in keeping promises. For putting the best construction on the acts of others.
No man can paint the town red without getting a little of it on his nose.

—She chooses it with as much discrimination as she does her gowns and hats. It must be distinctive in character—it must be refinement—and it must be of strictly high quality. They are composed of the most expensive materials, carefully compounded by skilled chemists.

For the Tired Woman.
When the business woman comes home from work tired and fagged, there is nothing so restful as a little massage on the forehead and eyes. It soothes and quiets the nerves and improves the appearance as nothing else could possibly do.
First wash the face with warm water; then rub a very little skin cream on the fingers—only a very little. Lay the tips of the fingers together in the centre of the forehead and draw them gently outward to the temples. Do this on the forehead and on the eyes. If one of those people feel tired in the lower part of the face do it on the mouth also beginning in the middle of the lips and working outward to the ears.
Rub very lightly and steadily, keeping so for perhaps five minutes. This process takes all that dragged and worn appearance from the face and makes one look many years younger than before it was tried.
