Corset Cover - Petticoat

COMBINATION under garments are preferred to every other sort just now, when slenderness is the great essential to fashion. This one that combines a corset cover with snug fitting short petticoat is a favorite, and a deserved one. The corset cover is just full enough to be pretty beneath thin hips. All the materials that are used for underwear are appropriate, but this garment is made from batiste with trimming of lace and frill of embroidery.

The garment consists of corset cover and petticoat. The corset cover is made with fronts and back. The skirt is made in five gores. The two are joined by means of a belt and the corset cover is closed at the front and the skirt slightly to the left of the front. The corset cover can be made with little shield sleeves, or without, and the arm-

House Jacket

THIS is the season when house jackets are in demand. This one is absolutely simple, while dainty and attractive in the extreme. The sleeves and the body portion are cut in one and the labor of making is slight. The tucks are laid in a novel way, and give a yoke effect at the same time that they provide pretty fullness. This jacket is made of batiste with trimming of

The Fad for Lace

LACE gowns, lace coats, lace tunics, lace overwaists, lace scarfs and mantles—lace abundant is going to make a prominent part of the summer's wardrobe. All kinds of laces are in use—very heavy ones and the daintiest and filmiest. Some of the newest heaviest laces are works of art in themselves, and one finds it difficult to classify them. They are not cut work, neither are they what we have been accustomed to think of as lace. Some of the new bandings in particular which are going to be used, not only on linens and cottons, but with silks and satins, are so thick and bold in pattern that they will make effective trimmings or else very ugly ones. There will be nothing tame about them.
